NEW FOE AGAINST KAISER

LITTLE CHANGE AS A RESULT OF MEXICO PARLEY

Protocol Said to Force Nothing on Carranza—Wilson Is Satisfied.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Although it is generally considered essentially a triumph for Carranza, the peace of Atlantic City, terminating the present quasi-hostilities with Mexico, is acceptable to the president.

It transpired today that the protocol signed at Atlantic City yesterday contains the only terms to which the Mexican commissioners, in what amounted to an ultimatum, said they would agree.

Secretary of the Interior Lane, chairman of the American commission, acquainted Mr. Wilson a week ago with the defiant attitude of the Mexicans and the president authorized him to acquiesce in their demands.

WILL SIGN UP PROMPTLY.

Inasmuch as the Mexican commissioners obtained what they demanded, it is expected that the protocol will be signed by both governments without delay.

Mr. Wilson's satisfaction with the agreement is based on the assumption that a general war with Mexico has been avoided thereby, that the border raids have been ended, and that the way has been paved for further negotiations designed to effect, by peaceful means, the regeneration of the revolution torn republic.

FEELS IT IS JUSTIFIED.

The president believes that if his policy of dealing patiently and forgivingly with Mexico works out successfully the acceptance of the Atlantic City protocol will be justified.

The administration policy now appears to contemplate further "pacific intervention" to persuade or compel Carranza to protect Americans and reform the social, political, and economic structure of the state, while holding over the first chief the threat of ultimate armed intervention, as hinted by Secretary Lane in his Atlantic City statement.

The opposition to the administration in congress regards with forebodings the surrender to Carranza in the border dispute and the continuation of Mr. Wilson's efforts to dictate reforms in Mexico which the Republicans term "vicious meddling."

SEE U. S. TWICE DEFEATED.

In the view of the opposition Mexico has been permitted to defeat the United States in both the Vera Cruz and the border expeditions in which two score American soldiers and marines, were killed and several hundred million dollars expended. The outcome of this warfare is in marked contrast to the victories won by the president in the wars he waged in Haiti and San Domingo.

The Atlantic City protocol formally brands the Villa punitive expedition a failure. Mr. Wilson, having bowed to Carranza's defiance, failed to "get Villa dead or alive," although Villa now is operating openly near Chihuahua City, near which Gen. Pershing still has his army.

WITHDRAWAL AGREED TO.

The president acquiesces in Carranza's demand that the Pershing army be withdrawn. The only condition the American commissioners were able to obtain is that the date of withdrawal shall be postponed if the border is still unsafe forty days hence.

The Mexican commissioners declined to agree to any repetition of the punitive expedition in pursuit of Mexican murderers of Americans on American soil, and the American commissioners were compelled to content themselves with a declaration in a separate memorandum that the United States will pursue such marauders into Mexican territory whenever Carranza is unable to protect the border.

DOES NOT BIND MEXICO.

This memorandum is not a part of the agreement, does not bind Mexico to its declaration, and appears to have been formulated for American home consumption in an effort to "take the curse off" the Carranza victory.

The Mexican commissioners declined to agree to any joint policing of the border. The protocol does not change conditions in that respect existing before the Columbus massacre. In acquiescing in the agreement the president tacitly submits to Carranza's order forbidding Pershing to move east, south, or west, to which Capt. Boyd and his command were sacrificed at Carrizal.

Villistas Enter Chihuahua City; Fight in Streets

Bandits Reported Gaining Success in Third Day of Fierce Battle.

BULLETIN.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 25.—Villa has cut off the entire water supply of Chihuahua city by severing the aqueduct leading to the capital, according to a report obtained by United States department agents here tonight.

The aqueduct conveys the water supply of the city from a reservoir several miles away. Such action would cause suffering among the civilian population immediately, men familiar with the situation declared tonight.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 25.—In a desperate assault on Chihuahua City today Pancho Villa had gained a foothold in the city and hand to hand fighting was in progress in the streets, United States agents learned late today.

The last message that came over the border stated that Villista forces had entered one side of the city. Late this evening no further information as to the outcome of the battle for possession of the city had reached the border.

In United States official quarters here tonight it is thought improbable Villa had cut the wires, which were severed early today, because during the previous two days' fighting, when Villa's men dominated the situation, the telegraph and railway lines were not severed.

Fall of City Rumored.

In the streets of Juarez rumors were circulated tonight that the Villistas had occupied Chihuahua City and that Gen. Trevino's force of Carrancistas had been routed, but United States agents stated there was little foundation for these rumors.

Dispatches received before communication failed said Villa began his third day storm of Chihuahua City with furious rushes at daybreak. Simultaneous cavalry charges were launched on the eastern, western, and northern lines of the city and a separate column attempted to storm the gun emplacements on Santa Rosa hill, dominating the city from the south.

Report by U. S. Agents.

Late today a United States government official, transmitting reports to Washington, said:

"Until 10 o'clock today Gen. Trevino had been able to repel every assault of the bandits upon Chihuahua City. In only a few instances had the bandits been able to get any distance into the city. Each time they were forced out. But we have authentic information that Villa succeeded in penetrating into a portion of the town and had been holding it for hours. Then the military wire failed. Whether he has been able to maintain his ground is the question."

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—Forecast for the week beginning Sunday, Nov. 26: Region of the great lakes—The weather will be overcast during the week, with probably general snows Wednesday and Thursday, attending the passage of a disturbance of considerable intensity across the great lakes. Considerably warmer weather the first half of the week will be followed by much colder weather after Thursday.

3 BOYS DEAD OVER CAMPFIRE IN A BOX CAR

Little Fellows, from 8 to 13, Sealed In, Are Asphyxiated.

Three little Chicago adventurers, aged 9, 13, and 14, treading fearlessly into a vast world of romance, were killed by suffocation last night when their golden armada became their funeral pyre.

In a prosaic box car on the Santa Fé tracks at Seventeenth place and Mechanic street the three boys were found asphyxiated by the smoke from the fire they had built in the poetry of their imaginative excursion into the land of fables.

FIND SEAL BROKEN.

It was around 5:30 last evening that an employé of Robert Sampson, night foreman of the Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. barns, near the Santa Fé yards, examined box car No. 7335 and found the seal broken. It was loaded with merchandise for the department store and, fearing some loss, the employé nailed the door tightly shut.

Later in the evening Charles Simmons, an employé of the Santa Fe freight department, discovered a fire in the vicinity of the car. He summoned the fire department. The fire was confined to the refrigerator box car that had been sealed.

The flames were soon extinguished. William McCarter, Charles Olson, and Edward Fowler, all employés of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., made an investigation of the car with Simmons.

EMBERS OF CAMP FIRE.

Near the door were the charred embers of a "campfire." It evidently had been prepared with much care. The car was piled high with merchandise and the men pursued their search.

In the end of the car, behind a pile of packing cases, the men came upon three small bodies. They were the three little adventurers. They were overcome by smoke.

The boys were rushed to the People's hospital, where an examination disclosed they were dead. They had been asphyxiated by the fumes from their "campfire."

BOYS WERE RUNAWAYS

A canvass of the neighborhood brought a number of persons who established the boys' identities. Earlier the police sent out descriptions. The names of the boys and the descriptions—which themselves tell each a vivid little story—are:

George Sturma, 13 years old, son of Joseph, a machinist, 1716 Burling street. He wore a gray mixed coat with a picture button of Lincoln on one lapel. His knickerbockers were blue and he had a brown leather belt. His tie was gray silk, knitted with a red stripe. His underwear was heavy and fleece lined. His hands were blackened as if he had been picking coal, and his shins were skinned as if he had attempted to climb from the car. In his pockets were found a stub of a soft black pencil, an almost empty sack of Bull Durham, a rusty key, and a Fulton rubber stamp outfit.

Stephen Vanek, 14 years old, son of Stephen, a coal heaver, 630 West Eighteenth street. He wore two pairs of trousers, one of blue serge, and over them a pair of corduroys. In the pockets of his trousers were two house keys, some scraps of tobacco, a dozen matches, and a buffalo nickel. He wore a gray flannel shirt and a pair of shoulder brace suspenders. On his feet he had a pair of cloth top button shoes.

Carlo Polack, 9 years old, 1732 Burling street. In his trousers pocket he had a piece of school chalk and some ordinary school writing paper upon which were written some words in Polish as follows: "Polaczyk Hta Polaczyk Hta Polaczyk." His shoes were black. He wore two gray sweaters and a blue gingham shirt, black trousers, and an old belt. About his neck he had a torn linen napkin. He wore no coat. In his trousers were found three keys.

LITTLE SISTERS CALLED.

The Vanek boy was identified by his sister Anne and his mother, Anna. They said he had left home in the afternoon, displaying a buffalo nickel, with the intimation he was going to a movie. Anna

Chicago Girl Gives Up $10,000 Chance for Variety of Reasons.

Slops to the pigs.
An old maid future.
It wasn't her own home!

This is why Mary Smith is coming home. She has written to Chicago friends, expressing dissatisfaction and a determination to return.

She is the Mary Smith who gave up the noise and slamming and banging of the city. She gave up the city to be the "little girl" of James Pankhurst and Mother Pankhurst, rich farmer folk of Amboy, Ill. She was to receive an inheritance of $10,000.

It's All Reversed Now.

But Mary Smith is coming home.

She is coming home to the big, grateful, noisy, glowing, hearty, homelike city. She yearns for the hum of its traffic, the height of its buildings, the rush of its people. It is huge and clattering and bursting with hymn of many voices, and she just loves it.

She has not decided just exactly when she will arrive in Chicago. She has prepared to join her mother in a downstate town, where they will attend the funeral of a friend of the family. With this tribute paid, Miss Smith and her mother will return to Chicago.

A Year of Drudgery.

"A year of drudgery and all for nothing," said one of her girl friends. "And what of all she has missed? Perhaps a comfortable home with an admiring circle of friends, all because of an attempt to please those that could not be pleased."

The Pankhursts were not unkind, but she didn't fit into the landscape there.

To Mrs. Henry S. Jaffray, 6336 Kimbark avenue, who was a visitor in Amboy, Miss Smith confirmed the statement that she would not longer remain with the Pankhursts.

She Likes Young Men!

"I never had a caller," Mary was quoted as saying yesterday. "It was a part of the agreement that I was not to marry. It is not that I am crazy for the company of young men, but I do like to meet them. I like to talk with them. They are interesting if they are interesting, and I am fond of diversion.

"The chickens and the pigs and the cows are nice in their way, but they are not so nice as the city.

"I don't know what I shall do yet. I may be a shop girl, a stenographer again, or most anything. But I am coming home. O, the city is so big and friendly and homelike. And it grows so dull and frozen and bleak out here in the open.

The Relatives.

"Then there were the relatives. I suppose every rich man has his relatives who are waiting around for him to die. It makes them feel sad to see another promised a portion of the estate. I am not saying this was the case, but I felt that way."

Mary Smith still is the comely little lady of the city. Her hands have not had the opportunity to become callous and her arms are still as shapely as when Mary Smith forsook the street cars for the surrey and the high buildings for the trees.

But she's coming back.
Ten thousand dollars will buy much.
But not happiness.

DIAMONDS VALUED AT $3,500 LOST BY A CHICAGO WOMAN.

Mrs. Richmond Dean, Delegate to Catholic Alumnæ Meeting, Misses Gems in Baltimore Hotel.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Diamonds worth $3,500 were lost in the washroom of the Hotel Belvedere today by Mrs. Richmond Dean, 426 Branch street, Highland Park, Chicago, a delegate to the convention of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnæ meeting at the hotel. The loss was reported at once to the manager and the hotel detective, but so far no trace of them has been found.

SERVANT PROBLEM NO. 24.

Concerning a Persuasive Maid Applicant Who Borrows from Prospective Employers.

Everybody wants a maid. Everybody is anxious to do anything that will please the prospective servant. Hence Sarah Smith, whom the police are seeking in the north shore suburbs, has been able in the last week or so, on the strength of promising to report for work the next morning, to borrow anywhere from 25 cents to $1. She never came back.

Country Girl Dies of Unknown Cause in Dark Alley

Ina Holstrom, 20 years old, whose home is in Rapid River, Mich., was found unconscious at the rear of 640 Bowen avenue last night by two men. She died as she was being assisted to the automobile owned and driven by one of the men. The body was taken to Boydston's undertaking rooms, 4227 Cottage Grove avenue, where a postmortem examination will be held to determine the cause of her death.

William Meyers and his brother, Walter, 3036 Ellis avenue, were driving an automobile through the alley when they found the unconscious girl on the ground.

On a key ring the police found her name and the address of William J. Murthea, 751 East Forty-first street. Mrs. Murthea told the detectives the girl roomed at her house and left home at 8 o'clock last night. She was found an hour later. The police think she may have taken poison.

Michael Baumbach, also a roomer, said he had not seen the girl since Friday night. Mrs. Murthea said the two were friendly. The girl had been out of work.

SPANIARD FLEES BOSTON; CAUGHT IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Marisano Alvero, a Spaniard, confidential man to Arkin & Son, brokers of Boston, who is alleged to have embezzled $20,000 of the firm's money, was arrested yesterday in San Francisco by Pinkerton operatives, according to dispatches last night.

Alvero also is accused of having caused the disappearance of Mrs. John Thomas, wife of a wealthy merchant of Haverhill, Mass. They are said to have spent some time in Chicago, living in a loop hotel, before proceeding on their way west.

Alvero is believed to have been about to sail for Honolulu.

FOUR FLY TO YALE GAME BY AIRPLANE, 65 MILES.

Two Thaws of French and American Corps and C. H. Reynolds to Return Same Way Today.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Four of the spectators of the Yale-Harvard game this afternoon came here from Mineola, L. I., this morning in two aeroplanes. They were Lieut. Alexander Thaw of the First signal corps, N. Y. N. G., who carried with him his brother, Lieut. William Thaw of the French flying corps, here from France on a furlough, and C. H. Reynolds, who brought a mechanician.

In spite of a forty mile wind they arrived on time, having left Mineola, sixty-five miles away by air line, at 10 a. m. The men will remain here all night and expect to fly back to Mineola in the morning.

The Thaw brothers started up first, winding higher and higher until they reached 3,000 feet, and then Reynolds, who is also an officer in the First signal corps, joined them. When they arrived over New Haven they dropped down to about 1,000 feet and then alighted.

BLONDE DIVORCEE IS SUED FOR $50,000 BY "HIS" WIFE.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pinkney Accused by Mrs. William Nelson of Alienating Her Husband.

Fair, blonde, divorced, and 30, Mrs. Elizabeth Pinkney of 204 East Fifty-sixth street was sued yesterday for $50,000 by Mrs. William S. Nelson of Blue Island, who alleges Mrs. Pinkney stole the affection of her husband.

"Nonsense," said Mrs. Pinkney last night. "I never had any but a friendly feeling for Mr. Nelson. He used to room at my home in Peoria before I was divorced from my husband. I regard him as a fine man, and that's all. He has not been living with his wife for over a year, anyhow."

Mr. Nelson is a conductor on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad.

'Coppette' Gives Skeptical John Good Trouncing

Woman suffrage, huh! Can a woman take a man's place at anything? Well, anyhow, Marie Crot is one of those that took a chance. She is a policewoman. She was on a Sixty-third street car nearing Halsted street last night.

Down the aisle sat John Stuckert. John is 57 years old and should know better. He lives at 60[illegible] South [illegible]een street. John was acting just as if he were strictly at home. He was spitting on the floor of the car and looking around him with a baleful glare every now and then to see how the passengers liked it. They didn't like it. Neither did they raise any loud protest.

Policewoman Takes Hand.

Policewoman Crot permitted John to get away with one more spray of granger twist and then she arose quietly and drew near to the nicotine geyser maintained by Mr. Stuckert. She tapped him on the shoulder.

"You mustn't spit on the floor," she said gently.

"Who th— what makes you think I mustn't?" demanded John with a glower in his eyes calculated to make the policewoman cower and weaken.

"I am a policewoman," she said.

"Just as if I give a hoot who you are," snarled John and he forthwith spat with ceremony and pomp squarely upon the shoes of Policewoman Crot.

Then Things Happen.

The passengers were so quiet one could have heard a pin drop—a coupling pin—it was a Sixty-third street car. Champions of votes for men, while opposed to expectoration in common carriers, foresaw the downfall of suffrage. The silence was tense.

Then something seemed to tell John that he had overplayed the part.

Policewoman Crot laid hold of John at the coat collar. John held to the seat. John and the seat arose en masse. The seat fell with a rattle. John's more immediate person hit the slats in the car floor with a firmness that corrugated him like a tin roof.

Still maintaining her hold, Policewoman Crot hove John through the rear door of the street car. Then she jerked him off the platform so expeditiously that his vertebræ seemed to click. And Policewoman Crot went home to dinner.

GREEK REBELS DECLARE WAR ON GERMANY

Entente, in Ultimatum, Tells King to Surrender Arms.

ATHENS, Nov. 25.—The provisional government set up by former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, following his revolt from the neutrality policies of King Constantine, today formally declared war against Germany and Bulgaria.

Venizelos, since the start of the war, has been a vigorously pro-ally, and an ardent adherent of Greece's entry into the war on the side of the allies. His constant fight against King Constantine's efforts to keep Greece out of the war led to the establishment of the "provisional government" on the island of Crete some weeks ago.

Before this, at the Greek elections, Venizelos apparently obtained support from the people, but he failed to move the monarch to any change.

ULTIMATUM TO KING.

The entente allies acting through Admiral du Fournet, commander of the allied fleet gathered here, have given to the royalist government an ultimatum requiring the delivery of the Greek arms and munitions.

The first delivery demanded consists of ten batteries of mountain guns. The ultimatum says that failure to deliver these before Dec. 1 will result "in measures being taken by the admiral." The rifles must be surrendered before Dec. 13.

An official close to the king today said that the surrender of arms no longer depends either on the sovereign or the government. He declared that the king's best efforts so far had proved fruitless with the army, which is determined not to surrender their arms, notwithstanding the wishes of King Constantine.

DEMANDS ONCE REFUSED.

Today's ultimatum is the result of a previous demand of the allies for the arms and the decision of the crown council to refuse. The Greek premier today explained that the ultimatum of Admiral Fournet brushed aside the reasons for his refusal of the demands and simply set Dec. 1 as the date for the surrender of the artillery and Dec. 13 as the date for the surrender of rifles. The tone of the note, said the premier, was courteous, but it did not admit of discussion.

Admiral Du Fournet's note, diplomats of the entente powers say, reviews the arguments of the Greek government, justifying this refusal to surrender arms, refers again to France's proposal to pay for the arms or replace them after the war, declares that the entente powers do not make the demand because they are in need of armament, but because they feel that the war materials in Greece would be better employed in defending Macedonia, "for the liberty of which Hellenic blood has so often been spilled," than stored in the arsenals.

LONDON IS IN DOUBT.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Messages which have been received here leave in doubt the attitude which the Greek government will take in regard to the ultimatum of the allies demanding the surrender of arms. One report, carried in a wireless message by way of Rome, says the Greek ministry has decided not to insist on resistance.

Another dispatch, sent by Reuter's Athens correspondent, says that it is stated in circles close to the Greek court that any attempt to obtain possession of Greek arms and ammunition will meet with resistance.

This dispatch, which was filed at Athens yesterday, says the military party has taken a decided attitude, and that any attempt to take the arms will meet with resistance, even if King Constantine orders their surrender.

In the event of resistance it is expected the allies will arrest the leaders of the movement and occupy the custom houses.

"The situation is most grave," the correspondent continues. "The only apparent solution is Greece's ultimatum to Bulgaria."

WOMEN START EGG BOYCOTT ON PRETZEL'S PLEA

Political Equality League Leads Fight to Force Price Downward.

The egg boycott is on.

Members of the Political Equality League of Chicago were the first to pledge themselves to buy no eggs and eat no eggs until the price of 50 cents a dozen for "good eggs" goes down.

The 350 women who were present at a meeting in the Congress hotel yesterday afternoon took this action by resolution following a speech by Ald. George Pretzel.

"If James E. Wetz, the egg king, carries out his threat," said Ald. Pretzel, "I may be in jail soon for conspiring to boycott him, but I am willing to take this chance t break the egg trust. There are about eight men in the trust, who sell to one another in order to keep the price up."

Miss Dobyne's Resolution.

Miss Margaret B. Dobyne then presented her resolution, which read:

"Resolved, That 50 cents a dozen is a prohibitive price for eggs and that we refrain from buying at that price."

Ald. Pretzel failed to get the League of Cook County Clubs, before whom he also spoke, to adopt his boycott plan.

Another organization which went on record as favoring an egg boycott was the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium. A plea to the public to boycott the egg trust so that consumptives may have their chief article of diet at a reasonable price was issued by the board of directors.

Needed for Sick Poor.

After pointing out that there are 712 tuberculosis patients in the sanitarium and 20,000 outside under treatment of dispensary physicians and nurses, to whom raw eggs may mean life, the resolution says:

"The Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium directors protest against the holding of eggs in large quantities in cold storage in order to obtain exorbitant prices, when they are badly needed by these sick poor.

"We appeal to the housewives and to people generally who are not dependent upon eggs for their bare existence, that they abstain so far as possible from the use of eggs until such time as the eggs are released from cold storage in this city in order that the needy tuberculous may be able to obtain them at prices within their means."

Copies of the resolution were sent to the cold storage warehouses.

Robertson Leads Raids.

Health Commissioner Robertson, who led a raid on cold storage warehouses under ordinances forbidding forestalling and regrading, is a director of the sanitarium. He let it be known that he intends to urge Chicago housewives to refrain from buying eggs until after Jan. 21.

"By that time eggs now held in storage will have to be released under the ordinance which prohibits the storing of eggs for more than ten months," Dr. Robertson explained. "Other consignments will be released then right along up until April 5, by which time the entire hoard of 365,000,000 eggs now held in storage will have to be cleared.

"I inspected Mr. Wetz's eggs in the Monarch Refrigerating company storage and found about 14,000,000 eggs. Many were stored last March 21 and will have to be released by Jan. 21."

Hunt for Bad Eggs.

Fifty health inspectors, led by Dr. Robertson and Dr. A. J. Stokes, raided the warehouses of the Monarch, Booth, Western, and Chicago companies in search of bad eggs.

The raids consisted in looking over the books of the companies and in sending a man to each room where eggs were stored. Specimen eggs were then taken from the cases most easily approached and candled to determine their soundness. All told, about a dozen cases were found in bad condition.

Only four carloads of eggs were found in the Western Cold Storage house and all were in good shape.

DEADLOCK IN WEST VIRGINIA ON ELECTION FRAUD INQUIRY

Republican Senators Fail to Agree on Carrying Out Governor's Recommendation.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 25.—Failure of the Republican members of the senate to agree on a resolution to carry out the recommendation of Gov. H. D. Hatfield for a complete investigation of alleged election frauds, together with a deadlock on the primary election bill between both houses, prevented the final adjournment of the extraordinary session of the state legislature here today.

The house committee appointed to investigate charges that a lobby was endeavoring to bribe members of the legislature completed its work late today and will submit its report Monday, saying it was unable to substantiate the charges.

SATURDAY SHINE, 10 CENTS.

Amalgamated Association of American Bootblacks, Etc., Advances Prices.

"No more jitney shines on Saturday," was the order promulgated yesterday by the Amalgamated Association of American Bootblacks and Knights of the Whisk. Every shoe shining "parlor" in the loop posted the order on the wall where patrons could not fail to see it. The man who, to save a nickel, gets his Sunday shine on Saturday night howled in vain.

THEY HAVE 'EM HALF SOLED

Leaders in West Suburbs Campaign to Cut Cost of Shoes and Thanksgiving Feast.

Miss Marie Tutwiler. Mrs. Alan F. Sharp.

"Turkeyless Thanksgiving and stick to old shoes" is just now the favorite slogan of the women of Oak Park and the western suburbs. The gospel has been preached by the Oak Park Suburban Civics and Equal Suffrage association. The association has asked the women to boycott turkey, which is quoted at 40 cents a pound, to refrain from buying new shoes at present exorbitant prices, and have their old shoes half soled and repaired. Two of the suburban leaders in the fight against prohibitive prices in turkey and shoes are Mrs. Alan F. Sharpe and Miss Marie Tutwiler of River Forest.

HELP NEEDED FOR 10,000 POOR

United Charities Asks for $8,000 by Dec. 1 for Relief Work.

"Do you know there are 10,000 people right here in Chicago in distressing poverty, some of them quite likely around the corner from where you live, some in abject misery even, for lack of food, clothing, rent, coal, and medical care?" reads an appeal sent out by the United Charities.

"Generous Chicago, the city that has done so much for foreign war charities, cannot afford to have it said of her that she was blinded to the suffering in her own midst, and could only see the suffering that lay thousands of miles away. We believe she should continue to give while doing all she can at the same time to alleviate suffering at home. The directors of the United Charities believe that Chicago will rally at once to the support of its home charities.

Needs Pointed Out.

"Here are good reasons for asking further support:

"In spite of present prosperity there is really a great deal of poverty in Chicago, over 2,000 families coming to our eleven district offices every month. Each day 200 families come for help, an increase of 100 families per day since cold weather started.

"There is lots of work, but in families coming to us there are no able bodied men. These families come because they are husbandless and fatherless, because there is illness, injury, insanity, feeble mindedness, old age, and a dozen other disabilities dragging them down.

"Since Nov. 1 we have been compelled to add 31 per cent to our food budgets of families because of rising prices, and there have not been increases in contributions to help take care of this.

"We need $8,000 by Dec. 1 in addition to what we may expect from our regular contributors.

Must Wake Up Public.

"We do not plead in the begging spirit in behalf of these thousands of helpless unfortunates, but rather hold out an opportunity for everybody to take part in this most necessary work. Many can give only in small amounts. A few dollars a year or a dollar a month are welcome gifts.

"Most respectfully, yet most urgently, we call your attention to the fact that we must somehow find a way to overcome the attitude of 'laissez faire' that prevails in some quarters regarding Chicago's poor folks. We can only do it by waking the public up to an earnest consideration of Chicago's own needs through the support of its most important charitable organization."

NAIL DOWN YOUR RUGS.

One Is Stolen from the Blackstone Hotel Just One Minute After Guests Stood on It.

If you want to prevent thieves from stealing that Turkish rug in the parlor you had better nail it to the floor.

A rug valued at $150 was stolen yesterday from the office of the Blackstone hotel. How it was taken is a mystery. The rug was 6x12 feet in dimensions. Porters and bellboys told the house detective that the rug was in its place on the floor near the clerk's desk at 4:15 o'clock. At 4:18 it was gone. Guests of the hotel were standing on the rug at 4:17. The other rugs in the office were nailed down.

Two Men Taken on Complaint o Elevated Station Guard—They Deny Charges.

Paul Wehr, 2076 North Western avenue, and Carl Robinette, 7215 Eberhart avenue, were booked at the South Clark street station yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct. They were arrested at East Van Buren street and South Wabash avenue on complaint of John Mitchell, an elevated guard, who said the men annoyed women as they were ascending the stairway leading to the elevated station at South State and Van Buren streets. They denied the charges.

3 BOYS DEAD IN CAR BLAZE

also identified the Polack boy. She thought he had tried to write his name and address in Polish before being overcome by the fumes.

The Sturma boy was identified by his 13 year old sister, Elizabeth. She said he disappeared Friday and though the three little fellows had climbed into the car with the idea of running away.

They had no more than prepared this when they were frightened by the approach of workmen and the subsequent nailing up of the door. But the intense cold is believed to have caused them to continue with their fire.

STRUGGLE FOR AIR.

Their struggles for a breath of air and relief from the stifling fumes could almost be traced by the appearance of the merchandise. Finally, in desperation, they sought the end of the car hoping for a slight crevice in the end wall. There was none. They fell to the floor gasping for breath. At last they huddled together in a last desperate effort to live. They died. And thus, locked together, they were found.

Of the merchandise it was found that three boxes and a gunny sack of underwear had been opened. It is believed some of this was used to start the fire.

STORY OF THE FINDING

"One of the barn employés, George Hanson, told me there was a fire in one of the freight cars," said Sampson. "We have a small chemical cart with hose for emergency work, and I rushed with it to the burning car.

"The car that was ablaze with two others was shoved in on our side track at 5 o'clock. All were loaded with merchandise. Earlier in the day one of the employés noticed that the middle car was partly open. He nailed up the door and made it fast.

Pry Open the Door.

"It was this car that was on fire. We pried open the door and a lot of smoke poured out.

"The fire was in the center of the car, in packing cases. We climbed in and began throwing out the blazing boxes. While at this work we came across the bodies of the three boys. They were huddled together behind a large packing case in one end of the car. They were not close to the fire, but they were suffocated by the smoke."

A COLD WORLD THESE DAYS

Ronald Cluff and Floyd Church Have Seen Enough of It.

Two of the boys missing from their homes Friday have seen enough of the world. Ronald Cluff, 14 years old, of 5000 Winthrop avenue, is on his way home after finding it too cold on the road. Floyd Church, 15 years old, of 951 Foster avenue, missing since Thursday noon, returned yesterday.

"PAY EARLY" CAMPAIGN ON

"Early pay roll" is quite as necessary as "early shopping," so said speakers before the Chicago Political Equality league yesterday. The majority of Christmas shoppers, it was pointed out, are dependent upon their weekly pay envelope, and cannot shop early without the shopping wherewithal. Hence the league "shop early" committee is going to start a "pay early" campaign, according to President Harriet Stokes Thompson.

New York, Nov. 25.—A fifteenth century carved and painted wood bust of a girl from the Davanzati palace at Florence, Italy, was sold for $17,900 today at the sale in the American Art association galleries. The bust is attributed to Bernardo Rossellini, a pupil of Donatello. Five sessions of the sale have brought $696,605.

DIET SQUAD TO GET STAIR HIKE FOR APPETIZER

Climb Up Five Flights Faces Members Before They Breakfast Today.

Heavyweight members of Health Commissioner Robertson's 40 cents a day diet squad will be real martyrs today. Those of the dieters who fail to read this morning's TRIBUNE will have the martyrdom thrust upon them unexpectedly.

Each of the twelve members of the squad who comes down to the 8:30 o'clock breakfast must climb the stairs to the fifth floor of the Tower building. The same condition will hold true in the evening at the time of the supper hour. Unknown to members of the squad the Sunday elevator service of the Tower building does not begin until after the breakfast hour and stops before supper time.

Must Attend Every Meal.

One of the rules under which the dieters are eating is that each one must be present at every meal. So far none has failed. Lying in bed on Sunday morning is forbidden, and the only excuse for nonattendance is sickness. In the event of such an excuse being given the health commissioner will send a doctor to investigate.

It may be that some members will take advantage of the offer of the School of Domestic Arts and Sciences to use the rooms as a clubhouse after the light dinner today and escape the stair climbing in the evening by remaining in the building all the afternoon. A plan is on foot at any rate to use a part of the afternoon in playing games.

Nearly All Late.

Practically every member of the squad was late to dinner last night. Dr. A. J. Stokes and one or two other men members of the squad were late in returning from a health department raid on cold storage warehouses. Several of the women said cars were so crowded they had difficulty in getting downtown after a fragmentary half holiday. Others had been to the football game and were late getting started.

The dinner was kept waiting until all had reached the rooms. Dr. Stokes and his associates were the last to arrive, and by that time excuses had become a joke.

Heavy Loss in Weight.

Some remarkable changes in the weights of the squad, as compared with the day before, were shown. Most of the dieters had attended the annual dance of the health department on Friday night. The total loss in weight was 171½ pounds, which wipes out all previous gains. The first weights and those of yesterday follow:

Name.	First weight.	Today's weight.	Gain or loss.
Gertrude Nelligan	112	114	2 G.
Sophia Miller	120½	120	½ L.
Lessie Petit	161	161½	½ G.
Cecelia Wilcox	126½	127½	1 G.
Borghild Halvorsen	148½	151	2½ G.
Eva G. Hansen	110½	111½	1 G.
Reuben Beckman	181½	177½	4 L.
H. L. Porsche	166½	165½	1 L.
Henry Gehring Jr.	161½	164	2½ G.
Irving A. Kowohl	165	166	1 G.
William C. Merker	148½	146¾	1¾ L.
Dr. A. J. Stokes	223½	218½	5 L.

One member of the squad lost weight following the dance. Two made slight gains. The gainers were Miss Borghild Halvorsen and Dr. Eva G. Hansen.

ROOTERS GET ADDED THRILL

Five shots fired by Motorcycle Policemen Otto Metz and James Hayes in pursuit of three boys who tried to drive away in an electric automobile from in front of the Fifty-seventh street entrance of the University of Chicago stadium yesterday gave spectators at the Minnesota-Chicago game an additional thrill. Two blocks away they were overtaken by the policemen and one was arrested. He gave the name of Henry Allen, 17 years old, 5558 Drexel avenue. His companions escaped. The car is owned by Reed L. Parker, 4540 Drexel boulevard.

THANKSGIVING P. O. RULES.

Postmaster Campbell Announces There Will Be No Delivery by Carrier.

There will be no delivery by carrier.

The postoffice and stations will be closed all day, except the general delivery, which will be open from 7 a. m. to 10 a. m.

One stamp window will be open for the sale of stamps.

The special delivery service will not be curtailed.

The day and evening mail deposited in the main postoffice will be dispatched as usual.

One collection throughout the city will be made, to arrive at postoffice at 11 p. m.

ELLER FINDS WEIGHT SHORT

City Sealer Gives Data on Which to File Suits to Prosecutor.

City Sealer Morris Eller contributed his share in slapping at the cost of existence yesterday by sending to City Prosecutor Harry B. Miller information which led to the filing of suits against twenty-four grocery and meat dealers for alleged short weights. Mr. Eller's inspectors are collecting similar data against a dozen more dealers who are said to have the habit of "weighing their fingers as well as the meat."

CIGAR FIRM RAISES WAGES

Wohl & Comstock Give Increases of $1 and Up to Seventy-five Employes.

W. D. Comstock of Wohl & Comstock, cigar manufacturers at 1462 West Madison street, announced yesterday a wage increase of $1 a week or more for each of the seventy-five employés of the firm.

"DIET SQUAD" MENU FOR SUNDAY MEALS

The "40 cents a day" martyrs will do no stuffing today. They will eat these simple dishes:

BREAKFAST—8:30.
Oranges.
Shredded wheat.
Toast.
Coffee.

DINNER—12:30.
Julienne soup.
Roast pork.
Glazed sweet potatoes.
Pumpkin pie.
Tea.

SUPPER—5:30.
Cold sliced meat.
Country fried potatoes.
Bread and butter.
Apple sauce.
Tea.

Their cook book says that this is the way to make the dishes which may be unfamiliar:

JULIENNE SOUP.

To one quart of clear brown soup stock add one-fourth cup each of carrots and turnips cut in thin strips one and one-half inches long and previously cooked in boiling salt water. And to this add two tablespoons each of cooked peas and string beans. Heat to boiling point. Serve.

GLAZED SWEET POTATOES.

Six sweet potatoes, four tablespoons water, three-fourths cup sugar, one tablespoon butter.

Wash and pare six medium sized sweet potatoes. Cook them ten minutes in boiling water; cut in halves lengthwise and place in buttered pan. Make syrup by boiling the half cup of sugar and four tablespoons of water for three minutes; add the tablespoon of butter. Brush the potatoes with syrup and bake fifteen minutes, basting twice with remaining syrup.

PUMPKIN PIE.

One and one-half cups of steamed and strained pumpkin, two-thirds cup of sugar, one teaspoon of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of ginger, one-half teaspoon of salt, two eggs, two cups of milk.

Mix ingredients in order given and bake in one crust.

RAID LOOP HOTEL AND CAPTURE 30

Police Descend on the 'Reed' in Lake Street and Take Inmates.

The police late last night descended on the Hotel Reed at 102 West Lake street, guarded all exits, and took into custody every person in the hotel.

A few who were able to prove themselves married, a few others who had taken a room legitimately at the hotel for the night, and a few domestics were allowed to leave.

When the police had sorted the surprised occupants, fourteen men and a like number of women remained in custoday, besides Charles E. Kellogg, manager of the hotel, and Herman Terwilliger, hotel clerk. All these were taken to the Central station and booked—the guests on charges of being inmates, and the manager and clerk as keepers of a disorderly house.

The hotel has long had a "shady" reputation and has been regarded somewhat as immune from police interference. When word of the raid passed around, Lake street in the vicinity of the hotel was soon thronged.

After guards had been distributed at the exits Capt. Morgan Collins and two other officers entered. They went from room to room, but there was no need to arouse the occupants.

The word had been sent around rapidly and many were clambering, half clothed, down fire escapes and stairways, only to meet the waiting policemen. They discovered there was no opportunity for escape and were sent back to their rooms to dress. Then, in three patrol wagons, they were taken to the station. An hour later all had been released on bonds except one man and one woman.

LOTS OF MEAT IN BOSTON, BUT ALL FOR THE ALLIES.

Mayor's Investigator Finds 10,630,000 Pounds in Storage Contracted For While City Is Short.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 25.—P. H. Mullowney, deputy health commissioner, who has been conducting an investigation into the food supply in local cold storage plants, reported to Mayor Curley today that on Nov. 23 there were 10,630,660 pounds of meat in storage, not one pound of which was intended for home consumption.

Virtually the entire amount had been contracted for by the entente allies.

After receiving the report the mayor sent a letter to Congressman John J. Fitzgerald again urging an embargo on the shipment of food, saying the home supply would last only four days.

BRIDE JEERS AT ROBERTSON DIET

"Just 40 Cents' Worth of Hot Air," Charges Mrs. Miller.

"IT CAN'T BE DONE."

Mrs. Maebelle Miller, bride of two months, doesn't think much of Health Commissioner John Dill Robertson as a dietitian. She refuses to be convinced that meals can be provided at 40 cents per day per stomach with any degree of satisfaction.

Gains in weight by members of the doctor's diet squad she views with disdain as evidence only of the health commissioner's craft in the selection of starchy and greasy dishes for his "test." She expressed solicitude for the welfare of the somewhat corpulent doctor unless he exercised "the foresight to antidote himself between meals."

Dr. Robertson's variety of the genus biscuit particularly attracted her sarcasm. She said she had studied with care the recipes printed in the newspapers each day. The food being passed out by the doctor, she admitted, is fattening, but certainly neither healthful nor satisfying. Incidentally, she charged members of the diet squad with eating between meals—she saw one of them with a box of bon bons!

"Those Biscuits, Absurd!"

"Those biscuits," she exclaimed. "Ridiculous! Why, biscuits made from two cups of flour and five teaspoonfuls of baking powder would be baby balloons instead of biscuits. They would consist principally of atmosphere. Two cups of flour wouldn't make half enough material for my liege lord's morning appetite."

Mrs. Miller journeyed to the office of THE TRIBUNE and descended upon the city editor for information as to how she could feed her husband and herself on 40 cents a day each. She came out of pure cussedness, for she is sure it can't be done. She seemed dubious about the hamburger in Dr. Robertson's menu, and asserted that she was unable to get hamburger for less than 25 cents a pound that did not require chemical treatment to make it fit to eat.

"These meals prepared by Dr. Robertson," she said, "are craftily planned to fatten the diet squad with greasy and starchy dishes. Hominy, oatmeal, and rice are starchy. Stewed prunes, stewed pears, fruit sauces, cooked fruits, and puddings contain great quantities of sugar. There is a large amount of fat present in biscuits, cocoa, lima bean soup, cake, and a New England boiled dinner.

"I feel sorry for the fat doctor unless he has the foresight to antidote himself between meals. Incidentally, I've always heard that fried meats are not considered specially beneficial to the digestion."

That Meal in Loop.

The 40 cents a day dream, Mrs. Millar maintained, goes glimmering when the meal downtown is considered. In the cafeterias, she said, the hole in the doughnut is growing larger and the rim is becoming exceedingly small. She herself, she asserted, eats no breakfast, a 15 cent luncheon downton, and counting out friend husband's noonday meal, it is impossible for the two to eat on 80 cents a day.

Here is the dinner served on Friday night at the Miller home: Green beans, bacon, potatoes, bread, butter, and tea. The total cost of this layout for two, Mrs. Miller said, is 58 cents—and that is the cheapest evening meal she has been able to get together. The dinner on Thursday night, at which beef tenderloin was served, cost 71 cents and 3 mills.

"Forty cents' worth of hot air," is Mrs. Miller's characterization of Dr. Robertson's diet squad performance.

HONOR IRISHMAN'S MEMORY.

Banquet Recalls One Hundred and First Anniversary of John Mitchell's Birth.

The memory of John Mitchell, the Irish patriot, was honored last night by several hundred men who celebrated the one hundred and first anniversary of his birth. It was the annual banquet of the John Mitchell club of Chicago at the Hotel Sherman.

John A. McGarry was toastmaster. The speakers were Daniel F. Cohalan, justice of the Supreme court of New York; O'Neill Ryan of St. Louis, and Dr. Kuno Meyer.

Among those at the speaker's table were Judges John P. McGoorty, Thomas F. Scully, Harry P. Dolan, Denis Sullivan, M. L. McKinley, John O'Connor, John K. Prindeville, William Dever, and John Barrett.

Two Plays at Hull House.

The Pallas Literary club presented two one act plays last evening at the Hull House theater, Polk and Halsted streets. The plays were "In Hospital," by Charles Dickenson, and "The Fifth Commandment," by Stanley Houghton.

MARKET LEAK OF $10,000,000 IN TRUCK SALES

Head of County Growers Tells of Move to Cut Cost to the Consumers.

That the Chicago consumer loses at least $10,000,000 when he pays $40,000,000 for the vegetables grown by Cook county truck gardeners through poor marketing methods is the claim of August Geweke, president of the Cook County Truck Garden and Farmers' association, in issuing a call for the 1,600 members of the association to attend the national conference on marketing and farm credits at the Hotel Sherman next week. The Cook county gardeners will take a prominent part in the national program, says Mr. Geweke, and it will be of interest to both consumer and producer.

"There is a big leak or waste in marketing this produce," he said. "We are working to eliminate that waste and give both producer and consumer the benefit.

Can Increase Output.

"In the first place, the Cook county truck gardeners and farmers can raise twice as many vegetables as we now do if we are encouraged by getting more out of it than the bare living that is had at the present. If we get in a position to increase our operations we can handle twice as much produce with our plants at less overhead expense than now incurred.

"The housewife needs some advice. Recently there was a big crop of leaf lettuce here, but instead of buying leaf lettuce when it was very cheap, housewives were spending their money on much costlier head lettuce from Florida and Texas.

Learn to Balance Rations.

"Housewives can also save money and increase health by learning to balance ratios.

"One bad point that would do much to relieve the difficulty at present is the present badly managed city market. Some day it will be a great market for the poor people.

SHERIFF AFTER BLIND PIGS.

Two Alleged Violators of Saloon Laws Are Taken Near Hinsdale.

The INSTRUMENT YOU WERE BORN to PLAY

VERY likely you long to play some musical instrument, but lack of training prevents. Here is an instrument that requires only a natural love of music—the mere inborn desire for musical expression common to all—to respond to you as the piano responds to a talented artist. The

Baldwin Manualo

The • Player-Piano • that • is • all • but • human is played beautifully by anybody who loves music because its expression is controlled from the pedals—the point where the performer is in constant contact with the instrument, the point where he instinctively tries to put expression into the music, the point to which his musical impulses naturally travel.

Each pedal stroke does not merely make certain notes strike but it makes them sound with the exact volume and accent which your musical feeling desires. The force and style of the stroke are transmitted from the pedals to the piano strings as the striking of the artist's fingers is transmitted from the keys to the strings. It is as if the performer were in direct contact with the piano action, so sensitive is the Manualo mechanism to his subtlest wish.

To play the Manualo you think of the music—not of the instrument. You simply pedal as your musical feeling makes you, and the expression is instantaneous, exact, complete. You need no special talent, knowledge, or training. The Manualo responds to your musical thoughts—to your natural, bred-in-the-bone love of music. You are its master. It is the instrument you were born to play.

New guaranteed player-pianos from $365.00 to $1800.00—used player-pianos as low as $150.00.

RAILROADS FILL BIG PER CENT OF COAL CAR ORDERS

Figures Reveal Other Factors Largely to Blame for Fuel Scarcity.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Apparently the shortage of coal cars, so far as the mines of Illinois are concerned, is far less serious than the public has been led to believe. Official figures, prepared by George H. Cushing, editor of the Black Diamond, show, for instance, that the Burlington railroad delivered to mines along its lines during the month of September 94 per cent of the cars which they asked for.

In October the percentage dropped to 76, while so far in November it has been only 67 per cent. The Burlington has the best record of any of the Illinois roads in this respect. The Illinois Central stands at the bottom of the list, with 76, 56, and 48 per cent for the three months, respectively.

Demand Increases Daily.

But to look at these percentages, with no knowledge of the facts behind them, conveys an entirely wrong impression. The fact is that the Illinois mines generally have been largely increasing their output during the last few months. Each two weeks the number of cars they call for to be delivered at their mines daily has been increased. The result is that the 67 per cent delivered by the Burlington in November, for instance, may actually represent a larger number of cars than the 94 per cent delivered in September.

In other words, it is claimed that the Illinois mines are now actually producing and shipping more tons of coal than their total rated capacity a few months ago.

No Reason for Delay.

"Few mine operators," says Mr. Cushing, "contract in advance to deliver more than 60 per cent of their output at an agreed price. They have been receiving on the average more than 60 per cent of the coal cars they have asked for. There is no reason then why they should not make deliveries according to thir contracts.

"And I am certain that in the vast majority of cases they have been and are doing so. That there are exceptions is only evidence that the human nature of coal mine operators is the same as that of men in other lines.

Points to Speculation.

"Whatever they may have left above the amount under contract is the so-called free coal. It is this somewhat reduced remainder which is thrown on the open market and in which there is considerable speculation."

A remarkable example of such speculation is the sale of a large number of cars of coal by one of the largest jobbers in Chicago at $2 a ton. It was purchased by another jobber who sold it the same day at $2.25 a ton. Three times in as many days it changed hands—still in the cars—at advanced prices. Finally, on the morning of the fourth day, the company which had originally sold the coal at $2 a ton bought it back at $3 a ton, an advance of 50 per cent.

Fight Reconsignment Evil.

Meanwhile both the railroad companies and the state public utilities commission are working to put a stop to the abuse of the reconsignment privilege by coal shippers and brokers. At present, after the consignee has held a car of coal forty-eight hours he is obliged to pay a demurrage fee of $1 a day. One proposal is to increase this fee to $2 for the second day, $3 for the third, $4 for the fourth, and $5 for the fifth and each succeeding day.

If at the end of the first forty-eight hours the consignee so wishes he can have the car, still on the tracks, reconsigned to another dealer. In that case he must pay a fee of $2. The railroad companies are now planning to do away entirely with the reconsignment privilege, unless the order is received before the car reaches its first destination. If, after a car has reached Chicago, for instance, it is desired to reconsign it to St. Paul, the shipment will be penalized by being forced to pay a much higher freight rate.

Some Operators Blamed.

That some of the coal mine operators are not playing fair with the men to whom they have contracted to sell coal is illustrated by the experience of a large Chicago operator. He called up the coal mining company with whom he had a contract and asked why he had received only half the number of cars under contract for the last two weeks.

He was told that the shortage of cars prevented the shipping of any more coal. Half an hour later he called up the same company and, giving another name and address, asked if he could buy the same number of cars which he was short. He was offered the desired amount of the same kind of coal at a price, however, more than three times as great as that fixed in his contract.

It is on the very poor, however, that the hardest burden of high prices and speculation falls. Last year at this time the little basement coal dealers were charging 25 cents a bushel for soft coal, which is about 100 per cent above the retail price of the same coal by the ton. Today these dealers are charging from 35 to 55 cents a bushel.

In the east prices of coal have begun to drop. In Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky new mines are fast being opened and old workings are also being mined, which have been idle for years. With increased consumption and a constantly increasing number of coal cars it is anticipated that next week may see a drop in local coal prices.

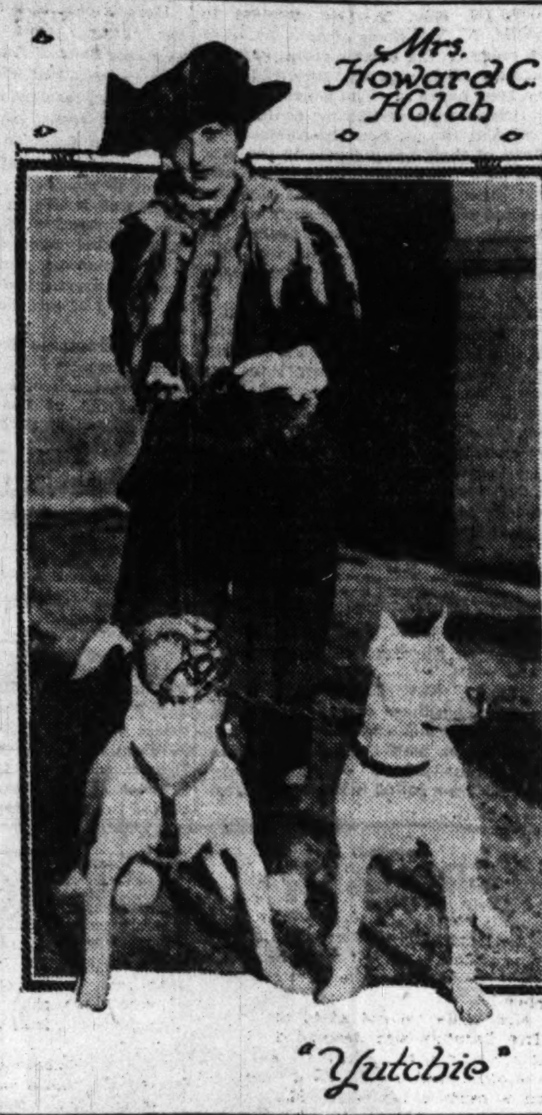
SHE FINDS CHILDREN'S "YUTCH"

Woman Reads of Loss of Little Girls' Pet Dog and Gladdens Them by Returning Him.



Yutchie, the pet terrier belonging to Alberta and Mary Kolker of 1434 Hood avenue, which was lost Friday a week ago, has been returned to its grateful little owners. Yutchie in his wanderings fell into the possession of Mrs. Howard C. Holah of 5203 Magnolia avenue, and she tandemed him in leash with her own terrier.

Then she saw Yutchie's picture in THE TRIBUNE, with the account of his disappearance, and yesterday returned him. Yutchie is 9 months old and has been a constant companion of the Kolker children since he was a pup.

COUNTY LEFT WITHOUT COAL

Hospital Among Institutions Hit by Companies Breaking Contracts.

The Pilsen Coal company and the M. H. Rogers & Co. repudiated their contracts with the county in letters sent yesterday to Assistant State's Attorney Charles Center Case. The county hospital is among the institutions affected.

"These dealers have been trying to find a loophole in their contract with the county, but have been unsuccessful," said Mr. Case. "The other day the Pilsen Coal company sent a letter demanding prompt payment for coal delivered to the county jail and the courthouse. Arrangements were made to pay the company immediately. However, we couldn't pay them for coal that was in transit or for coal that had just been delivered and for which the vouchers had not reached the comptroller.

Hospital Contract.

"The M. H. Rogers & Co. had a contract at the county hospital. They were slow in making deliveries and the hospital was always in need of coal during the last month. When the contract was broken there were 1,700 patients in the hospital and not enough coal to keep the building heated for the rest of the day. The superintendent of public service has bought coal in the open market, which will relieve the situation until we can make other arrangements."

The Pilsen Coal company has the contract to deliver coal to the county jail, the Criminal court building, county building, the county agents' offices, and of $2.70 a ton for unwashed coal, $8 a of $2.76 a to nfor unwashed coal, $8 a ton for range coal, and $8.25 a ton for chestnut coal.

Will Get Coal Anyway.

The same company had a contract to deliver unwashed coal at the Oak Forest infirmary for $2.16 a ton.

M. H. Rogers & Co. had a contract to deliver unwashed coal at the hospital for $2.73 a ton.

Superintendent of Public Service Henry Zender declared that coal would be delivered to the institutions.

"The county bought coal in the open market in carload lots for the Oak Forest infirmary at $4 a ton," said Mr. Zender. "For coal delivered to the institutions in wagons we paid $5 a ton. At the county hospital it cost us $5.50 a ton.

CHRISTMAS BASKETS ONLY

County Will Distribute No Thanksgiving Dinners, but Will Make Christmas Hampers All the Larger.

COOK county's poor will not receive a Thanksgiving basket this year, but will receive a better provisioned basket at Christmas than the county usually gives to its poor.

"It is too near Christmas for the county to give a basket of provisions to its poor on Thanksgiving day," said President Reinberg. "A better basket will be distributed for Christmas, as was done last year."

County Agent William Ehemann declared the county is giving a more generous monthly ration of provisions to its poor since the practice of giving baskets on Thanksgiving has been discontinued.

Preparations are being made at the various county institutions for turkey dinners Thanksgiving.

DO YOU WANT A REAL LIVE CHRISTMAS DOLL?

The Federal Government Employment Service Has One for You and a Mother Who Wants Work.

Our benevolent Uncle Sam is looking for a home where a mother can find work for herself and a place to live with her boy, 1 year old.

The federal employment service first heard of the woman by phone. Somewhere she heard that the government is in the job finding business, and she spent one of her last nickels calling the postoffice. Then she was referred to the employment division at 845 South Wabash avenue.

HILL'S ASHES CAST ON LAKE.

I. W. W. Members Hold Exercises in Memory of Leader Executed in Utah.

Four parchment packets containing a portion of of the ashes of Joe Hill, I. W. W. leader, who was executed a year ago in Utah for murder, were opened by "Big Bill" Haywood, chief organizer for the I. W. W., at Chicago avenue and the lake yesterday afternoon. One packet, that of the Marine Transport Workers' local, was thrown into the lake by a delegate from that body.

A week ago Hill's ashes were divided into 600 portions. These were distributed among the delegates to the convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, who will bring them home to their locals. The I. W. W. claims that Hill was a martyr.

The ceremony at the lake front marked the close of the tenth convention of the I. W. W.

GANG 'HANGOUTS' TO BE CLEARED BY SCHUETTLER

Details Squads to Raid Meeting Places of Gunmen—Find One Slain.

Acting Chief of Police Herman Schuettler yesterday energized a campaign to bring underworld clan murders, Black Hand shootings, holdups, and violence to a summary stop in Chicago. To thirty of the forty-five police precincts orders were sent for the captains to detail immediately squads of four men to visit all gang haunts, tough saloons, and poolrooms, and arrest known gunmen and holdup men.

As a result of this action 120 policemen last night opened a drive on crime which has exhibited more than a sporadic outburst during the last few days.

One Man Murdered.

Despite the early activities of the thirty flying squads, business went forward as usual with criminals. One murder and a number of holdups were reported early to the police. The murder of Charles G. Brown of 3256 South Fifth avenue, and the robbery of Douglas C. Warnes, messenger of the National Bank of Englewood, were principal crimes on the police blotters last night.

Charles Brown's body, still warm, was found in a vacant lot at Thirty-fifth street and Shields avenue early in the evening. The skull had been crushed in with some heavy instrument. Brown, who was 52 years old and a tinner employed by Armour & Co., was on his way home at the time his mysterious assailants struck him down. The police were notified by telephone call where the body would be found. They were unable to discover a motive. Brown was a quiet home man, married and the father of two small sons. He was not a member of any labor union, and, without dressy clothes or jewels, he was an uninviting prospect for robbery.

A Negro giving the name of James Colber, carrying a blood covered revolver and with crimson stains on his shoes, was arrested in the vacant block where Brown's body was found two hours earlier.

Messenger Felled.

Douglas Warnes, messenger of the First National Bank of Englewood, was knocked down by robbers at Seventieth street and Princeton avenue and robbed of a satchel containing $1,040. The robbery took place at dusk and in the full glare of an arc light at the corner. The money was the week's collection of the Englewood distributing station of the Borden Dairy company at 315 West Seventieth. It is believed the robbers knew the method of collection by the bank.

Young Warnes, who lives at 226 West Sixty-first street, left the Borden plant at 5:30 o'clock. At Seventieth street two men stepped from a doorway.

One of them placed his hand over the young man's mouth and struck him several blows with a club. As Warnes fell the satchel was snatched by the other and the two men fled. Police were sent to scour the neighborhood. H. G. Johnson, chief clerk of the bank, said that Warnes was thoroughly trustworthy.

Holdups in Daylight.

Three holdups were reported, however, before the regular bandit working hours. All three robberies were done by daylight.

Three men walked into the Hoyne avenue station of the Douglas park elevated branch and told the fare agent, Daniel J. O'Connor, to throw up his hands. In the presence of three drawn revolvers he did so. The robbers took $75.40, the day's receipts by the turnstile, and made their escape.

James Thompson, whose coal office is at 3638 Southport avenue, looked up to see who his two visitors were. Each had a gun pointed his way. They ransacked the place, took the few dollars they found, and sauntered away.

Paul Staffon of 1437 Larrabee street was held up by two men at Halsted and Division streets and robbed of $17.

SHE SPOILS HIS CLOTHING.

Mrs. Mary Becker, living at the Dearborn hotel, 666 South State street, was fined $20 and costs by Judge Beckwith in the South Clark street court yesterday. Emil Brosel, night clerk of the hotel, testified that during a quarrel Friday night Mrs. Becker threw an ink well filled with ink at him and damaged his clothing.

THE STORM CENTER

Her Married Sisters and Her Guardian Disagree on Payment of Dead Father's Insurance.

ROTHGERBER PHOTO

Florence Rothbard

Florence Rothbart, 7 years old, is the small center of a considerable legal battle for her custody. Mrs. A. G. Harvey, 149 South Whipple street, and Mrs. Ray Goldsmith, 4935 Vincennes avenue, sisters of Florence, and Mrs. Louis F. Rothberger, the girl's guardian, who lives at Fifty-fourth street and Cottage Grove avenue, are active in the case.

On Aug. 31 Albert Rothbart, father of Florence, and her married sisters and three other children, died leaving insurance of $3,000. He asked Mrs. Harvey to distribute this among the children. Florence had been placed with Mrs. Rothberger, her board to be paid. The payment of board lapsed.

In the meantime Mrs. Goldsmith obtained an injunction restraining Mrs. Harvey from disbursing the insurance money and from acting as trustee. Then Mrs. Rothberger sent the little girl to Hoopeston, Ill., for safekeeping. The matter will be thrashed out on the hearing of the injunction.

MAJ. LEWIS IS ALIVE; HIS BROTHER BELIEVES.

Former Chicagoan Serving in France Was Last Seen Alive in Hand to Hand Fighting.

Miss Nellie Graham, secretary of the Popular Mechanics company, received a long distance telephone message yesterday from Dr. Eugene R. Lewis of Dubuque, Ia., stating that Maj. John S. Lewis, the physician's brother, may not have been killed in a battle in France, as was reported a few days ago.

"Dr. Lewis said he received his information from a Montreal newspaper," said Miss Graham. "He said his brother went into an attack with his regiment and the Eleventh brigade. A hand to hand fight took place.

"A private returning with the report said that Maj. Lewis was all right, but later he said he was almost certain that he and his men were raked by shellfire while on their way back to the British trenches."

WOMAN HIT BY AUTO IN LOOP

Mrs. Marion Jeffrey Sustains Broken Shoulder When She Steps in Front of Machine.

Mrs. Marion Jeffrey, 4955 Grand boulevard, was severely injured yesterday when she was knocked down by an automobile at Madison street and Wabash avenue. The machine was driven by J. E. Smith, 5550 West Monroe street. She suffered a fracture of the right shoulder blade and was taken to the emergency hospital of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., where she was given medical attention. Smith was not held after he told the police Mrs. Jeffrey stepped from behind another automobile into the path of his car.

GIRLS FIND AUTO RIDING WITH STRANGERS PERILOUS.

Young Women Have Some Exciting Times After They Accept Invitation at Skating Rink.

Lillian Hochstrasser and Emma Neiser, 3741 Broadway, probably will think several dozen times before they again go automobiling with a couple of strange Jimmies and Walters.

They were roller skating at Riverview when they met such a pair. There was a long ride and then an escape by Emma, who somehow got out of the car and ran until she met a policeman. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning Lillian was found dazed and weeping at Robey and Grace streets.

She told the police her cries had been stifled by a blanket in the hands of the youths, who threw on full speed when Emma escaped, and she didn't know much of what happened. When she was taken home Emma was found. She had borrowed a half dollar of a farmer for carfare.

A. C. FROST HELD ON WOMAN'S PLEA

Mrs. Jean Hurley Says Broker Ejected Her When She Sought Money.

DENIES HE HOLDS FUNDS

Albert C. Frost, broker and promoter, arrested yesterday on a charge of assaulting a woman, was explaining the circumstance yesterday when Mrs. Jean Hurley, a handsomely dressed woman of Highland Park, was accusing him of failing to return to her some $15,000 given him for investment.

Mrs. Hurley obtained the warrant in Judge Beckwith's court for the arrest of Frost. Frost only last week was acquitted in the federal court of a charge of jury bribing, arising out of his prosecution on the charge of defrauding the government out of $10,000,000 worth of Alaska land.

Christian Science Teacher.

Mrs. Hurley is a Christian Science teacher and is said to live in Boston. In the last ten years she has been a prominent figure in north shore affairs. She declared that on Friday afternoon she entered Frost's office on the fourteenth floor of the Corn Exchange building. She said she demanded the return of her stocks, whereupon Frost struck her with his fist and ejected her from his office.

Statement by Frost.

"I have known Mrs. Hurley for years," said Frost after he had given bonds for his appearance. "I have frequently given her money when she asked for it. The talk of her having left $15,000 with me is ridiculous. I don't believe she ever had more than 25 cents. The only way she is on my books is as a charity."

A close friend of Mrs. Hurley living in Glencoe supported her last night in her statement.

"Mrs. Hurley gave Mr. Frost $10,000 or $15,000 for investment in his Chicago and Milwaukee Electric road several years ago," said this friend. "On several occasions she went to get it back. She never got it."

FIND RING TAKEN IN HOTEL.

$800 Gem Lost by James Kristler Last Summer Recovered by Police in Milwaukee.

If James Kristler, who, on June 18, while a guest at the Morrison hotel, lost a diamond ring valued at $800, visits the detective bureau he will find not only his ring, but the man who found it and another who sold the gem in Milwaukee.

Harry Metuiseas, 68 West Ontario street, is charged with the theft and Gust Sakallaren of Milwaukee with receiving stolen property.

Several days ago Detective Sergeants McGinnis and Birmingham overheard two men talking in the street. One said Metuiseas had sent a big diamond to Milwaukee. The arrest and recovery of the ring followed.

MOTHER'S WISH MOVES YOUTH TO ADMIT MURDER

Hettinger Changes His Plea to Guilty to Avoid Gallows—Hopes for Freedom.

If I were hanged on the highest hill,
Mother o' mine, mother o' mine;
I know whose love would follow me still,
Mother o' mine, mother o' mine.
—Kipling.

Edward Hettinger, 19 years old, yesterday pleaded guilty of the murder of Mrs. Agnes Middleton to save his life. His former sentence of death on the gallows was changed by Judge Hugo Pam to life imprisonment.

"Mother wanted me to do it," the youth said last night. "She cried and took on. I did it to please her, but I didn't murder that woman. I suppose I was willing, too. I can't say I wanted to have my neck stretched on the scaffold. That's tough."

A shiver ran through his stooping form.

Wants Him to Live.

"I suppose mother'd rather see me living, even in prison, than dead. She can come down to Joliet and see me now and then. She didn't care what they wanted me to do just so I got out of it with my neck."

He rolled a cigaret and lighted it.

"Tough down there if they won't let me smoke! A guy in here says we can't smoke in working hours. I'll be a nervous wreck, all right, for a while. I smoke a package of tobacco a day.

"But I'm through. No more of the night life for mine. I'm going straight if I ever get out of Joliet alive. They promised to give me work in the yard where I can get fresh air. I'm all run down. It'll be tough till I get used to going without cigarets.

Twenty in His Gang.

"They was twenty in my gang over on the west side. One thing, we never went into poolrooms. We met in front of a candy store. I had a Jane, and she's gone, too. She married one of the gang. I went with her three years. She quit me when I get into this scrape. We never carried guns.

"Chicago's no place for a young lad who gets going wrong.

"Mother thinks I might get out some time. If I could and we—mother and me—could get out on a farm, I'd go straight. I've had enough."

"Then you still insist you didn't kill the woman?" asked the reporter.

"I still insist," he said, with a suspicion of a smile on his thin, bloodless lips.

ROUMANIA FACES FATE OF SERBIA; ARMIES ROUTED

London Admits Whole Country May Be Overrun by Germanic Allies.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The fate of Belgium and Serbia stares Roumania in the face. Her armies in Wallachia seem caught in a great Teuton trap. Even if the armies escape, the fall of Bucharest and the overrunning of the great oil and wheat regions by the Teutons appears to be inevitable.

All hope that the Russians and Roumanians could make a firm stand behind the River Alt has been given up. Gen. von Falkenhayn has smashed the Alt line at one point, turned it at another, and Gen von Mackensen has taken it in the rear. Smashing Roumanian resistance with almost incredible speed, the Teuton commanders have placed the defenders in dire peril.

Von Falkenhayn's troops have crossed the lower Alt and made progress near the middle Alt. This turns the left flank of the Roumanian line and puts pressure upon the center. Other troops of Von Falkenhayn's army, attacking in the foothills of the Transylvanian Alps at the headwaters of the Alt, have driven the Roumanians down the valley, captured several towns, made 800 prisoners, and turned the right flank of the Alt line.

Smash Across the Danube.

German troops are firmly established on the Roumanian bank of the Danube at points both in front and rear of the mouth of the Alt. Bucharest and Petrograd admit this. The German official statement tonight says these troops "gained ground." The early Roumanian statement said they had been stopped, but this was only after they had seized the rail heads they needed.

At four other points along the Danube to the west of the mouth of the Alt, Bulgarian troops have seized islands in the river to protect the flank of the invading army.

In the region near Orsova and Turnu Severin, in extreme western Wallachia, the Roumanian army that lost Orsova is scattered and apparently is unable to rally. Taking to the wooded and snow-clad mountains, these troops are making a brave but fruitless resistance.

Checked in Dobrudja.

In the Dobrudja, where a lone Roumanian success has been reported, Von Mackensen's troops have stopped the advance of Gen. Sakaroff's Russians and Roumanians. How they can take Constanza and Cernavoda and press south in time to be of any assistance no observer here can see.

The situation in the Alt valley is considered black indeed for Roumania. Today's Bucharest statement says the Roumanians retired toward Slatina, a highly important railroad center east of the Alt. Its loss would be a blow almost equal in importance to the loss of Craiova.

Only by a rapid retreat on the whole 150 mile line of the Alt can the Russians and Roumanians escape, it is believed. This retreat would be aided by the eight rivers that intervene between the Alt and Bucharest, flowing from the mountains southward to the Danube.

It is now evident that what has been feared has occurred, the virtual joining of Von Mackensen's army in the Dobrudja in the south with that of Von Falkenhayn in the north, to sweep and squeeze the Russians and Roumanians out of Wallachia.

Jacob Hey's Auto Hurts Woman.

Louise Wohlleben of 2120 Kendall street was injured last night by an automobile owned and driven by Jacob Hey of 2050 North Halsted street, a former alderman, at South State and Van Buren streets.

OFFICIAL REPORTS ON RESULTS OF EUROPEAN BATTLES

ROUMANIAN FRONT

GERMAN

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—The official report regarding operations on the Roumanian front says:

Front of Archduke Joseph—In the Gyergo mountains a hostile attack on Batcane Jagra was sanguinarily repulsed.

South of the Alt pass, through the Transylvanian Alps, several towns were captured by German and Austro-Hungarian troops despite the tenacious resistance of the Roumanians. Three officers and 800 men were made prisoners.

The enemy's resistance in the lowlands of the lower Alt was broken. We have crossed the river there.

On the western frontier of Roumania, in the wooded mountains of Turnu Severin, Roumanian battalions cut off from the main army are still offering tenacious resistance.

Front of Field Marshal von Mackensen (Dobrudja)—There has been reciprocal artillery firing.

The forces of the allied central powers, after crossing the Danube from the south, gained a footing on Roumanian soil. Near Racovitza civilian natives again participated in the fighting against our troops.

Bulgarian troops occupied islands in the Danube near Gigen (near the mouth of the Alt), Orsova, Lom, Patanka, and Vidin [Widin].

The troops of Field Marshal von Mackensen's army group which crossed the Danube near Sistova gained ground.

BULGARIAN

SOFIA, Nov. 25.—The official report regarding operations on the Roumanian front says:

In the Dobrudja enemy detachments in superior numbers approached our positions, but were repulsed by our artillery fire. Along the Danube, near Silistria, Turtukai, and Rustchuk, there was artillery fighting. Near Gigen, Giurgevo, Lomand, and Vidin detachments of our troops occupied islands in the Danube.

ROUMANIAN

BUCHAREST, Nov. 25.—The official report issued by the war office tonight said:

Northern and northwestern fronts—No changes have occurred on the western frontier of Moldavia.

On the northern Wallachian front, to the region of Dragoslavele, inclusive, there was a feeble artillery bombardment.

In the valley of the Alt the enemy attacked on the whole front on several occasions, but was repulsed.

Southern front—Artillery bombardments and rifle firing occurred all along the Danube. The enemy landed troops at Islacz and Zimnitza, to the north of which places his advance has been arrested by our troops. From Dobrudja there is nothing new to be reported.

RUSSIAN

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25.—The following report on operations in Roumania was issued tonight:

Transylvania—In the Alt valley the enemy energetically attacked and pressed back the Roumanian troops towards the south of Tzalimarechu and Maldarachti.

From Craiova the enemy has taken the offensive and has compelled the Roumanians to retire behind the Oltets river [a tributary of the Alt].

Dobrudja—Enemy attempts to attack our advanced posts were arrested by our fire.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

FRENCH

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The ministry of war today issued the following report on operations in Macedonia:

Fog and rain have slowed up the operations of the army in the orient. During the day of Nov. 24 Serbian forces repulsed a Bulgarian counter attack in the region of Grunishte, to the east of Monastir. Italian forces are continuing their progress.

GERMAN

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Regarding the Macedonian front, the general army headquarters issued the following report:

On the Macedonian front the only occurrences were unsuccessful efforts to advance by Italian troops northwest of Monastir and by Serbians north of Grunishte [east of Monastir].

BULGARIAN

SOFIA, Nov. 25.—The official statement in regard to the Macedonian front today said:

Between Ochrida lake and Presba lake strong hostile detachments were repulsed. East of the bend of the Cerna three nocturnal attacks by the enemy failed.

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The bulletin from the war office issued tonight reads:

There was considerable activity on the part of both artillery forces in the region of Fort Vaux. Intermittent cannonading occurred on the rest of the front.

A group of aviators belonging to the British marine aviation squadron bombarded the blast furnaces at Dillingen, in the region of the Sarre. In the course of this expedition over 2,000 pounds of explosives were thrown down. Most of the projectiles reached their objectives. An airplane of the enemy was brought down on the return trip.

GERMAN

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 25.—The official communication from general headquarters, issued this evening, says:

On the Somme front there was slight artillery firing. During the course of the afternoon a lively artillery action occurred east of St. Mihiel.

BRITISH

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The official communication issued by the British war office this evening reads:

The enemy's artillery and trench mortars were active during the day against our line south of the Ancre and in the neighborhood of the Hohenzollern redoubt. Our heavy artillery shelled various important points behind the enemy's front. The weather continues stormy.

In spite of the unfavorable conditions our aircraft made reconnaissances and coöperated with our artillery. One of our machines has not returned.

ITALIAN FRONT

AUSTRIAN

VIENNA, Nov. 25.—The official report issued tonight made the following reference to the Italian theater:

A strong air squadron effectively bombed the railway station and enemy camp at Primo Lano [in the Dolomite Alps, about twelve and one-half miles north of Bassano]. All the aeroplanes returned safely, notwithstanding the anti-aircraft fire.

ITALIAN

ROME, Nov. 25.—The official report issued tonight said:

In the valley of the Adige we repulsed a weak attack in the direction of Sano, south of the depression between Loppio and Mori. On the remainder of the Trentino front there were only artillery duels. Our batteries molested enemy movements in the Adige valley and in the upper Astisco valley.

On the Julian front the enemy's artillery was particularly active against our positions on Montenero and east of Gorizia.

–Hostile aircraft dropped bombs on Agnede, Gringo, and Primolano, in the Sugana valley, wounding two persons. They were driven off by our aeroplanes.

TURKISH FRONT

TURKISH

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—The Turkish war office has issued the following statement in regard to operations in the Mush region of Turkish Armenia:

Our positions in the vicinity of Mush have advanced on a front of about twenty-five miles, so that during the last few days our right wing has advanced on an average of six miles along a front of fifty-six miles. Prisoners and war booty have been captured. The number of Russian deserters is daily increasing.

RUSSIAN FRONT

RUSSIAN

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25.—The official report issued tonight said:

Teutonic forces northeast of Smorgin, north of the Pinsk marshes, after an artillery bombardment, took the offensive against the Russians, but were driven back by fire from the Russian artillery, bomb mortars, and machine guns.

Southwest of Riga, our scouts, under cover of our fire, forced their way into the enemy's trenches.

GERMAN

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—The official report regarding operations on the Russian front says:

Front of Prince Leopold—Southwest of Riga the artillery activity temporarily increased.

GERMAN DRAFT BILL PUSHED

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam says that at the opening of the German reichstag today the president paid a tribute to Emperor Francis Joseph and then proposed that the first reading of the bill for compulsory civilian service should be taken up next Wednesday. After determined opposition on the part of both Socialist groups the proposal was adopted.

PACIFISTS BEGIN CAMPAIGN IN U. S. TO END THE WAR

Plan Movement So Nation Will Support Any Peace Action President May Take.

New York, Nov. 25.—Further steps in a national "stop the war" campaign, designed to crystallize sentiment so that any peace move which may be made by President Wilson will receive the united support of the nation, were taken here today by the organization of the New York branch of the American National Conference committee. Similar branches are to be established throughout the country.

Dr. David Starr Jordan, who presided, enunciated the principles of the committee, which comprises 100 men and women leaders in the educational, political, social, and financial life of the nation.

Urges Wilson to Action.

"At the beginning of the war a distinguished publicist in London declared that the president of the United States had before him the greatest opportunity for good in human history," he said. "This opportunity is still before him and we expect him to use it. Wise men in all countries look to our nation as offering their only hope for a worthy ending of the war."

The committee of one hundred will be assisted by an "advisory and finance committee." The campaign to be conducted will include massmeetings throughout the country, the dissemination of accurate information on the growth of peace sentiment in the belligerent nations, and the obtaining of more than ten million signatures for a petition to be presented to President Wilson requesting that "the United States take the first step toward mediation."

Committee Outlines Purpose.

"The purpose of the committee," an authorized statement said, "is to support our government in any effort it may make toward a just and lasting peace. Its specific object is to urge our government to call or coöperate in a conference of neutral nations which shall offer joint mediation to the belligerents by proposals calculated to form the basis of a permanent peace. The committee also will assist all movements for negotiations between the belligerents."

Hamilton Holt is chairman of the committee and the vice chairmen are Miss Jane Addams, Gov. Arthur Capper of Kansas, Prof. Irving Fisher, John Hays Hammond, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, and Dr. George W. Kirchwey. Rebecca Shelly is secretary.

Women Join Peace Movement.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Daniel Gallery of Chicago, a trustee of the International Federation of Catholic alumnæ, this afternoon offered a resolution that the federation join the movement for universal peace. It was adopted.

SAYS ATTACKS ON SOMME PROVED TO BE FAILURES.

German Press Agency Also Asserts English Were Spared at Expense of Colonial Troops.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—[By wireless to Sayville, N. Y.]—Such attacks as have been made on the Somme front, says an Overseas News agency review today, have been fruitless. The article charges the British with employing contingents of colonial troops, notably Australians, instead of their home forces in the first line during what it alludes to as a battle for "practice," although the Australians had been engaged for six weeks in the hotly disputed Pozieres sector. It declares the Australians and New Zealanders lost in round numbers 40,000 men in the Somme fighting, three of their divisions having been wiped out.

The Canadians, too, it is asserted after suffering heavy losses in the Ypres fighting in June, were thrown into the Somme battle in September and have been in the first line on all the days of great attacks since Sept. 9. The South Africans also are said to have lost an entire brigade in Deuville wood.

It declares that the total losses of the Anglo-French forces in the Somme fighting have been more than 600,000.

AMERICAN KILLED ABROAD.

W. H. Jacques, President of Holland Submarine Company, Meets Death in English Rail Accident.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—William Henry Jacques, a graduate of the naval academy at Annapolis and afterwards with the Bethlehem Steel company and president of the Holland Submarine company, has been killed in a railroad accident.

TEUTONIC SONS OF AMERICA ASSURE WILSON OF LOYALTY

Also Appeal to President to End European War and Listen to Message by Hyphen.

Here is part of a resolution passed by the national council of the Order of Teutonic Sons of America yesterday and sent to President Wilson:

"On no president of the United States has ever rested such a responsibility and to no president such an opportunity presented itself to become a benefactor to mankind as to you, Mr. President, and it lies in your power to end the catastrophe that has come over 'Old Mother Europe.'

"The message which the sound of the roaring 'hyphen sea' transmitted to you on Nov. 7 should not be ignored in the future.

"The Teutonic Sons of America will further reserve the right to criticize any un-American act of your administration, but at the same time assure you most emphatically to be loyal citizens."

VON JAGOW A LIFE MEMBER OF THE GERMAN REICHSTAG

Two Men Are Chosen to Act Jointly as the Undersecretaries of Foreign Office.

Amsterdam, Nov. 25.—Appointment of Former Foreign Minister Gottlieb Von Jagow as a life member of the upper house of the reichstag and selection of William Von Stumm and Baron Von Dem Busch to act jointly as under secretaries of the foreign office were reported in Berlin advices here today.

CHARLES BRINGS PEACE NEARER, AUSTRIAN VIEW

New Ruler Promises to Work for End of War—Hope Is Placed in Wilson.

BY KARL H. VON WIEGAND.

[Copyright: 1916: By Press Publishing Company (New York World).]

VIENNA, Nov. 25.—That the death of Emperor Francis Joseph and the change of emperors in Austria-Hungary, where the war began, may be a new psychological development not unfavorable, perhaps even favorable, in its influence on the situation for peace, was the opinion expressed to me today in unofficial but highly influential circles.

In his first proclamation to his people Charles I. promised to do all he could to bring peace as soon as possible under conditions consistent with the honor and interest of the dual monarchy. This is taken as a hopeful sign by the people generally.

Little is known of the new emperor's views, or of what policy he will follow, but all who have had the opportunity to know him say he is not of warlike character, but on the contrary has the typical genial, sunny Austrian temperament, and that his most ardent wish is to see peace restored.

Rulers to Meet at Funeral.

A new ruler in one of the countries involved in war and in the country where the war began, but who had nothing to do with the beginning of the war, is regarded by many as a favorable factor to peace.

It is not improbable, perhaps even quite appropriate, that at the coming reunion of the rulers of all the central powers, with the exception of Turkey, which will send a special mission, at the funeral of Francis Joseph, occasion will be taken to discuss peace, as viewed from the side of the central powers.

In fact, the funeral may be one-half of the necessary whole of the peace meeting.

Look to Wilson for Move.

It is undeniable that the general public looks to President Wilson and see in him the only person who can act or intervene with any chance of success. The support leading American papers now begin to give President Wilson and a peace movement is hailed in all circles with unfeigned satisfaction.

The impression is growing that once President Wilson feels he has the American people behind him he will take a step in the interest of humanity and civilization.

Count Tarnowski, the new ambassador to the United States, has arrived in Vienna from Sofia and will remain to attend the funeral of the emperor.

In an address in Sofia yesterday Count Tarnowski declared it was too soon to draw conclusions about the policy President Wilson now may follow, but that the president is a man of mild and gentle character and a great friend of humanity, whose efforts for peace no doubt would meet with success ultimately.

Emperor Charles received in audience the Austrian ministerial body. The question of convening the Austrian reichsrat was discussed. It is before the reichsrat that the new emperor will take the oath of fealty.

Hungary Prepares for Coronation.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 24, via Amsterdam, Nov. 25.—Stirred no less deeply by the death of Francis Joseph, king of Hungary, than Vienna over the loss of the emperor, there is considerably more of a thrill of excitement in Budapest over coming events than is traceable in Vienna.

Premier Tisza arrived this morning from Vienna and immediately set to work on preparations for the coronation of Charles as king of Hungary, which will take place before the new year. No definite date has been made known officially, but I am informed that it probably will be Dec. 18.

While the court and government at Vienna are still unfinished with the details for the imperial funeral, the court and government at Budapest are equally busy working on the details of pomp of the no less gorgeously impressive coronation of a new king, as there are a number of functions, which, under the constitution, Charles cannot carry out until he has been crowned king.

He gave instructions to Premier Tisza yesterday to proceed immediately with preparations for the coronation at the earliest date.

Six Months Is Limit.

The constitution provides that it must take place within six months. It provides further that not until crowned can the king of Hungary approve or sanction laws made by parliament. While the Hungarian parliament has the preparation of the coronation in its hands, it is also its duty to examine and investigate whether the king about to be crowned is the legitimate successor of the last king. It is a delegation of parliament which brings the king his inaugural diploma and constitutional oath composed of five important paragraphs.

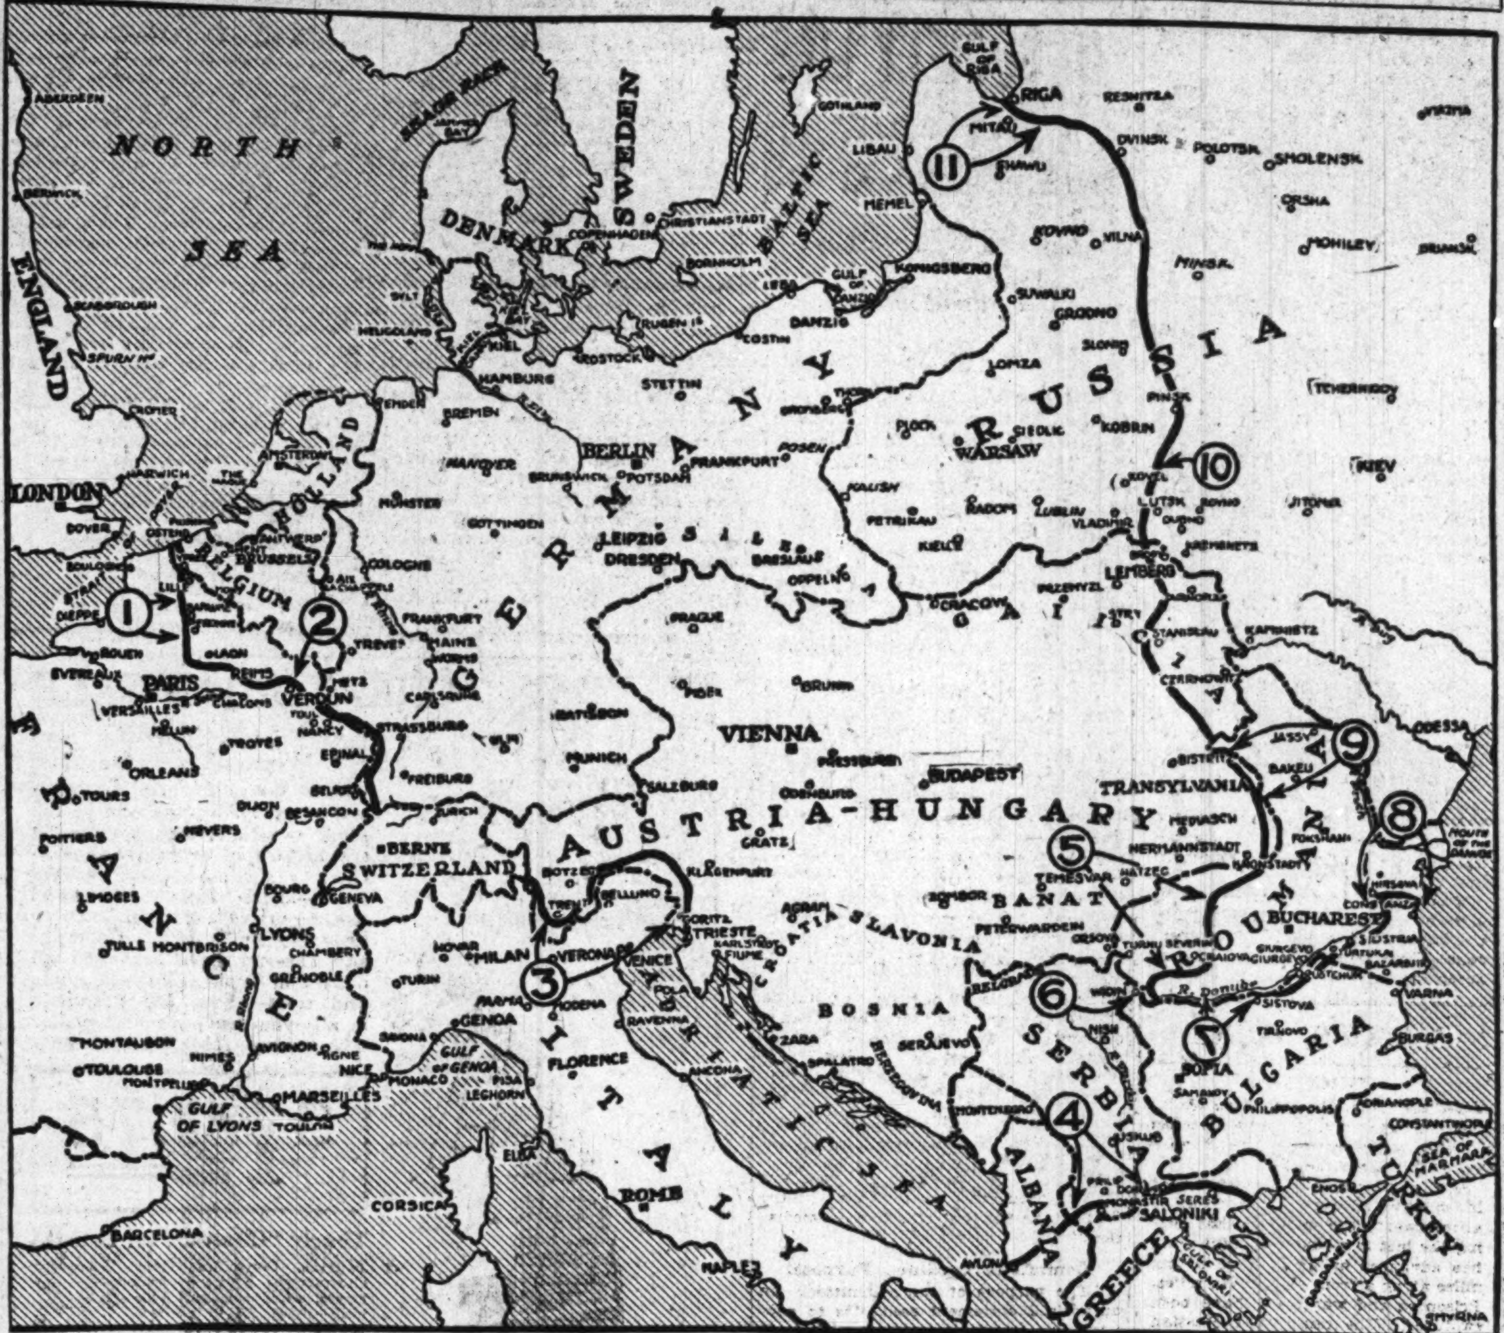
In the interim between the death of the last and crowning of the new king the Hungarian parliament is the legal body which in proper manner and form sees that the laws of the kingdom are carried out. At the coronation a delegate of parliament, representing the state, assists the archbishop in the impressive ceremony of placing the iron crown of Stephen on the head of the new king.

Charles Urges Haste.

Charles' instructions to the premier call for the coronation "as soon as possible," and everything is being hurried in Budapest accordingly. The parliament will meet on Dec. 6.

A movement for the erection of a huge monument to the late Emperor Francis Joseph from Russian cannon captured during the war has started in Hungary. It is planned to place the monument in front of the parliament building in Budapest.

WEEK'S DEVELOPMENTS ALONG EUROPEAN BATTLE FRONTS



1—Heavy rains held the opposing forces deadlocked along the Somme front the greater part of last week. Artillery duels followed by indecisive infantry actions marked the fighting along the Ancre and to the southeast as well as below the Somme river.

2—At the close of the week artillery actions in the region of Fort Vaux were reported on the Verdun front. Berlin reported lively bombardment east of St. Mihiel, to the southeast of Verdun.

3—Artillery duels in the Adige valley and in the upper Astico valley, with small infantry actions, were reported on the Trentino front. Along the Isonzo the Austro-Hungarian artillery was active, especially against Italian positions east of Goritz. There were no developments of importance during the week.

4—The fall of Monastir gave the entente allies an important Balkan victory at the beginning of last week. By rushing in German reinforcements the central powers were able to maintain the new line to which their forces retired. On the western end of the entente line in the region of Lake Ochrida, northwest of Monastir, gains by the Italians were reported. North and northeast of Monastir the Serbians occupied a number of villages. Fog and heavy rains interfered with operations during the latter part of the week.

The political situation in Greece came to a climax as the week closed when the Venizelos provisional government declared war on Bulgaria and Germany. The entente powers, through Admiral Fournet, also issued an ultimatum to the royalist government demanding the surrender of Greek arms and munitions under penalty of forcible seizure.

5—Developments of transcendent importance took place along the Roumanian fronts during the week. Von Falkenhayn's forces smashed through the Alt river valley defenses and by a swift advance captured the important railway center of Craiova, cutting off the Roumanian forces to the west in the region of Orsova and Turnu-Severin. The Roumanians fell back to the south and east, reforming on a north and south line along the Alt river. This maneuver seems to have failed, as Vienna and Berlin both reported this line had been smashed and several crossings forced to the east side of the Alt. This river has been relied on to hold the invaders west of Bucharest, as has the Danube on the south.

6—The Roumanian forces cut off by the smash to Craiova are believed to be doomed to capture or annihilation. Isolated battalions are fighting in the region of Turnu-Severin and Widin. Petrograd reported that these forces are making good their retreat, destroying supplies and grain as they retreat to the east.

7—Taking advantage of the desperate plight of the Roumanians as a result of Von Falkenhayn's advance from the northwest, Von Mackensen attacked the Danube line and forced the river barrier at several points. Successful crossings were made near Raconvitza, at the mouth of the Alt river, and at Sistova. The Roumanians reported heavy artillery and rifle firing all along the Danube and admit Von Mackensen has landed troops at Islacz and Zimnitza. Bucharest claims the advance of these forces toward the capital has been checked.

8—In the Dobrudja Von Mackensen maintained his positions along the Constanza-Cernavoda line, which outflank Bucharest to the east, bringing his chief pressure to bear further up the Danube.

10—In the Kovel sector artillery bombardments and small infantry actions were reported during the week. No fighting of importance took place on the eastern front during the week.

11—In the Riga sector Germans made successful raids against Russian positions. To the southwest, near Illukst, Russians reported successful gas attacks.

DESTROYERS SINK SHIP, SHELL CITY, IN ENGLISH RAID

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—[Via wireless to Sayville.]—One British patrol boat was sunk and Ramsgate was shelled by German warships the night of Nov. 23, an official statement announced here today. The official report follows:

> Part of the German sea forces on the morning of the 24th advanced to the northern outlet of the mouth of the Thames. No hostile sea forces were encountered aside from one patrol boat, which was sunk by artillery.
>
> The fortified port of Ramsgate was shelled. Since even then no hostile sea forces became visible, our vessels turned heel and arrived safely at their home port.

British Version of Affair.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The admiralty tonight issued the following report in regard to the German destroyer raid:

> Six German destroyers during the night of Thursday attempted to approach the north end of the Downs but were seen by a patrol vessel. The enemy fired about twelve rounds and steamed off at once. One shell hit a drifter without injuring any of the crew and only damaging its upper works. No shell fell anywhere near the open town of Ramsgate.

Arouses People of Deal.

The inhabitants of Deal, on the coast of Kent, southeast of London, says a Central News dispatch, were aroused at midnight Thursday by the sound of firing at sea.

Crowds, which lined the water front, saw flashes from guns in a northeasterly direction, but the warships apparently were fifteen or twenty miles away. The booming of the guns, the dispatch adds, continued for twenty minutes, when the sky darkened again and the people returned to their beds.

Baron Slain; Wife American.

New York, Nov. 25.—Friends here of Baron Hans Heinrich von Wolf, who went from the United States to Germany to enlist in the war, learned today that he had been killed in the fighting on the Somme front. The baron married Miss Jayta Humphreys, stepdaughter of T. St. John Gaffney, formerly American consul general at Munich.

MORE NORSE SHIPS SUNK.

Lloyds Says Three Neutral Vessels Have Been Destroyed by German Submarines.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Three more Norwegian steamers today were reported by Lloyds as having been sunk by German submarines. The names of the vessels follow:

Olfjeld, 1,998 tons.

Trym, 1,804 tons.

Turkish Senator Is Executed.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Senator Abdul Hamid Zeihravi was sentenced to death by court-martial and executed for conspiring against the Turkish government, according to a Constantinople telegram to German newspapers.

LONDON BOARD OF TRADE BARS USING WHEAT IN BEER.

High Price of Barley Forces Brewers to Turn to Other Grain—Order Goes Into Effect Tomorrow.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—An official announcement by the board of trade today says:

"It has been reported to the board of trade that in consequence of the scarcity and high price of barley purchases of wheat have recently been made by brewers for use in their business. The board of trade has accordingly made an order the effect of which is to prohibit the use of wheat in the manufacture of beer and similar liquors. The order is effective next Monday."

GUNMEN BROUGHT FROM NEW YORK, LEVEE RUMOR

Gambling Chiefs Get Under Cover at News of Five Points Gang's Arrival.

Levee gambling chiefs began to get under cover in the Twenty-second street district yesterday with the coveted announcement that gunmen of the infamous Five Points Gang in New York have been imported to clean out the Enright-Dunn stockyards mob of "killers."

The report came on the heels of a murderous assault in the saloon of Sells & Stahl on the evening before, when a "mob" of gunmen shot out the mirrors, the displays of cut glass, and otherwise wrecked the "S. & S." bookmaking establishment in an attempt to kill Stahl, one of the proprietors. Only Stahl's dexterity with his own revolver foiled the gunmen and drove them off.

"Some Rich Fighting."

"This is only a sample of what's coming off next month," said one of the men engaged in the defense of the "S. & S." "The Stockyards gang has been brought into this district to kill off one of the factions. There is going to be some rich fighting."

The offensive is said to be a coterie of gamblers who are said not to like the tactics of the late Joe Hogarty, who was murdered in the Burnham Inn Tuesday morning by a gang in which were Thomas Enright, "Sunny" Dunn, lately paroled from a twenty year sentence for manslaughter, a gunman known as Dillon, and some others. They trapped Hogarty in Burnham, formed a circle about him, and shot him to death with eighteen bullets.

Sol Van Praag, Too.

Also included in the dislike of the gang is said to be Sol Van Praag, once powerful in the political councils of the First ward and lately accused of operating a gambling "club" in Wabash avenue below Twenty-second street. On the morning of the murder of Hogarty Van Praag's place was robbed by men said to have later appeared in the Enright gang that slew Hogarty.

John Turio, widely mentioned in connection with the upheaval in Twenty-second street some years ago when Detective Sanley Burns was killed, has not been seen in his usual haunts for several days and it is rumored around the "bad lands" that he has sought retreat from possible attack.

Turio Owns Resorts.

Turio is the proprietor of a resort in Burnham and always has been connected with the operation of red light enterprises. For some reason he has not been liked by the gunmen. Some months ago a gang of gunmen went to his place in Burnham to rob the place. They found an old friend in charge.

"What are you doing here?" they asked.

"Why, I'm the manager here," he replied.

"O, h—l," came the answer. "That stops us. We came out here to stick up the joint."

In a roundup of gunmen police of Capt. Meagher's office arrested Peter Gentleman, brother of "Dutch" Gentleman, who was shot to death by "Mossy" Enright in O'Malley's saloon in North State street, John Flanigan, Michael Hurley, and John Hayes, all alleged gangsters. They are held in connection with the hold up of Van Praag's place.

DEFENSE IN "AX MURDER" LIBEL SUIT RESTS CASE.

Plaintiff Alleges Iowan Falsely Connected Him with Crime of 1912 and Seeks $60,000 Damages

Red Oak, Ia., Nov. 25.—J. N. Wilkerson, defendant in a $60,000 libel suit brought by F. F. Jones, former state senator, rested his case tonight. The suit is an echo of the "ax murders" in Villisca in 1912. Jones alleges that Wilkerson spread false reports charging him with responsibility for the murders. Joseph Moore, one of the victims, was a business rival of Jones.

Witnesses for the plaintiff rebutted evidence that A. V. Jones and Burt McCaull were in Grant, Ia., the morning after the murder.

Ross Moore, a brother of Joseph Moore, testified on recross examination that a fortune teller told him in Red Oak that his brother's murder had been plotted on the banks of the Nodaway river.

KATHERINE STINSON SAILS.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Katherine Stinson, the Chicago aviatrice, sailed today for a three months' tour of Japan, China, the Philippines, and Honolulu. She is to make thirty flights. On April 1 she will start from San Francisco on a four days' flight to New York.

J. D. ARCHBOLD RESTS EASY

New York, Nov. 25.—John D. Archbold, president of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, passed a comfortable night and all reports were favorable today following his operation for appendicitis, an announcement from his office said today.

GAY PARTIES FOR TWO MORE 'BUDS' IN SOCIETY LIFE

Margaret Pullman and Virginia Marshall "Come Out" in Fashion.

Strange though it may sound, yet yesterday's football game between Yale and Harvard caused a thinning in the ranks of debutantes' assistants and the two debutantes, Miss Margaret Pullman and Miss Virginia Waller Marshall, were introduced without the homage of many of their friends, who were in the east.

Miss Margaret Pullman, who is the daughter of Mrs. William C. Pullman of 199 Lake Shore drive and grandniece of Mrs. George M. Pullman, was introduced at a tea-dance at the Blackstone from 4 until 7 o'clock.

But Party Is Merry.

The crystal ballroom was beautiful with the floral offerings for the young debutante, who wore white taffeta trimmed in silver lace and crystal beads. Mrs. Pullman's costume was of dresden blue chiffon over soft satin of the same shade.

Assisting were Miss Isabel Gilmore, Miss Katherine Pierce, Miss Ermina Carry, Miss Isabelle Baker, Miss Louise Garaghty, Miss Elizabeth Adsit, Miss Rosalie Wacker, Miss Mary Buford Pierce, Miss Betty Hoyt, Miss Helen Hoyne, Miss Violette Selfridge, Miss Erminie Mathews, Miss Florence Taft, Miss Sylvia Shaw, and Miss Katherine Blossom. Miss Lolita Armour, Miss Elizabeth Goodrich, and Miss Janet Pauling are three of the debutante assistants who were absent in the east for the football game.

Last evening Miss Pullman's aunt, Mrs. W. J. Chambers of 1100 Lake Shore drive, gave a dinner-dance at the Saddle and Cycle club for the assisting party.

Miss Marshall Comes Out.

Miss Virginia Waller Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding Lewis Marshall of 73 East Elm street, was presented to society at a tea given by her parents at the family residence from 4 until 7 o'clock. Assisting were Miss Laura Carey of Indianapolis, who is Miss Marshall's guest; Miss Emma Louise Stone, Miss Katherine Pierce, Miss Betty Hoyt, Miss Frances Miller, Miss Emma Blair FitzHugh, Miss Barbara Blatchford, Miss Isabelle Baker, Miss Lucy Jewett, Miss Carter Williams, Miss Helen Hoyne, Miss Erminie Mathews, Miss Elizabeth Adsit, Miss Elizabeth Folds, Miss Florence Taft, Miss Elizabeth Buckingham, Miss Henrietta Wurts, and Miss Ermina Carry.

Miss Marshall wore a gown of white tulle and net, embroidered in silver thread. She carried tiny pink rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. James B. Waller gave a dinner-dance for Miss Marshall, who is her niece, following the reception, at her home, 140 East Superior street.

BOY, 11, WANTS TO POLICE WEST SIDE JUVENILES

Clarence Lamb Says if Given Star and Club He'll Keep Neighborhood Clean of Minor Offenses.

Clarence Lamb, 11 years old, of 901 South Marshfield avenue, wants to join the police department, as he believes he can show "wonderful results" among children on the west side.

He appeared at the Maxwell street station yesterday and spoke to Detective Sergeant John Sullivan.

"I want to be a detective," he said. "If I am given a star, a uniform, and a club I will stop the boys in my neighborhood and on the west side from staying away from school and stop them from stealing apples from grocery stores and breaking windows.

"If you don't let me I am going to see the chief. I know he will. I don't want a gun."

"WIDOW" ASKS PICKPOCKET TO RETURN STOLEN NOTE.

She Worked Hard to Earn the Money and She Was Just Going to Collect It.

Can the heart of a pickpocket soften? "You took $90 and some papers from my purse while I was shopping yesterday," an ad, signed "Widow" reads. "You may have all or part of the money if you will only return the promissory note for $330. I am a widow and I worked a long time to save that money I had loaned. I was on my way to collect the note when it was stolen. Please, Mr. Man or Woman, help me out this time and show men that you have a little sense of honesty. The paper means everything to me. You cannot realize anything on it. Just mail the note to the address on my identification card, which you also took. I will not ask any questions."

The writer also admits the possibility that she dropped the purse and that some honest person may have found it. If such is the case she asks that the finder return it to the address on the card and receive a reward.

Arrested on Girl's Charge.

Homer Jones, 6023 Calumet avenue, a public accountant, was arrested in his home yesterday on a serious charge on complaint of Florence Lemkey, 8111 Cottage Grove avenue.

'ARBUTTLE STUNG US,' DYE FIRM'S PRESIDENT SAYS

Boy Inventor Cut from Pay Roll and Faces Charge of Grand Larceny.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Henry Clay Arbuttle, so-called 19 year old wizard, is an "ingrate," according to William Oesterrich, president of the International Dye company, and until last Monday Henry's employer.

Mr. Oesterrich is a bit "peeved," for on his own admission Henry has "stung" him. To what extent in dollars and cents Mr. Oesterrich did not say, but he does admit that the discoverer of the million dollar dye process "put one over" on him.

And as a result of all this Mr. Oesterrich is anxious to learn whether or not Henry has put it over on other people in other cities. Therefore he is conducting an investigation.

Faces Grand Larceny Charge.

Henry is no longer on the pay roll of the International Dye company of Milwaukee for a $10,000 a year salary. Neither are huge bonuses piling up for him.

On top of all this hard luck Henry faces prosecution on a charge of having stolen $10,000 worth of platinum and chemicals from his employers. Mr. Oesterrich will go to New York if necessary to help bring him back here.

This is somewhat of a blow to Henry, who now occupies a cell in New York, for yesterday friends of William Oesterrich and his father, August Oesterrich, president of the Milwaukee Novelty Dye Works, and nationally known as an expert on dyes, said Arbuttle would not be prosecuted on the theft charge. Instead, they asserted, he would be brought back here and given a chance to proceed with his experiments.

Employer Says He's Through.

"I am satisfied the boy is not upright," William Oesterrich said. "We are through with him. We took him into our company on the recommendation of a Chicago man who said he had expert knowledge as to the making of dyes.

"We were willing to take a chance. He was familiar with chemicals, but with all that has developed during the last few days we are satisfied he is not the genius he claimed to be.

"The statement made by Arbuttle in New York is ridiculous. We did not authorize him to solicit funds. We are doing experimental work on a large scale and we have plenty of money to carry on that work. We did not need any financial assistance from him.

"I cannot understand why a young man with the whole world before him should adopt the course he did. We virtually placed him upon his feet and gave him a wonderful opportunity to develop into a man of the future. It is certainly the act of an ingrate."

Arbuttle Claims Great Discovery.

New York, Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Henry Clay Arbuttle told reporters at police headquarters today that he had come to New York to work on an even greater chemical discovery that the one which he says earned him a salary of $10,000 a year and one-third of the stock of the International Dye company.

Arbuttle in the Jefferson Market court yesterday morning was held by Magistrate Marsh without bail until Monday afternoon to await extradition papers.

The police say he admitted he brought to New York the platinum which he is charged with having stolen. The found that he had been living in dairy lunch rooms and otherwise conserving his funds.

Says He Worked for Du Ponts.

He said that at the age of 14, while attending high school, he had worked after hours in the chemical laboratory of the Du Pont Powder works at Wilmington, Del., studying the chemistry of powder and of colors. Shortly after the war began he came upon an important secret in dyeing, which he still holds.

"I was offered," he said, "$500,000 for my secret after I had closed my contract with the International company. What I received from this company was a third interest and a salary of $10,000 a year. It was while I was working in Milwaukee that I made an even greater chemical discovery which I knew required extensive experimentation.

"I felt I could not work unhampered in Milwaukee or place this second discovery to the best advantage. That is why I left. I have not gone out splurging or spending money recklessly. I have not spent one cent of the money I got for the gold and platinum."

Late this afternoon the police received another telegram stating that extradition papers were on the way.

Two More Adamson Suits.

Two more attacks upon the Adamson eight hour law were filed yesterday by the Northwestern and New York Central.

COLD KEEPS WILSON INSIDE.

Slight Indisposition Prevents President Attending Army-Navy Football Game in New York.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—President Wilson, who was kept from attending the Army-Navy football game in New York by a cold, remained indoors throughout the day, although his condition was described as improving. He planned to take an automobile ride this afternoon, but decided it was too cold.

CHICAGO STOCK SHOW WILL SET WORLD RECORD

Living Exhibits Worth Ten Million Dollars to Be Displayed.

The greatest exhibition of the animal industries the world has ever known" will open Dec. 2 in Chicago, with $10,000,000 worth of living exhibits and with spectators from all parts of the United States.

With Europe at war, with its stocks of high bred horses and meat animals depleted almost to extinction, yet the Chicago exposition maintains its susupremacy in the truly "international" sense.

In addition to the strictly utilitarian value of the live stock industry, there will be spectacular attraction for the ordinary spectator in the nightly horse fair, in which aristocrats of the equine world, valued in all at $2,500,000, will be paraded in the draft, saddle, and harness divisions. Each night the "blue blooded" stars of the nation's most famous stables will compete for blue ribbons.

Argentine Delegates on Hand.

Trade and agricultural relations will be solidified with Argentina, it is predicted, as the result of the visit of a delegation of leaders in the beef industry from that South American republic. The delegation is scheduled to arrive in Chicago today. It is accompanied by Carl Vrooman, assistant United States secretary of agriculture, and Romelo S. Naon, Argentine ambassador and a member of the "A-B-C" conference which one essayed to straighten out Mexico's difficulties. The delegation is headed by Señon Carlos M. Duggan, who will judge the champion steer at the exposition. Pedro T. Pages will also be a judge in the beef classes.

From Canada will come numerous groups of stock raisers, government officials, students, and scientists. Fourteen state agricultural colleges will be represented in the students' judging contests, including representatives from Massachusetts and Virginia, never before represented in these competitions. Special trains bearing stockmen from western states are scheduled, including one of fourteen sleeping cars under the auspices of Louis Hill.

Judge W. H. Moore and R. A. Fairbairn, judges at the recent horse show in Madison Square garden, New York City, will come to Chicago to make awards at the nightly horse fair. Among the women contestants is Miss Constance Vauclain of Rosemont, Pa., a society leader in the east, who will drive her own entries in the saddle, hunter, and harness classes.

Some Competitors.

Other well known horsemen and horsewomen who will compete are:

JOHN L. BUSHNELL, Springfield, O.—Harness entries.

FREDERICK PABST, Milwaukee—Harness, saddle, hunters.

MISS LULU LONG, Kansas City, Mo.—Saddle horses, including My Maj. Dare, famous five gaited saddle stallion champion.

F. S. PEABODY, Hinsdale—Harness, saddle, jumpers.

TOM BASS, Mexico, Mo.—High school horses.

JOHN J. MITCHELL, Chicago—Harness and hackney.

MRS. LOUISE W. CAMP, Milwaukee—Saddlers.

PRENTISS COONLEY, Lake Forest, Ill.—Saddlers and hunters.

GUY WOODIN, Lake Forest—Saddlers and hunters.

MISS KATHERINE FARWELL, Lake Forest—Saddlers.

MISS MURIEL WIGGINS, N. Y.—Hackneys.

Education by means of motion pictures will be demonstrated by the United States department of agriculture.

DEMANDS MERCHANT MARINE IN GERMAN CLUB ADDRESS.

Vice President Rosenthal of National Business League Says U. S. Must Prepare for Trade War.

"The Need of the Hour—An American Merchant Marine," was the topic of Benjamin J. Rosenthal, vice president of the National Business League of America, in an address before the German club at its weekly luncneon in the Hotel Sherman yesterday. He said:

"The other nations have seen their trade gradually slipping out of their fingers into the hands of the Germans. 'Made in Germany' was the bomb that upset the equilibrium of the world.

"Germany is bending every effort to regain the business she has lost during the war, as soon as it closes, and the allies are making just as determined an effort to prevent Germany again invading their markets."

He cited America's tremenuous prosperity, and said it was not reasonable to suppose the allies would not enter a trade war against the United States. He urged a protective tariff and early action by the federal shipping board which would build up a big American merchant marine.

Handsome Music Cabinet, Adjustable Bench and 24 Rolls of Music FREE

These Player-Pianos were made to sell for $650—were sold for $650—and worth every dollar of that price.

These instruments are full-scale 88-note Player-Pianos, converted by a simple movement of a lever into a regular piano for hand playing. They have the latest improved expression devices—so simple and so perfect in construction that even a person who has no knowledge whatever of piano playing can reproduce the most difficult and the most beautiful compositions with the human touch of the skilled performer. You can emphasize a single note—or a phrase—or you can cut out the melody, at your pleasure, if you wish, and have only the accompaniment. The pneumatics do the mechanical part of the playing—the fingering—and you can put your own feeling into the music.

Finally—we give with every one of these instruments the regular Adam Schaaf guarantee. We say that these Player-Pianos are equal to $650 instruments—and we mean every word of it—and right now you can get one at this special price of $375.

THREE KILLED AS LAUNCH HITS STEAMER WHEEL

Tide Sweeps U. S. Boat Into Big River Ship's Blades in San Francisco Bay.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 25.—Three seamen of the United States naval supply ship Glacier were drowned in the bay today when the launch, in which thirty-six members of the crew were returning to the Glacier after shore leave, was crushed under the stern wheel of the Southern Pacific river boat Apache. The tide is believed to have dragged the boat against the propeller.

The dead are: William Heiberger, chief machinist's mate, Glendare, Cal.; R. E. Wiley, McKinney, Tex.; Grover Campbell, Middlesboro, Ky. The bodies of Wiley and Campbell are believed to be pinned beneath the wreckage of the launch, which lies in thirty feet of water within 100 yards of shore.

Responsibility for the disaster has not been placed. A court of inquiry will investigate. Capt. George M. Fouratt, skipper of the Apache, was arrested by the civil authorities late today and charged with manslaughter.

ILLINOIS GIRL'S HUSBAND KILLS SELF ON HONEYMOON.

Richard Henry Travers Commits Suicide in Toronto, Ont.—Charged with Forging Check by Bank.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Richard Henry Travers of Racine, Wis., who has been in this city on his honeymoon during the last three weeks, committed suicide by shooting himself through the temple this afternoon in the private office of the manager of the branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The tragedy followed the detention of the Racine man by the bank officials when he attempted to cash an alleged forged check for $411.

When Travers fired the fatal shot he was carrying a bouquet of roses which he intended to take home to his bride, who is convalescing after a serious operation.

He was married to a Freeport, Ill., girl three weeks ago.

KASIBIER PHOTO

BUDAPEST, Nov. 25.—Two American girls probably will play a rôle among the high aristocracy at the coronation of Charles I. and the coming new Hungarian court. These are the Countess Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, and Countess Sigray, formerly Miss Harriot Daly, daughter of the late Marcus Daly. The Countess Szechenyi has an excellent position in Budapest society and is much beloved for her philanthropic and charitable work. Both she and the Countess Sigray have come into town from their estates. The husbands of the two American women are at the front.

MRS. BOWEN HITS BACK AT LOEB IN OPEN LETTER

Says Action Taken by Woman's City Club Was Not Ex Parte.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, president of the Woman's City club, sent a reply yesterday to the letter of Jacob M. Loeb, president of the board of education, in which he criticized the club for not hearing him before passing resolutions against him. Mrs. Bowen states that the resolutions were founded upon the stenographic report of the proceedings of the school management committee and of the board of education, and that it does not consider it has been guilty of a breach of decorum by judging a man by his public record.

The Letter.

The letter to Mr. Loeb follows:

"In reply to your letter of Nov. 24, a copy of which also appeared in the press of today, the executive committee of the Woman's City club begs to state that such criticism of your policy as was implied in our communication of Nov. 21, 1916, was founded upon the stenographic report of the proceedings of the school management committee and of the board of education. It therefore seemed quite unnecessary to ask you to address the club and to state your position.

"Criticism of your policy in repealing the meritorious service clause does not necessarily imply a question of your sincerity as a public official nor that your aims are not those you so fully state in your letter.

Disregard of Law.

"The Woman's City club, however, feels under obligations to protest against what can but be interpreted as a disregard of the spirit and technique of the merit system when teachers whose work has been approved by the supervisory officers are dismissed by the board and all explanation as to the reason for their dismissal is denied to the minority trustees by the president of the board.

"For many years there has been a struggle in successive boards of education to place the engaging and dismissing of teachers absolutely in the hands of principals and superintendents who are paid large salaries for that express purpose, in order that the teaching might be judged by experts rather than by laymen, who, however admirable in motive and general standing, could not claim to be primarily educationalists.

Guarantee to Teachers.

"The growth of the spirit and technique of civil service is the one guarantee to the vast body of Chicago teachers that they will receive fair treatment and anything which tends to break down that guarantee forces them to adopt means for self-protection.

"All this was clearly stated in a communication sent to the board of education by the City club on June 13, 1916, followed by editorials stating much of the position of the Woman's City club, in which the board was urged to give careful thought to the abuses which might result from the proposed changes in the rules. Representatives of civic organizations who asked for the privilege of presenting their objections at the board meeting on June 14 were denied a hearing.

Action Not Hasty.

"In view of the widespread public discussion which followed we can hardly be said to have acted hastily, nor to have been guilty of any breach of decorum when we judge a man in public life by his public record.

"The Woman's City club simply differs with you in a matter of policy. You evidently consider that a display of organized opposition to the Teachers' federation is more important than the merit system in the public schools. We do not.

"Without bringing into the discussion your motives or the sincerity of your efforts, the Woman's City club believes that a vote of indorsement of the policies which your reëlection would imply would be unfortunate for the schools of Chicago."

Mr. Loeb last night said:

"They think the federation is not the more important consideration. I know it is. The federation has been usurping the powers of the high priced officials they speak of, and it is necessary to bring back the proper adjustment. I stand on my letter of yesterday and see no reason for amending what I then said. The club no doubt read over the reports of the meetings, but they must have forgotten some of the things they read."

DEMOCRAT WINS IN 24 YEARS

Guy E. Campbell Elected to Congress from Pennsylvania District After Republican Victories.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 25.—For the first time in twenty-four years a Democrat from Allegheny county will sit in the halls of congress. Guy E. Campbell, on canvass of the complete vote, wins the congressional election in the Thirty-second Pennsylvania district. The vote finished today gives Campbell forty-six more votes for the entire district than the present congressman, A. J. Barchfield.

National Ten Day Campaign Returns from Various Points Wired In to Diners at City Club.

A national campaign for 30,000 new members in the railroad department of the Young Men's Christian association concluded last night when 175 boosters dined at the City club and heard the "returns" which were telegraphed in from different cities. The ten day campaign resulted in 38,000 recruits. Robert Quail, general superintendent of the Northwestern lines, was the chairman.

FIRE IN ORPHAN ASYLUM

Two hundred and fifteen orphan children, inmates of the Marks Nathan Jewish orphanage, 1500 South Albany avenue, marched calmly out of the home yesterday when a fire was discovered on the third floor of the building. The Sale of Sales!

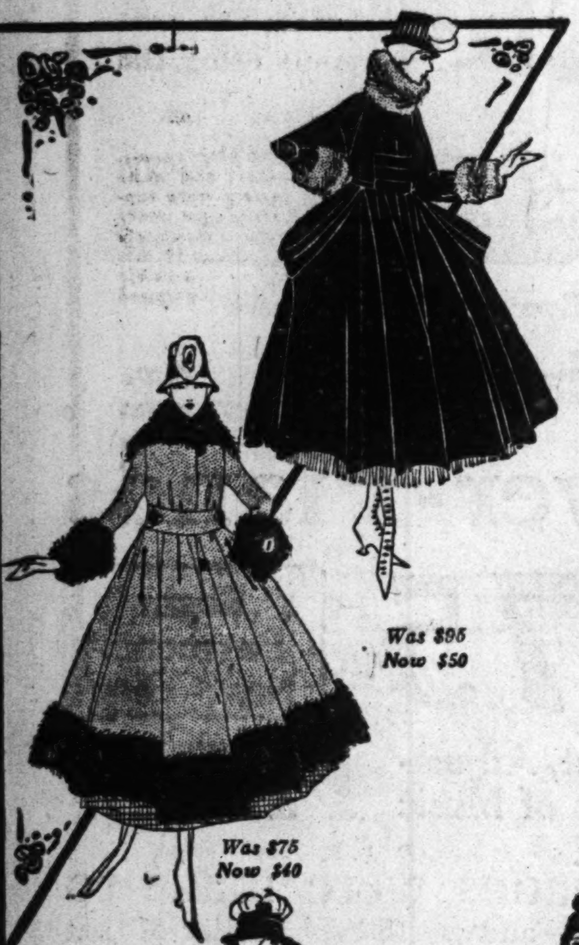
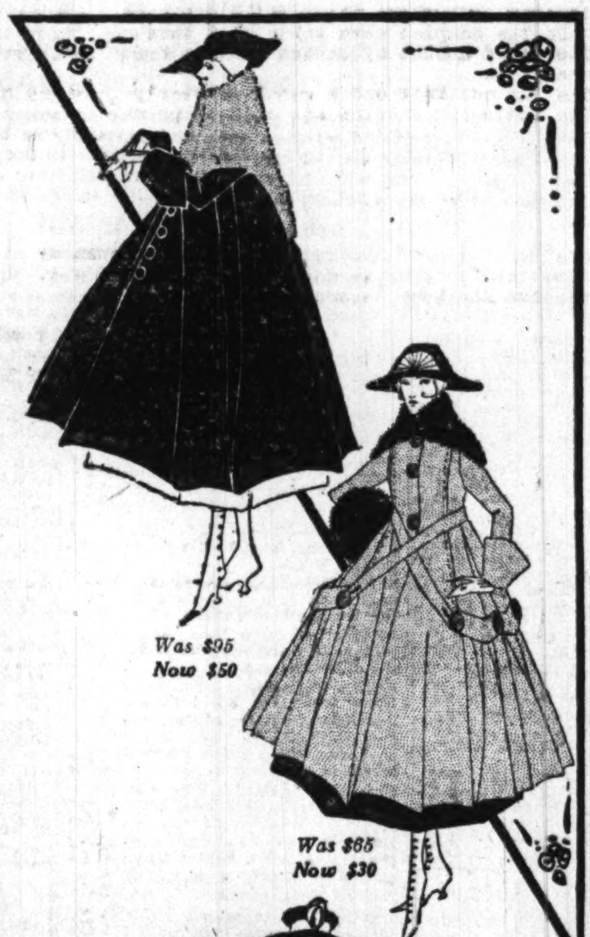
SERGE dresses, charmeuse, taffetas, Jersey dresses, wool velour suits, gabardines and some velvets—small lots, of course. Our desire to close them out—garments even to the price of $45.00—prompts us to reduce these to $20.00. You will find these garments exclusive and individual, and absolutely matchless in value, $20

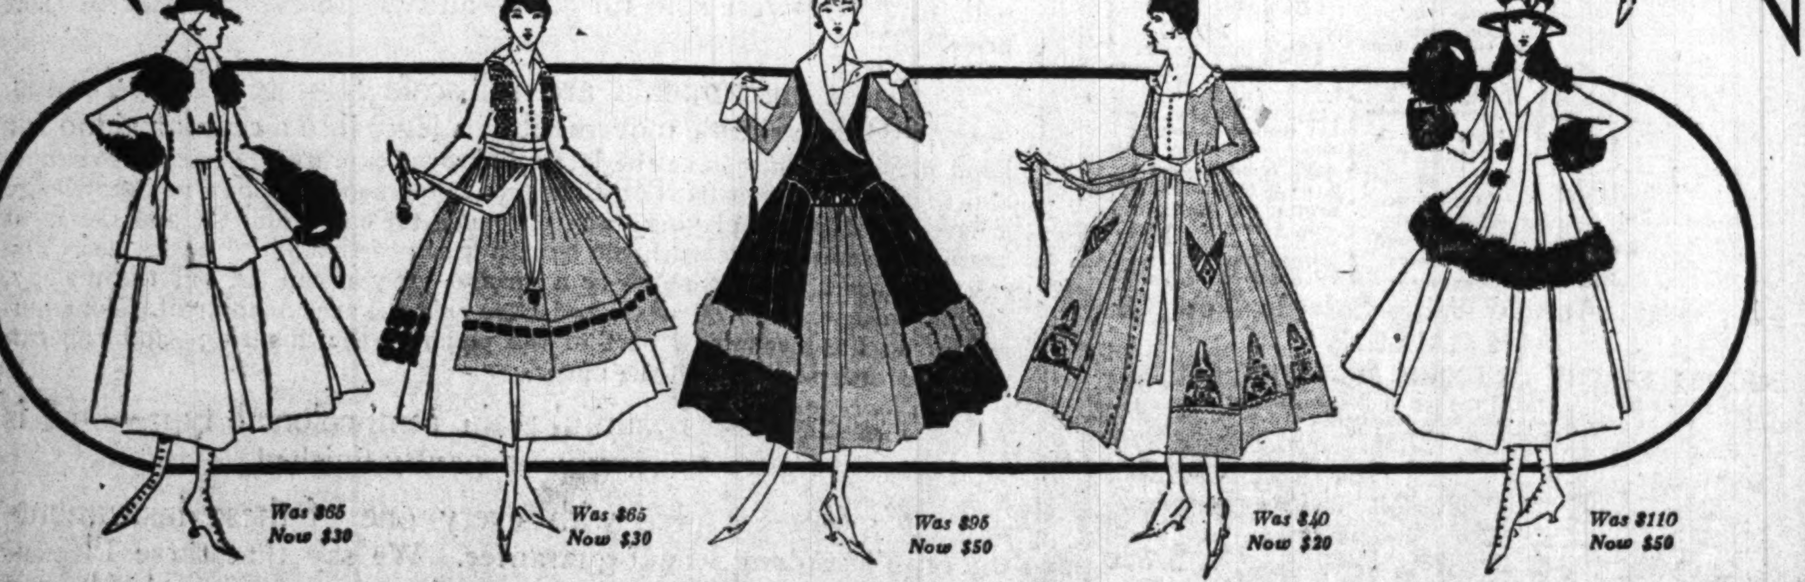
THE coats, suits and dresses at this price ($30.00) are unquestionably the greatest values yet offered this season by us. Almost every garment marked as high as $45.00 and more has been "blue-penciled" into this range. Individuality, refinement and fine fabrics are to be found in every garment at $30

SUITS, coats and dresses—each is a model of distinction. Not a garment in this lot but what was marked at least $55.00 to $75.00. Only the correct of Foreign or American styles are ever offered here. From a point of style, elegance and economy, these values are absolutely supreme. $40

THESE coats, suits and dresses—not a garment but what was marked $75.00 to $115.00. The coats, exclusive, soft, rich, warm fabrics, sumptuously fur trimmed. The suits, elegant in all the new modish silhouettes, surpassing all your conception of value. The dresses, irresistible, simple or elaborate, quiet and retiring, yet wonderful. These values are the best things done for the "elect" Chicago woman of 1916. $50







WE urge you to buy while selections are complete. Nothing will be restricted. All our best styles will be shown at prices totally unproportionate to actual values. We know that every customer of this store will admit that our prices are always lower than those prevailing elsewhere for the same class of high grade merchandise. So when a reduction sale like this is announced they are sure to find values even greater than those conservatively here stated. Sale opens Monday.

ELECT SCHOOL TRUSTEES, PLAN OF ALDERMEN

Reorganization of Whole Chicago System Is Proposed by Investigators.

If Ald. Buck's recommendations for changes in the Chicago public school system are accepted by the council committee on schools at its meeting on Tuesday, a special meeting of the city council will be called for Wednesday to consider the report.

The subcommittee, composed of Ald. Buck, Kennedy, and Byrne, which made the report, seeks sweeping changes in the present system, and asks for an entirely new school law governing boards of education in cities of more than 100,000 population.

"Grave difficulties have followed in the wake of long years of controversy," the introduction to the report reads. "It is time for controversy to cease. Continued fighting of individuals and factions cannot possibly result in cessation of bitterness, but must increase the poisonous effects of continued intolerance."

These Recommendations Made.

Then the report made these recommendations:

The board of education shall consist of seven members, elected at large.

The term of office of school trustees shall be six years.

Women may vote for members of the board and shall be eligible for membership.

The superintendent of schools shall be given a contract not to exceed four years.

Questions of educational policy shall be submitted to the public by referendum.

Trial for Teachers.

After a probationary period of three years teachers shall be removed only for cause, following a full hearing.

The board shall devote its attention more to consideration of board policies of general application and less to small details.

An administrative code shall be enacted by ordinance which cannot be temporarily suspended as may the rules. The powers, duties, and functions of all officers and employés shall be defined.

A single budget instead of two separate ones [educational fund and building fund] should be established. lished.

The board should abandon the practice of electing annually its superintendent.

Take Over Playgrounds.

That the board take over from the city and the park system all playgrounds.

Greater coöperation with the public library.

Appointment of advisory committees to consider the special interests of various groups interested in the schools.

Appointment of a commission to conduct a study of Chicago's needs for vocational education.

Continuation and development of the policy of the present board of establishing community centers throughout the city.

That the board take steps before the legislature to secure more funds for educational activities.

That the board place more emphasis on instruction in the duties of citizenship and patriotism.

Strip Council of Power.

That the city council be stripped of all functions and control with reference to school matters and that activities in all departments be separated from corresponding activities in the city departments. If this legislation is not passed and the council still is required to exercise financial control, the council should require a detailed budget from the board before levying a tax or appropriating money for school purposes.

Abolish the dual system of organization, with the superintendent of schools at the head of the administrative as well as the educational department.

The superintendent of schools shall select an associate superintendent in charge of business affairs, and associate superintendent in charge of health inspection and instruction and other associate superintendents as necessary.

The board should retain only the right to confirm or reject the recommendations of the general superintendent as to educational affairs, and the appointment, dismissal, and disciplining of employés.

Tenure of Superintendent.

In the report submitted by Ald. Buck were a number of things which the subcommittee professed to have learned during its investigation. It stated that as the members of the board are appointed by the mayor it is easy for them to believe they are responsible to the mayor rather than to the people.

"The election of a superintendent every year," reads the report, "with the result that he automatically resigns his position annually, and is required to line up eleven votes in order to hold his place, is a grave error in school administration.

"A grave administrative error was committed by the board in destroying continuity of tenure of teachers, based on satisfactory service. The educators who appeared before the committee were a unit in declaring that seeking to control, by rule or otherwise, the organizations or kinds of organizations to which a teacher may or may not belong is not a proper function of a board of education.

For the Teachers.

"The experts were unanimous in denouncing the dismissal of teachers by failure to elect or otherwise, without charges, without hearing, without opportunity to improve if inefficient, and without notice.

"There is no adequate machinery in the Chicago school system for recording efficiency of teachers, although such machinery is easily devised. A still more unfortunate lack has followed the failure to provide means of measuring the efficiency of the schools."

The Mayor's Views.

Mayor Thompson said that if the recommendation of the committee is that the designation of school trustees should be taken out of the mayr's hands, it would take a big load off the office.

"The school board has been a great responsibility to me and all my predecessors," said Mayor Thompson. "It has caused us a lot of trouble. I don't think, however, that the appointment of school board members by the mayor makes them so responsible to the mayor that they have not the best interests of the school children at heart."

Eckhart for Changes.

John W. Eckhart, vice president of the board, said that he has been advocating several of the proposed changes.

"As far as the council committee's finding that the teachers are right in their controversy with the board," said Mr. Eckhart, "the committee had decided that before it started its investigation. I think the superintendent ought to be elected for more than one year. By electing him for four years, he has an opportunity to establish his policies.

"A great many people have advocated an elective board. I think the personnel of the board of education has been the equal of the city council."

Merry Christmas
Happy New Year

Carrying its annual message of happiness and good cheer, the 1916 model of the Red Cross Christmas seal will introduce itself to thousands of Chicagoans this week.

The introduction will come in the form of a letter to each of 100,000 men and women from the Chicago Tuberculosis institute. In each letter will be 200 seals and information concerning the work of the institute during the last year.

Closely following the dispatch of the letters Red Cross seal stations wil be opened throughout the city, incuding the postoffice. Many of the stations will be managed by attractive young ladies.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20, 1916.

Berry Window Ventilator Co.,
538 S. Clark St., Chicago.

Gentlemen:-

We beg leave to report to you the result of Testing Air at Harper School, 65th and Wood Streets: Nov. 17, 1916:

Room	Window Ventilators	Temperature	No. of Pupils	Part of Room	Carbon dioxide in parts per 10,000
307	Closed	79°	46	N.W.	11.7
				S.E.	11.6
401	Open	68°	41	N.E.	6.8
				S.W.	8.4
				S.W.	12.0

This is a modern school building, of recent construction, equipped with the plenum system of ventilation. The rooms selected for comparison are near the center on the west side of the building. One room with the window ventilators closed and one with the window ventilators open were examined on each of the third and fourth floors. The stagnant condition of the air in the rooms where the ventilators were closed was noticeable to the senses when the samples were taken, and this condition is well bourn out by the increased amount of carbon dioxide found to be present when the air was analyzed.
The day was fair and a gentle westerly wind was blowing.
The following outside air conditions were shown by the U.S.Weather Bureau at the time the samples were taken, which was from 11:30 A.M. to 12 M.:

" 12 " " " " 12:00 "
Temperature at 11 o'clock, 36°.

The condition of the ventilators as to open or closed was regulated immediately after recess, which was 10:30 - 10:45, during which time all windows had been thrown open.

Very respectfully submitted,
THE COLUMBUS LABORATORIES,
Per J A Brenner

Wherever the Berry Ventilators were in use the air was of a grade fixed by the Chicago Department of Health as SAFE.

Wherever the Berry Ventilators were NOT in use the air was of a grade fixed by the Chicago Department of Health as DANGEROUS.

In any new movie theatre not more than 10 parts carbon dioxide per 10 M is permitted by the City Health Authorities, although they do permit as high as 12 parts in old theatres, yet one test in this modern public school showed 15.2 parts, and every test where the Berry Window Ventilators were not in use showed more than 10 parts.

If such stale, foul, poisonous air is found in a school in spite of an $8000 ventilating plant which costs $1500 a year to operate,

What Are the Conditions in Your Home or Office?

THE Harper School is one of the new type of buildings in which the most up-to-date system of ventilation was installed, at an expense of $8,000. It costs about $1,500 a year to keep this system in operation.

For test purposes Berry Ventilators were also installed at the Harper School in March, 1915. Owing to the recent reduction in the price of Berry Ventilators, a big school like the Harper can now be equipped for less than $350.

72% to 123% More Carbon Dioxide

The accompanying report of the Columbus Laboratories proves that the carbon dioxide in rooms in which the Berry Ventilators were not in use runs from 72% to 123% more than in rooms using the Berry Ventilators.

This was true in spite of the fact that the test was taken shortly after recess, when all windows had been thrown wide open for fifteen minutes; and while the test was being taken powerful fans of the big ventilating system were supposed to be driving fresh air into every room and exhausting the stale air every minute. There is an absolute rule in the public schools of Chicago positively forbidding the opening of any window during school sessions. Even if this rigid rule were not in effect there are many days on which it would be impossible to open windows because of cold, rain or snow, unless they were equipped with Berry Ventilators.

The Berry Ventilators in the Harper School have been examined by engineers and architects who have certified to their perfect condition. They have not required ten cents' worth of repairs in 20 months, and are as good now as when installed.

The Berry Window Ventilator admits FRESH AIR, but it admits NOTHING ELSE. It excludes snow and rain and dirt. It prevents drafts. It locks the open window against burglars.

The Berry Window Ventilator has proved its value in thousands of homes, offices, schools, libraries, etc. You need it, and you need it now!

To determine size of ventilator needed, close your window and measure (with rule, not tape measure) from window stop to window stop on inside of sill close up to window. The "window stop" is the perpendicular strip that holds the window in place. Any size in this table will fit window openings any part of three inches wider than the length of the ventilator.

TAX AMENDMENT PASSAGE UP TO NEW GOVERNOR

Probably Lost on Majority of All Votes Cast—Lowden Has Power to Save It.

The fate of the tax amendment to the constitution is in the hands of Gov.-Elect Frank O. Lowden.

The returns are sufficiently complete to indicate the proposal has not received a majority of all the men votes cast at the election, but that it has carried a majority of the votes cast for legislative candidates.

Constitutional lawyers who have been looking up the law have given the tax reform people an opinion that a constitutional amendment of this character requires a majority of the votes cast for legislative candidates and not a majority of all the votes cast at the election.

Question Up to Governor.

On the assumption, however, that it requires only a majority of the votes cast on legislative candidates, it would be entirely in the hands of the new governor to settle the matter, so far as the new legislature is concerned.

Under the law the governor proclaims officially the result of the vote on a constitutional amendment. He can, after going into the law cases himself, declare the amendment has carried and that it required only a majority of the votes cast for the legislature.

Should he do that the new legislature can then proceed to revise the revenue laws and the governor would sign the bills.

Look to Cook County.

There is still some faint hope that the final official Cook county figures may pull the amendment through on the total vote cast at the election, but its failure to win on this vote downstate practically removes this hope, it was stated at the election commissioners' offices yesterday.

The Cook county figures have not yet been tabulated, owing to the investigation of the fifty-two precincts which have been held out of the totals. Chief Clerk Egan said they might have the tax amendment figures ready today some time.

PRESENTS PLAN TO END FIGHT ON LINK PROPOSAL

Lawyer for Objectors Wants Whole Bond Issue Used to Pay Benefits.

Plans to diminish opposition to the improvement of Michigan avenue by the proposed boulevard link were made at a conference between Attorney George Mason, counsel for nearly 100 objectors to the improvement, and city officials yesterday.

It is estimated that if the plan is carried out it will save the city thousands of dollars and that work will begin on the improvement ninety days sooner than otherwise would be the case.

The bond issue voted for the improvement was $3,800,000. It was believed then that $2,900,000 of this sum would be paid out for public benefits, leaving the remaining $900,000 for preliminary and incidental expenses.

Wants It All for Benefits.

The city has already invested $1,000,000. Mr. Mason said that if the city will allow the entire bond issue to be used for payment of public benefits a horizontal reduction of 20 per cent will result in assessments against property owners, and that if this is done he will try to convince his clients that all legal technicalities looking to the defeat of the project should be dropped.

"This is our big point, and if we do not get it I think we can send the improvements to the scrap heap by way of a Supreme court decision," Mr. Mason told Mayor Thompson and the other conferees, who included Controller Pike, Corporation Counsel Ettelson and his assistants, Chester E. Cleveland and Eugene Dupee; Ald. John A. Richert, and Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements.

"If we get what we want we will drop all legal objections and place the city's case beyond all jeopardy. We will go farther—we will drop the objection suit against the use of the bond issue to pay incidental expenses."

"I think we are taking a big step in the right direction," said Mayor Thompson after the conference.

New Route Held as Club.

There is a possibility that a new north and south route along the lake front may be dangled over objectors to persuade them that their best interests demand that they be "good."

"It has been suggested that we abandon the improvement of Michigan avenue and build a tunnel, starting in Bellevue place on the north side, beneath the Chicago river, and emerging in Grant park," said Mayor Thompson. "If this is done traffic would be diverted and property values along Michigan avenue would not increase as rapidly as they would if the boulevard link plan goes through.

"The Michigan avenue property owners object strenuously to any such diversion of the traffic."

Surprise to Aldermen.

"Members of the finance committee were surprised when they found out that the entire bond issue was to be used for the payment of public benefits if the special assessment lawyers had their way," said Ald. Richert. "If the incidental expenses of the improvement are to be paid out of the corporate revenue the municipal finances will be crippled."

DAILEY WARNS OF POLITICS PERIL IN CHICAGO HOME RULE

Peoria Senator Admits City Should Have More Self-Government, but Urges Safeguards.

Chicago is entitled to a larger measure of local self-government, but care should be taken that politics does not interfere in the regulation of the city's public utilities under home rule, State Senator John Dailey of Peoria said last night in a statement to THE TRIBUNE. Senator Dailey, a Republican, is an influential member of the legislature and probably will be Republican floor leader in the upper house at the next session. His statement follows:

"It is my unqualified belief we should provide by organic law for a larger measure of local government for Chicago. Referring particularly to legislation affecting Chicago's public utilities, I am in nowise opposed to local regulation, provided it is not political. The prostitution of these business interests to demagogic and political purposes is the reason for abandonment of "aldermanic control" of public utilities. To revert to such control would be retrogression—to change to scientific, efficient, and business-like local control is quite another matter."

LONG PARDON SEEKER LIST DENIED FREEDOM BY DUNNE.

Governor, However, Commutes Sentence of Howard Steele, Convicted of Serious Offense.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 25.—Upon the recommendation of the board of pardons, Gov. Dunne has denied pardon or commutation of sentence in the following cases from Cook county:

Max Stenzel, sentenced November, 1912, serious offense; Peter Dulfer, August, 1904, murder; George Walter Barnes, sentenced April, 1914, murder; Herman Bell, sentenced November, 1909, murder; Joseph Trestik, sentenced April, 1906, murder; Peter Miller, sentenced December, 1911, serious offense; John Nadolski, sentenced May, 1905, murder; John Lorenz, sentenced May, 1905, murder; William Gaston, sentenced March, 1904, murder; Frank Kaminski, sentenced March, 1913, murder; Thomas Flynn, sentenced April, 1897, murder; Geressine Sellato, sentenced February, 1915, serious offense; Harry J. Walters, sentenced June, 1916, larceny; Emanuel Bloom, sentenced November, 1907, murder; Felix and Leopold Melnick, sentenced July, 1914, arson; Emil Guentert, sentenced January, 1913, murder; Frank Kalminus, sentenced March, 1916, larceny; Peter Moreth, sentenced May, 1910, serious offense; Tilden Peterson, sentenced March, 1916, unlawfully taking an automobile; Joseph Ralsky, sentenced September, 1915, receiving stolen property; Morris Livingston, sentenced July, 1916, assault with deadly weapon; Thomas Brake, sentenced July, 1913, murder; William R. Forsberg, sentenced April, 1916, larceny.

Upon the recommendation of the board of pardons the governor commuted the sentence of Howard Steele to expire Nov. 27, 1916. Steele was convicted in 1908 of a serious offense and given a life sentence. From letters on file it appears Steele was convicted solely on circumstantial evidence and there was every reason to believe that there may have been a miscarriage of justice in this case.

AGED CONVICT GETS PARDON.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 25.—Gov. Ferris has pardoned William Killemer, aged 69, the oldest convict in Jackson prison, who was sentenced March 2, 1883, to life imprisonment for murder. Killemer, who is too old to take up active work, will be taken care of at the Salvation Army home in Chicago, for which place he left, in care of Maude Ballington Booth, head of that institution, who was instrumental in securing the pardon.

Do You Drive a White Elephant?

IF you own a car you cannot drive all winter, you assuredly have a white elephant on your hands. Not only does such a car fail to give you the service to which you are entitled, but it eats up your income in interest charges, depreciation, insurance, and storage as well.

Fortunately, you no longer have to keep such an expensive boarder. Modern science has produced a motor car which will serve you unfailingly, unflaggingly, all winter long. This car is the light weight, eight-cylinder, Model 44, Oldsmobile.

The eight-cylinder motor, coupled with light weight, carries you resistlessly through deepest mud or snowdrift; the reason—a power impulse to every five inches of car travel, and a weight less than 2800 pounds. Gear shifting is rarely necessary.

The pressure of your foot on the starter button starts the car, unfailingly, invariably, in the coldest weather. Integrally cast intake and exhaust manifolds warm the fuel, so that the motor purrs as sweetly in zero temperature as in hot July.

A new demonstration in cold weather performance awaits your inspection of this car—a demonstration well worth your while.

May we ask that you investigate? Call or write.

WAR CHANGING PLACID LIFE OF GERMAN PEOPLE

New Lean Race Being Developed by Hardships and Light Living.

ARTICLE III.

BY MADELEINE G. DOTY.

[Author of "Society's Misfits."]

I snuggle down into my luxurious bed. I look about my room with pleasure. Every comfort is provided for. The silk draperies, the linen sheets, the silk elder down bedspread, all tell of Germany's former luxury.

War and poverty exist outside, but here all is comfort. I am loath to rise. Even breakfast is reassuring. There is coffee, saccharine, and a tiny drop of milk, two rolls, no butter but some delicious jam. It is last year's jam. This year's jam has little sugar.

As I start to leave the hotel I pause in the entrance to gaze up and down the famous street Unter den Linden. Thin streams of people are passing and repassing. It is Monday, but the atmosphere is that of Sunday. German week days now are all like Sunday. A little group of people is pressed against a big glass window. Here the latest war bulletins are posted. People always assemble at two spots—war bulletins and food shops.

Food Packages Are Fakes.

It is uncanny to see tragic eyes gazing into pastry shops and fruit stores. Meat is not displayed. I wondered why the butter and cheese stores were ignored. I tried gazing in one. They put up such a good appearance with their shining tinfoil packages.

Then I disocevered the reason. The packages are fakes. Each holds a block of wood. There is no butter or cheese in window or shop. Twice a week a tiny supply arrives to be distributed to the bearers of cards, and that is all.

As I start to leave the hotel a clerk detains me. "You must go at once to the police," he says. This is my first police visit. I didn't go in Hamburg. Nothing was said about it. This looks more than ever as though my companion of the train was known in Germany, and that while with her in Hamburg I was exempt. The police are friendly. I have no difficulty, but I am told to report again the day before leaving Berlin.

Must Report to Police.

My police visits in themselves make a story. At each new city you must pay these officials a visit. These gentlemen vary in their interest. Sometimes they want your life history; with others ten minutes suffices. The visit of departure is always more trying than that of arrival. Then you must state where you are going, to what hotel, and what your plans are. There is no chance for elopements. A single lady is perfectly chaperoned.

From the police I proceed to the American embassy. American embassies in war time are discouraging places. Their attitude usually is: "Why are you here? You'll only make us trouble. You'd better go straight home."

However, I have a young friend in the embassy. I impress upon him the fact that I am not going home. "I shall visit the police regularly," I declare, "break no rules, cause no trouble; but I'm in search of the truth, and as a free American citizen I mean to talk to every one I can from the kaiser to Liebknecht." He thinks the kaiser safer than Liebknecht.

"You'll be watched every moment," he says, "and the authorities won't let you see anything they don't want you to."

Visits Social Democrat.

As I leave the embassy I hesitate. The idea of spies is disconcerting. The first person I want to visit is a woman who is a member of the Social Democratic party. My errand is harmless; she speaks English and I want her to act as interpreter and teach me German. I pursue a zigzag course and, having doubled on my tracks, take a taxi to her home.

On this occasion I elude pursuit, but to do so continuously is impossible. The funny thing about German spies is that they dress for the part. They are as unmistakable as Sherlock Holmes. They nearly always wear gray clothes, a soft gray hat, are pale faced, shifty eyed, smooth shaven or have only a slight mustache, and carry canes.

One night my friend and I led them a chase about the city until midnight. We jumped from one car to another. It proved an exciting new game. Once we went up to a gray clad man and asked him if he wasn't tired. But spies grew angry when spoken to. German officials have no sense of humor. If they had I wonder if there would have been a war.

Berlin Like Country Town.

For several days I wander about Berlin letting impressions sink in. There is, as I have said, activity, but it is the activity of a by-gone day or a country town. Nowhere are there shining new taxis, prancing horses, and laughing people.

The taxis are the refuse from the front. They toss and bump you about. The carriages have been resurrected from the past. The horses are chiefly valuable as a study in bone anatomy. Poor things, I often gazed in their dinner pails. They never had anything but chopped straw.

As for the people, there is a somber grayness about them. They, too, are thin. I didn't see a big girth anywhere. Germany is stomachless. It isn't that people have nothing to eat, but all except the rich have too little. The food they have isn't the right kind.

Germans Growing Thin.

During the summer there seems to be plenty of vegetables, fruit, and a fair supply of black bread, but this without grease, sugar, or meal does not satisfy digestion. It's like trying to run a wagon without oil. It begins to creak. The German race begins to creak. As a whole, it is pale, thin, and sunken eyed. Sooner or later a crisis is inevitable.

Whether when it comes the desperate people will join the Von Tirpitz group and it will be one of ugly retaliation, or instead of an internal awakening and revolution depends on the attitude of the neutrals and the allies. The soldiers, as well as the civil population suffer. The front line trenches may be well fed, but the men home on leave or in barracks are noticeably thin. They are pale, weary, and without life. They also have no stomachs.

There is a popular saying among them, it goes as follows:

"DORRGEMUSE
TROCKEN BROT
MARMELADE
HELDENTOD."

I feel sorry for one spy. He stands on the street corner in the rain from 3 in the afternoon until 9 in the evening. I go out periodically to see if he is there. I simply cannot take him seriously. My friend and I get into gales of laughter.

I want to go out and invite him in to tea. He looks so miserable. But he would never understand. My friend lives in an apartment house. He probably still doesn't know who it is I visit. I insist on relieving his mind.

I get my friend to walk with me to the Adlon so she can be exhibited. She thinks it is dangerous, but we are doing no harm, and surely one cannot be arrested for talking to a Social Democrat. My friend's husband goes ahead to see what fate befalls us. He sits on a bench under a big tree directly opposite the hotel entrance.

Spies Seem to Be Everywhere.

Sure enough, there is a gray clad spy talking to the hotel porter. As my friend and I approach the porter jerks the spy's arm. "Here she comes," he says. It is terribly exciting. I feel as important as a heroine in a dime novel. I am almost tempted to enter into some plot. It must be so disappointing to these gentlemen to find me vibrating between the German Red Cross, the poor, and plans for feeding German babies.

But before I leave Germany the spies get on my nerves. What was at first amusing becomes a nuisance. I feel exactly as though I am in prison. I acquire the habit of looking out the corner of my eye and over my shoulder.

These spies are as annoying to their countrymen as to me. The people detest them. They grow restless under such suppression. Free conversation is impossible except behind closed doors. Between German spies and the spies of other countries supposed to be at large public conversation is at a standstill. Everywhere are signs:

"Soldiers: Be careful in your conversation on account of the peril of spies."

Soldiers are everywhere in Berlin. They are always coming and going. The cripples are not allowed upon the streets, but nervous wrecks are plentiful.

In spite of the concealment of the wounded, the population begins to understand its loss. One night I went to the station to see a big detachment leave for Vilna. All had been in war before. Their uniforms were dirty and patched. They sat on benches, clinging to a loved one's hand, or stood in listless groups. No one talked. They were like tired children. They needed food and beds. The scenes of farewell were harrowing.

Here was a young boy saying good-by to a mother and three aunts. He was all they had—their whole life. Here a father saying farewell to a wife and three sons, all under 17, or a mother in deep mourning taking leave of her last son, or a young wife with a baby in her arms giving a last embrace.

Silence as Soldiers Depart.

As the train moved out of the station there were no shouts, no cheers, no words of encouragement. Instead there was a deadly silence. The men leaned out of windows, stretching despairing hands towards loved ones. As the train pulled away the little groups broke into strangling sobs.

They were shaken as by a mighty tempest. Paroxysms of grief rent and tore them. They knew the end had come. A man may go once into battle and return, but not twice and thrice. Life held no hope. As I came away I stopped before the big building which conducts military affairs. It is known as the "House of Sorrow." On its rear wall is posted the list of dead and wounded.

The night was dark and still, but by the rays of an electric arc a few stragglers were running anxious fingers down the long lists. I stopped to count the number. The report covered five days' casualties—from Aug. 17 to Aug. 21. By mistake anmes occasionally are repeated. I dropped out several thousand to allow for repetitions. Even then the total of dead, wounded, or missing was 44,000 which had been wiped out in five days.

Bands Try to Cheer People.

The Socialists estimate that two and a half to three million men in Prussia alone have been killed, wounded, or are missing. No wonder the soldiers are desperate.

When the men march to the station on the way to the front bands play gay national airs to hide the depression. But music cannot cheer; the populace stand silent on the sidewalk. Occasionally a tear trickles down a cheek. The soldiers keep eyes front, faces set and rigid. There are no comforting smiles, no cheers, no waving hands.

One evening at midnight as I cross the thiergarten I pass a small procession of new recruits. Midnight, my friend tells me, is the favorite hour for seizing fresh food for cannon.

There is something sinister in choosing dark hours, when the city sleeps, for this deed. On this occasion the recruits number a hundred or two. Their ages vary. They might be fathers and sons.

Women Doing Men's Work.

Such is the fate of the men; neither is life any better for the women. They are to be seen everywhere—in the streets digging and cleaning sewers; on the road, with pickax and shovel, helping Russian prisoners relay railroad tracks; in the subways, clad in bloomers, acting as train starters; on the trains, wearing husband's motor cap and coat.

At night they come home to hungry children and empty larders. Their tiny savings go for bread and potatoes. The day laborers cannot frequent city feeding kitchens. They cannot afford it. Berlin prepared to feed 35,000. Last winter 13,000 ate at the kitchens. In the summer the number decreased to 8,000.

The meal served is a pint bowl of food, which is a cross betwen soup and stew. It contains potatoes, barley, rye, vegetables, or anything to be had, and on the meat days some odds and ends of meat. A bowl full . 10 cents, a half bowl 6 cents. A mother earning 40 to 60 cents a day cannot pay 10 cents a head for food. It is the bourgeois class that patronizes the kitchens.

Food Cooked in Vats.

I visited these feeding stations. A large central market turned into a kitchen prepares the food. Here are big vats in which the food is steamed or boiled in bulk. From here the cooked product is sent to feeding stations in different localities. Women of means preside over these places and conduct them well. The stewed mass is usually palatable.

Such places are a Godsend to the middle class, the small storekeepers whose business has failed, clerks, and stenographers, but for the unskilled laborer the price is prohibitive. The eating rooms are not large, for people come and go.

At noon I watched a little stream move in and out. They were all comfortably dressed. They paused to have their cards punched, potatoes, bread, meat, flour, according to what that day's bowl contained.

As I looked my eye was caught by two small children. They had crept in the big door and sat on a bench side by side, hand in hand. The oldest, a boy of 11, was clad in ragged, dirty coat and trousers. His face was streaked with dirt, save for a spot here and there cleansed by falling tears.

A small sister of 5 snuggled up to him. She, too, possessed only a boy's ragged, dirty coat and trousers. Her face was smudged with black, but it was rounder, with more color, than the boy's. Her baby eyes were a shining blue. She seemed to rest serene in her brother's care. It was evident the boy was fighting manfully for his little sister. The lad's face was pinched and blue and lined with anguish.

I called the attention of the women workers to the children. "They are probably waiting for scraps of food. We'll give them something by and by," I was told. "But," I protested, "those children are suffering."

With the aid of a friendly policeman I got their story. These were their answers.

"Hungry—terribly hungry. Mother dead; father in the war; had no home; slept anywhere, ate anything." I dropped some money in the boy's hand. His little clawlike fingers snatched eagerly at mine. I can feel their touch yet. Then he slid from the bench and started for the door.

But by this time the women workers had joined me. "Go get in line, and you can have some food," they ordered. The boy hid his money beneath his coat and ran at full speed toward the steaming food. Behind him came the tiny sister, her naked baby feet flying after his, her tiny baby hand clutching the end of his ragged jacket. I turned away; I couldn't bear to see them eat. God pity us, why must such suffering be?

Signs of Decline Everywhere.

Everywhere the signs of decline are manifest. In the windows of houses, on the front of empty stores are great signs: "Zu Vermieten" (o rent). For years merchants have been fighting for vacancies on the big thoroughfares of popular Berlin. Now they are to be had everywhere.

One Sunday I went to the Zoölogical garden, the popular resort of the masses. A band or two still played, but the grounds were not half filled. Everywhere were vacant tables, when formerly it was a privilege to secure one. Little family groups in black sat silently before a lonely glass of beer. Sandwiches were a rarity. The ices seemed to be made of colored frozen perfumes and were distressing internally.

In the iron cages there were still a few animals. Whether they have decreased in number I cannot tell. But they, like the people, suffer from a scanty diet. The monkeys have grown contentious. Their tempers suffer. They raised a most terrific racket and continually bit and clawed and fought each other. Ironic laughter seized me. They were so human. I fell to wondering whether mankind was copying them or they mankind.

The two or three lions in the outdoor cages were lean and restless. They crouched and growled or paced feverishly up and down. There was none of the lazy indifference seen in circus fed animals.

In a flash they revealed Germany. Before the war, under a benevolent paternalism, the people grew round of girth. Replete with good food and flowing steins of beer, feet and brains lagged. It is hard to be discontented and progressive when the stomach is full and the land flows with milk and honey. But suffering has come and a new race is emerging, a lean race, with active minds that begins to question German autocracy and militarism.

Boy Boasts of Meat.

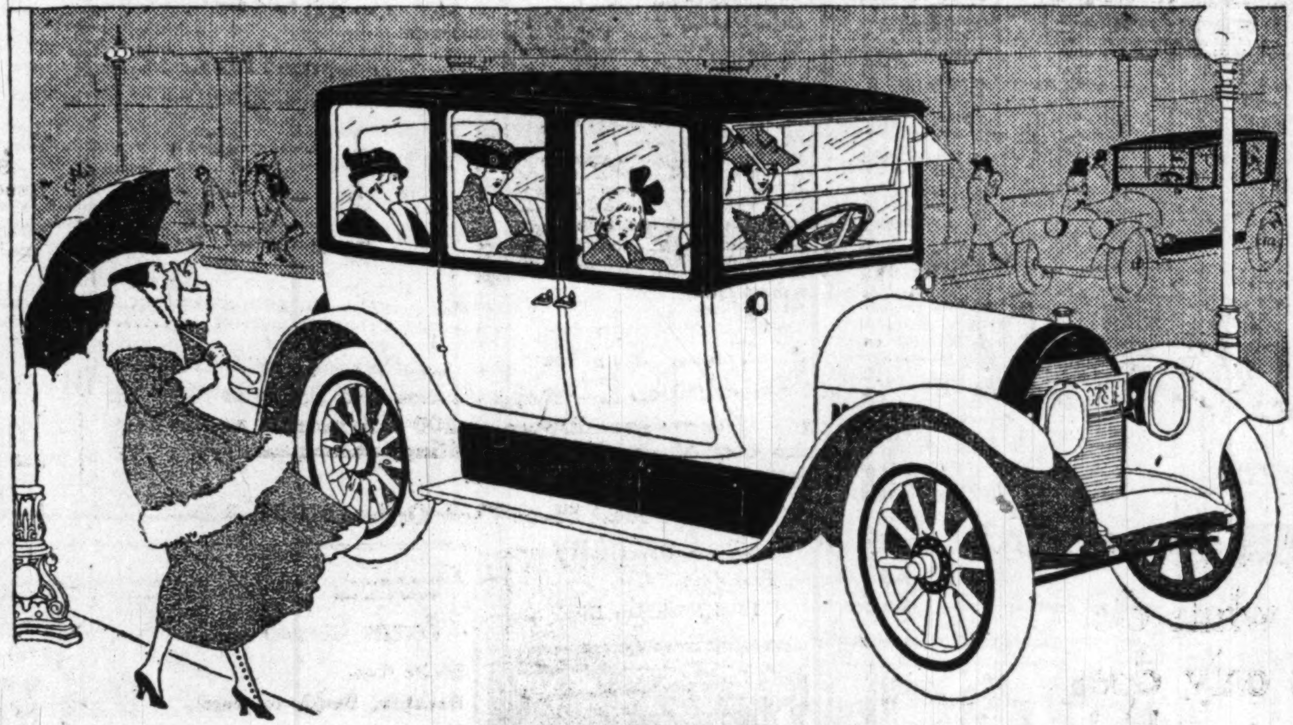
As I left the Zoölogical Garden a small boy passed me. In loud tones, boastfully and with unction, he declared to two enwrapped and envious listeners. "And I had a piece of fat for dinner," raising his fingers to measure, "it was so big and juicy."

To an observant person three things are everywhere in evidence, telling an unmistakable story. The flat stomachs, the endless signs "to rent," and the empty chocolate slots. The German race is surely sliding into a decline. What shall the world do? Shall it stand idly by, or shall it stretch out a hand of sympathy and understanding to these troubled people and help them free themselves from the domination of a military group they begin to despise.

The people do not wish to be ugly. They do not believe in a Von Tirpitz submarine policy, but if England insists on smashing and crushing the German nation, where is their hope! What is left but ugly retaliation. We are not yet angels!

GOES FOR WAR REFUGEES

The Hague, via London, Nov. 25.—Father John B. Deville of Chicago has started for Belgium on his fourth trip to bring out old men, women, and children to rejoin their relatives in America. Three hundred of these refugees are ready to leave in East and West Flanders. No one has been permitted to leave the districts by the German authorities for more than twelve months.



In Luxury the New Eight Cylinder Cadillac Satisfies Your Highest Ideals of Perfection.

"How could any car be finer?"—we hear on every hand. You've heard it, too.

"How could any car run sweeter, handle easier, ride smoother?" Imagination can find no answer.

"Will ever car be built more able, more eager, more filled with the thrill of exhaustless power?" No man today can hold out hope for more.

And to this utter mechanical perfection, the new Cadillac adds charms of beauty, of color harmony, of smart good style which all the world cannot outdo, for all the world was called upon to create them.

Master designers of two continents vied with each other to achieve for Cadillac new body styles which must remain the fashion for years to come. You've noticed them—the smartest looking cars—as they flash past noiselessly.

Master craftsmen from far corners of the earth have been brought to the Cadillac shops to put their patient artistry to work for your enchantment. Choicest fabrics from world famous looms give Cadillac interiors unmatched exclusiveness. Their like you cannot find.

Nearly every day at our store you will find a novel, extraordinary effect in coach work—startling in originality yet thoroughly refined in taste. In the Cadillac of today beauty is supreme.

But behind and beneath and beyond all these outer attractions the Cadillac gives you a chassis which all the world has copied and none has equaled yet.

The Cadillac Eight of today is the smoothest motor—bar none. It is the most powerful motor for its weight—bar none. It gives the Cadillac owner mastery of the highway in any situation—and none today disputes it.

And when you come to sober things like durability, dependability, low upkeep and economical operation—where is there another modern car even half proved compared with the Cadillac? You cannot find it. The Cadillac stands alone the car of certainties.

Of body types there now are twelve. Limousine, Landaulet, Imperial and Town Car at $3600 to $4000—the finest pieces of coach work to be had. For the owner driver the Victoria, Town and Country, Coupe and Brougham at $2500 to $3000. Open cars, Roadster, Country Club, Phaeton and Touring, all at $2080 F. O. B. Factory.

STATE ANNUITIES MET WITH DOUBT AMONG BANKERS

Want to Know More About Farm Loans in Insurance Business Elsewhere.

State annuity insurance has been suggested in THE TRIBUNE Investors' Guide as a remedy for the evil of poverty in old age. It was pointed out that whereas insurance companies generally and the savings banks, too, in Massachusetts which engage in the business are able to pay only 3½ to 4 per cent, the state of Illinois, by buying Illinois farm mortgages with the annuity fund, could pay 4½ per cent with adequate margin of safety.

The annuity plan provides that the beneficiary pay in a stated amount annually until he has passed his best working years. Then he begins receiving the annunity. The insurance companies pay on a smaller interest than the state might, it is argued, because a great part of their investments consist of high class bonds which seldom yield more than 4½ per cent.

Comment by Bankers.

A number of Chicago bankers who were asked their opinion of the advisability of the state government going into the annuity business gave the following interviews:

E. D. Hulbert, Merchants' Loan and Trust company—I know the annuity system is in operation in the savings banks of Massachusetts, but I haven't learned how well it is working. Presuming that it works well, I have no doubt bankers would approve it. Anything for the good of the community also will be for the good of the banks. As an illustration: Some years ago it was thought inadvisable to encourage savings depositors to buy bonds; it was thought that bond buying would reduce the deposits. Just the opposite has been the case. Our savings bank books now carry advertisements urging the depositors to invest in bonds when they have saved $500 or $1,000.

I can't say whether the Illinois bankers would care to adopt the plan, as the bankers of Massachusetts have. I should have to know more about the success of the plan.

Henschen Is Skeptical.

Henry S. Henschen, cashier State Bank of Chicago—I am inclined to believe the state could give only a very slight, if any, higher interest than the private companies now do. Many of the insurance companies, such as the Northwestern, are now in possession of large quantities of farm loans, and their rates for annuities should be correspondingly high.

As a general proposition, state insurance has not been successful. I am told the business done by Wisconsin has been modest. It seems to require the personal activity of agents to sell insurance; just the fact that the state is willing to assume the risks is no indication that the people will take up with the idea. I am opposed, too, to any assumption by the state of bankers' functions.

It appears a man can invest his own funds to greater advantage, presuming he has the necessary intelligence or guidance, than he can through the insurance company. Some years ago our bank looked into the advisability of doing an insurance business, but nothing in particular came of it. Before adopting the Massachusetts plan we should have to know something of how it has worked out.

Mitchell in Doubt.

John J. Mitchell, president Illinois Trust and Savings bank—As a rule projects managed by the state are ill managed because of politics. At the same time, this annuity plan has a commendable purpose. I should have to know more about how well it has worked elsewhere before I could pass my final judgment on it.

FOSS ADVOCATES ENFORCED DRILL AS DUTY TO U. S.

A strong word for universal military training was spoken by Congressman Foss before the Chicago Printing Crafts' association at their banquet last night in the Congress hotel.

"In the last analysis," said Congressman Foss, "we derive a certain right from our citizenship in this great republic. That right implies a responsibility upon us all—which we may not shirk—a duty. Actually I do not think that the most ardent pacificists in time of national danger would carry out the soothing philosophies they so glibly indorse at banquets.

"I bring this to the fore because I believe it illustrates quiet conclusively the entire fallacy of the argument that universal military training is militaristic. It is not—it merely means that we shall teach our boys to know how to fight, to know how to defend their country when their country needs defense. Our idea of universal military training is a defensive and not an aggressive one. It is patterned after the Swiss theory. Is Switzerland a militaristic republic? The answer obviously is no."

M'DANIEL DEFENSE SCORES POINTS IN MURDER TRIAL.

Woman Swears She Uttered Scream Credited by State to Wife of Missouri Prosecutor.

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 25.—Oscar D. McDaniel, county prosecutor accused of the murder of his pretty wife, the mother of his three children, sat in court today for the first time with the oldest of those three children.

The testimony brought out by the defense today cast doubt on the strong points brought out by the state's witnesses. Five witnesses testified to matters tending to show that the scream heard about the time Mrs. McDaniel is alleged by the state to have been murdered, was the scream of Mrs. Della Leslie, frightened when she was thrown too high in a swing, a block from the McDaniel home.

Mrs. Leslie testified she was in a swing near the McDaniel home, that when the swing was pushed too high she became frightened and screamed.

SEEKS TO EMBROIL U. S., JUSTICE COHALAN WARNS.

New York Jurist Who Was Associated with Dublin Rebels, Speaks Before Irish Fellowship Club.

Daniel F. Cohalan, justice of the Supreme court of New York, was the principle guest at a meeting of the Irish Fellowship club, held yesterday in the Hotel La Salle to arouse interest in the movement to establish an Irish relief fund.

Judge Cohalan, it is said, was associated with the leaders of the late rebellion in Ireland. He warned Americans of putting too much trust in England, and predicted its speedy downfall unless Britain "succeeds in its attempt to implicate the United States in the war."

It was announced that 7,000 letters had been sent out to women, asking them to sell tags on Irish tag day, Dec. 16.

2,000 Chicago People Urge You to Buy This Car

WE print below, as is sometimes our custom, a letter from a user of a Jeffery car. This letter happens to be from Mr. H. M. Scambler, Sec'y and Treas. of the Champion Auto Equipment Company of this city. Mr. Scambler knows automobiles. That is part of his business. And because he knows automobiles and their relative value, this expression of his opinion ought to be and we believe is of interest and value to prospective motor car purchasers in Chicago. Read, please, Mr. Scambler's letter:

November 11, 1916.

Gentlemen: The writer bought one of your Jeffery cars, four cylinder, Model 463, last April from your salesman, Mr. Ward, and after traveling upwards of 7,000 miles, it is of mutual interest to record the fact that the machine has fully answered all expectations.

I want to say that the upkeep has been moderate and repairs nominal, even less than I had expected, while your Service Department is highly satisfactory. Indeed, your readiness to adjust a dispute or make good any real or imaginary grievances should make the Centaur Motor Co. many friends. It follows then that I am a great booster for the Jeffery Car and their sales agency force.

This letter is unsolicited. Use it in any manner you see fit. Yours very truly, (Signed) HENRY M. SCAMBLER, Sec'y nd Treas.

Now the big point after all of Mr. Scambler's experience is not what he individually thinks of the Jeffery car, but that he has voiced in his letter the experience and feeling of almost 2,000 other Jeffery owners right here in Chicago.

We do not ask you to buy a Jeffery car on some performance or record, or what some one thinks of it two or three thousand miles away. We do ask you to buy this car on the strength of what your own neighbors have found it to be and what they will tell you about it.

We ask you to buy the Jeffery "Four" because for three years it has proven itself, here, right here where you can verify or disprove the claim, to be the best four cylinder automobile ever built.

We ask you to buy the Jeffery "Six" because no other "six" selling at less than $2,000 has ever matched it in performance and quality. This is the "Six" that went up Palos Hill, right here, on "high," with a load of nine men and then attained a speed of 70 miles per hour.

These are the things that should determine your choice. This is the testimony that counts.

RECREANT MATES LET WIVES GO WITH NO PROTEST

Saturday Is Default Day in the Court of Judge Martin M. Gridley.

BY AUDRIE ALSPAUGH CHASE
(Kitty Kelly.)

It takes two to make a marriage, in the general conception of things, but to have the fires of love cooled it takes only one to do a divorce, judging by the proceedings yesterday morning in Judge Martin M. Gridley's court. Saturday is popularly known as "default day," when suits are heard without the presence of the party of the other part. The morning presented a kaleidoscopic picture of ruined romance, for love must have led into these marriages that ended so abruptly on the rocks.

Incidentally, the masculine sex received, in the comments made on individual representatives, a very bad marital record. Of those cases occupying the morning, only two were brought by men against their wives, in each case the charge being desertion, with the difficulty laid at the money door.

"She wanted better clothes than I could give her and to go to dances and theaters that I couldn't afford," said each in substance.

Women Have Many Charges.

But the women charged desertion, drunkenness, and cruelty, and told harrowing tales to back it up. They were all young, nice looking, and nicely dressed with one exception, a Hungarian woman with a sweet smile, who did general housework. She came to this country and worked for the money to bring her husband over. He lived with her here awhile, then, leaving her "only the half a dollar to pay everything," went to Cleveland, O., sending word later that "he didn't want me to come. I wouldn't find him there, if I did."

One husband deserted quietly. In fact, that was what was the matter with him. "He came home and packed his grips without a word and went away," testified a pink checked, auburn ringletted Mrs. C——. "The only reason I know is that he grew tired of my constant pleading for him to speak to me. Weeks would go by when he didn't say a word. He drank frequently, but wasn't cruel to me—that is, he didn't beat me, but he just wouldn't talk. He was the most peculiar man I ever saw. He used to say, 'It's just my way; I can't help it.'" The girl's sister-in-law backed her up, and the judge dissolved the marriage made in 1911. This wife kept house, but there were no children, and she asked no alimony.

Shop Clerk's Freedom.

Love's young dream for 25 year old Mrs. H—— was shattered when two months after their marriage in 1910 her husband threw a stove pipe at her. On another occasion he threw a shoe tree. He was experienced in choking her and in their last domestic scene he figured as hitting her over the head with his fists.

She clerked in a department store during her marriage, and her husband, after spending his Saturday pay envelope, used to ask for the $7 she got on Wednesday. There were no children and she asked for no alimony.

She is as free now as such searing experience could leave her.

Husband Too Jealous.

It was an ill omened Christmas in 1910 for Laura M—— when she married Stephen. She soon discovered flaws in her prince. "He was a very jealous man. Anything I done didn't please him," she confided from out of the depths of the wide spreading black hat which shaded her fair har and slant gray eyes.

Shephen's conjugal creed, expressed to her family with whom they lived, was: "She's my wife, and I can swear at her and do what I please with her." The crisis came at a dance to which she wore a new blue satin dress, her mother's gift, for she loved clothes and Stephen did not share, even as a party of the admiring part, in this interest. Mrs. M—— danced and they turned the spotlight on her. Going home, the husband expressed a notion to throw her over a picket fence they were passing and clinched his attitude by declaring, "If ever I see you at a dance again I'll fill you full of bullets."

"He said I was too attractive to suit him," she stated.

There were no children, no alimony was asked, and that matrimonial episode was finished.

Child of Torture.

"He was so cruel to me I couldn't stand it," testified Irene M——, a young woman whose youthful prettiness was faded by her experience with life. The six month old Robert Charles gurgled in his grandmother's arms while his mother related how in December, after the marriage in October, 1914, her husband struck her on the jaw and knocked her down.

Striking her was a cultivated custom of his, and when she objected to his drinking or wanted to do something with her friends he practiced it. Kicking was another of his genial habits, and she bore frequent marks of it.

In the two years of marriage she left him four times, the last time a week before Robert Charles' birth, after he had abused her, and explained that things would be worse after the baby came.

She asked no alimony and was given back her maiden name. She is going to take her baby and go away where she can forget the horrors of her matrimonial venture.

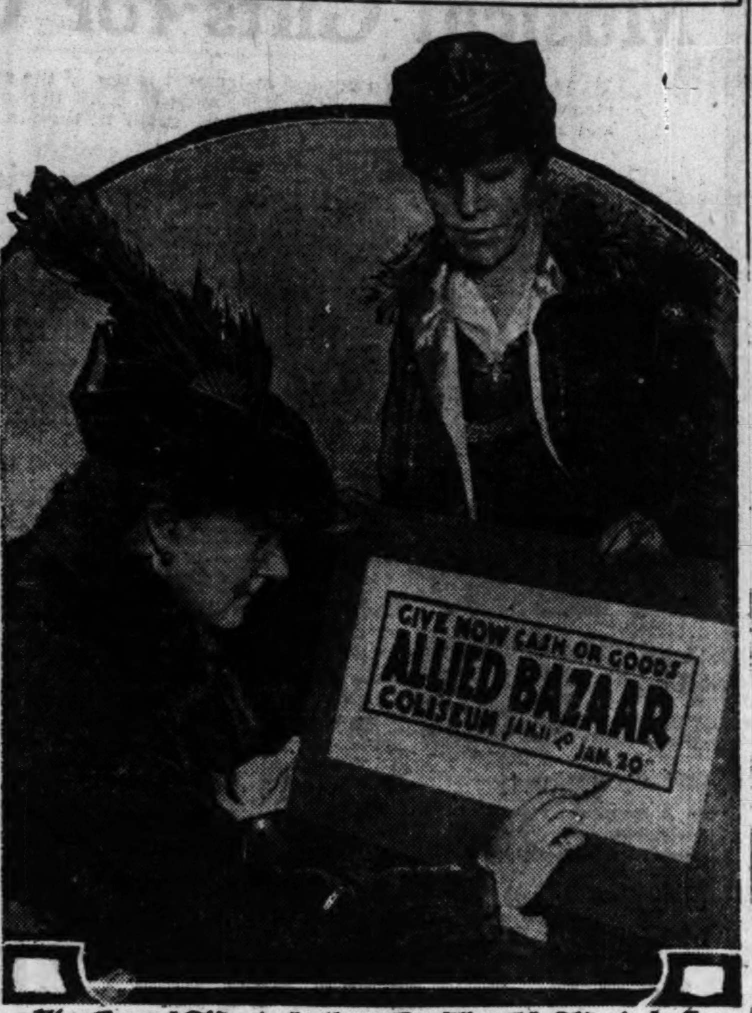
Such things were charged against these husbands on the word of the women and their witnessing feminine friends. No husbands cared enough to enter protest.

These are atoms in the mass of matrimonial misery washed up in the divorce courts. Something is the matter, whether it's marriage, or masculinity, or human kind. People should not have to suffer such sorrows nor should the fine happiness of love be so dragged in the mire for any individual.

In these bitter episodes of lost illusions there is much food for thought, for married people and engaged people, and want-to-be-engaged people. Taking thought is practiced in almost every other human activity—might it not be done more in marriage, and before marriage with more profit?

SOCIETY WOMEN TURN DESIGNERS

They Do a Bit of Poster Work for Allied Bazaar.



Mrs. Joseph Winterbotham Jr. Mrs. John Winterbotham
INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE

There seems to be no limit to the activities of society women who are working for the success of the allied bazaar to be held at the Coliseum from Jan. 11 to 20. For instance:

When the executive committee decided that posters were necessary the members were in a quandary as to just how to word and design them. No such doubt arose among the women.

"Just say what we want from the readers and have lots of color in them," said the women.

Simple indeed! So Mrs. Joseph Winterbotham Jr. and Mrs. John Winterbotham decided they knew exactly what was needed. They executive committee agreed with them. And here is the wording of the poster:

Give Now Cash or Goods.
ALLIED BAZAAR.
Coliseum Jan. 11 to Jan. 20.

And the coloring is immense! Red and green predominate.

FRED C. BENDLE SUICIDE WHILE INSANE, JURY VERDICT

Realty Dealer's Mind Deranged by Motor Car Accident on Day of Death, Finding.

Fred C. Bendle, 11420 Prairie avenue, real estate dealer, who ended his life on Friday by sending a bullet into his head while in a room of the Windsor-Clifton hotel, was insane, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

Testimony of two witnesses tended to indicate that an automobile accident Thursday deranged Mr. Bendle's mind. Two notes, written by him to relatives before he killed himself, were opened. Although one is addressed to the widow, "Dear Elden" (his son) appears at the top of the note. The other is to a sister.

Paul Harders, owner of a garage at 11252 Edbrooke avenue, where Mr. Bendle frequently sent his automobile for repairs, said:

"Mr. Bendle got his car Thursday morning and went downtown. He called up that evening and began telling me about an accident. I asked him if he was hurt. He said, 'Yes, the wheel flew off.' I had a difficult time getting information from him. He talked incoherently."

HELD FOR HOTEL ROBBERY

Two Men Confess Renting Room Next to Intended Victim, Then Taking Roll, Police Say.

Louis Bernstein, 822 South Wabash avenue, a newsboy, and Harry Platkin, 3353 West Thirty-eighth street, a clerk in a hotel at 406 South State street, were booked yesterday on charges of robbery and accessory to robbery, respectively, made by Harry Naseu, who told the police Bernstein and two other men robbed him of $165 several days ago while in his room in the hotel. He said the men saw him have the money in a saloon, followed him to the hotel, and rented a room next to his. Bernstein and Platkin confessed, the police say.

DREAMLAND RINK AID SLUGGED BOY, CHARGE

Youth Arrested for Speeding Unmercilessly Beaten Without Provocation, Detroit Man Asserts.

In arresting 17 year old Samuel Mendelson for speeding in the Dreamland roller skating rink Friday night, the police overlooked a brutal and unwarranted assault on the boy by one of the rink "aids," according to Arthur E. England of the Detroit board of commerce, who says he witnessed the incident.

"I saw this aid, whose duties are to help keep order, unmercifully assault and beat this youth without provocation," said Mr. England. "After he had pounded the helpless boy again and again, the boy took out his handkerchief to wipe the blood from his face, and this burly 'aid,' not content, struck him again.

"Other patrons of the rink began to protest, and a near riot resulted, and it appeared to me that the other 'aids' were looking for just enough excuse to justify them in giving a demonstration of their ability as prize fighters."

GIRL AVOIDS A HABEAS WRIT.

Florence McNamara Goes to Relatives Just Before Father's Papers Are Served.

Florence McNamara, 15 years old, was aided to avoid a writ of habeas corpus yesterday when it was shown she had gone to her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lew of St. Louis, just before the writ was served on Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Smithwich, 6624 Minerva avenue, where the girl had been staying. The writ was obtained by the girl's father, R. B. McNamara of Kansas City. Mr. Smithwich said Mr. Lew left the girl with him and when he got word McNamara was making trouble took her away again. Mr. Smithwich said the girl refused to go with her father.

CHURCHES GUIDE ALASKANS OUT OF BARBARISM

Many Denominations Help Eskimos and Indians to Become Christians.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

[Copyright: 1916: By Frank G. Carpenter.]

HOLY CROSS, Lower Yukon.—The Indians of Alaska are almost all Christians. For several generations the missionaries have been working among them, and the property and life of the stranger are now safe all the way from Ketchikan to Point Barrow.

When the Russians discovered the country the natives were savages, and ten years after we took possession Sitka and St. Michael were armed trading posts where the Eskimos were shut out at night that the inhabitants might rest in safety.

For years not a single whaler dared to stay overnight at Cape Prince of Wales, and the man who traveled through the wilds took his life in his hands. Today any one can go alone by dog sled through any part of Alaska and feel safe.

Work by Many Churches.

The mission work has been done by churches of many denominations, and it is still going on in all parts of the territory. The Presbyterians have stations at Haines, Sitka, and other places in southeastern Alaska, and they are working as far north as Point Barrow, on the shores of the Arctic ocean. The Baptists are converting the Indians along Cook inlet, and they have an orphanage at Wood Island, near Kodiak.

The Methodists have a girls' home at Unga Island, near Unalaska, on the edge of Bering sea, and the Swedish Lutheran church has missions at Yakatat, not far from Cordova, and at Golognin, on the Seward peninsula, and at Unalaklik.

The Moravians are doing a great work along the Kuskokwim river, and the Catholics and Episcopalians have mission stations in different parts of the Yukon and Tanana basins.

There is a Catholic mission at Fort Gibbon, presided over by Father Jeddy, who has been in Alaska almost twenty years, and there are resident Jesuit priests at Juneau, Douglas, Skagway, Ketchikan, Valdez, and Fairbanks, as well as at a half dozen stations along the lower Yukon, including Holy Cross.

Begun by Russians.

The first mission work done in Alaska was that of the Russians. They began to convert the Indians of the Aleutian islands more than a hundred years ago, and today there are more Greek Christians among the natives of Alaska than either Protestants or Catholics.

It is said that that church has more than 10,000 communicants, whereas the Protestants and Catholics have altogether less than 2,000. The Greek church has still something like sixty places of worship scattered over the territory.

It has a cathedral at Sitka, a large church at Juneau, and there are mission stations here and there throughout the interior. There is a mission at Anvik and one at Andreafski, and many Eskimos, Indians, and Aleuts believe in that religion.

Training School at Sitka.

The Presbyterians have done a great work in Alaska. The board of home missions sent Dr. Sheldon Jackson here about forty years ago. He established the Indian training schools at Sitka and a girls' home there, and in connection with S. Hall Young and others organized missions throughout the Alexander achipelago, including those of Wrangell, Sitka, Howkan, and Haines.

The farthest north mission in Alaska is at Point Barrow. It does work among the whalers and the Eskimos, and has had a great influence in that part of the territory. Altogether the Presbyterians have about sixteen churches, of which twelve are for natives.

It was Dr. Jackson who did most in the introduction of the reindeer into Alaska and thus established a stock raising industry which is making many of the Eskimos and Indians rich.

Care of the Reindeer.

The Society of Friends is working in the far north. It has three missions about Kotzebue sound, which opens out upon the Arctic ocean. Its school there is one of the largest among the Eskimos, and its missions are noted for their excellent work in training men to take care of the reindeer.

The work of the Moravians is remarkable. They are in one of the least known parts of Alaska. Their missions are along the Kuskokwim river and on the west coast. The largest is at Bethel, not far from the mouth of the river, a place until recently reached only by the native kayaks or skin boats.

Owing to the work of the coast survey, steamers can now go up the Kuskokwim for hundreds of miles and the mission supplies can come in on large ships. The Bethel mission was established more than thirty years ago.

Catholic Missions Active.

The Catholic missions are largely managed by the Jesuit Fathers. There are nearly one hundred stations, of which seventeen are provided with resident priests. Nineteen of the missions have chapels.

There are also a number of schools and several convents. There is an industrial school for Indian boys and an orphanage for Indian girls at Koserefsky, and there are schools for boys and girls here at Holy Cross.

Episcopalians Pushing Work.

The Episcopal church is pushing its work in Alaska. It opened a mission and school at Anvik on the lower Yukon in 1887, and it has steadily extended its operations in the shape of schools, hospitals and churches since then. Some of its work is devoted to the Eskimos and especially that at Point Hope, which is a station on the Arctic ocean above Bering strait.

Few appreciate the hardships that the missionaries have undergone in these far northern parts of our continent. Take, for instance, Bishop Stringer of the Church of England, now in charge of the work in Yukon territory, with headquarters at Dawson. He is known all over Canada as the bishop who had to eat his boots to keep from starvation.

Eskimos Now Christians.

Bishop Stringer's first work was among the Eskimos. He came from Canada to Hershel island, which lies in the Arctic ocean not far from the Mackenzie river. It is noted as a whaling station, and in some winters more than 700 whalers live there in order that they may start their business with the first break-up of ice in the spring.

Bishop Stringer's work was among the whalers as well as among the Eskimos. When he came there the latter were the tools of the whalers. They had no sense of property rights, and they were sunken and degraded to a remarkable degree. Through the Christian work of the Hershel mission, the character of the race has practically changed. The most of the Eskimos are now Christians, and they are advancing in civilization.

Boiled Boots to Eat Them.

I asked the bishop to tell me about eating his boots. He replied:

"We did not do that until we were out of all other food. We should have starved had we not eaten them, and it was only because the boots were of the kind used by the Eskimos that we were able to eat them.

"Boots made of leather tanned and dressed in the ordinary way could not be eaten. The boots we had were of sealskin dried without tanning. They reached to our knees and contained quite a good deal of hide.

"Our first experiment with them was not a success. They had been greased night after night and the oil had turned rancid. The taste was such that it was impossible to swallow or chew the skin.

"At last we tried boiling it and then toasting it. The toasting took away some of the taste, and after that we were able to consume them. With the exception of a few bits, we had eaten two pairs of boots when we were found."

SALOONKEEPERS FACE TRIAL

Prosecutor Miller Says He Will Start Five Suits for 1 O'Clock Violations.

City Prosecutor Harry B. Miller announced yesterday that the police department has collected evidence of violations of the 1 o'clock closing ordinance against the following saloonkeepers and that suits will be started against them next week:

BERT WHITE, 4351 Elston avenue.
MICHAEL J. CLANCY, 3814 Clarendon avenue.
FRITZ KOCH, 642 West North avenue.
JAMES McMEANS, 2800 West Madison street.
JAMES OZELLO, 14 East Harrison street.

All the evidence was collected within the last fortnight.

HE LET HER HOLD MONEY.

Former Officer of Canadian Mounted Police Asks Warrant for Woman's Arrest.

R. Colquhoun, former lieutenant of the Canadian mounted police, appeared before Judge Beckwith yesterday and obtained John Doe warrants for the arrest of three young women on charges of larceny. He told the court that he met the women in a Wabash avenue café Wednesday night and took $190 from his pocket to buy a drink. One of the women, he said, took the money on the pretense of holding it for him.

CONTROLLER PIKE DENIES EXPENSES EXCEED BUDGET.

Ten Per Cent Saving May Be Effected in December, Auditor Foote Suggests.

City Controller Eugene R. Pike and Mark A. Foote, the controller's auditor, joined in emphatic denials yesterday that the controller has allowed the departments to spend more money than was appropriated in the 1916 budget.

"Not a department has drawn a dollar over its allowance," said Mr. Foote. "The council did not say when the saving of 10 per cent was to be made and consequently the question of saving was in many cases put off until the last month."

Prophecies on every hand were heard in the city hall that in order to effect the 10 per cent reductions many city employés will be laid off during December.

Mr. Pike sent a letter to Mayor Thompson explaining the controller's position.

"It was impossible to save in many departments," Mayor Thompson commented. "In the health department, for instance, the wave of infantile paralysis prevented the health department from making the required saving."

HE HOPES HOYNE WILL ACT.

That's Mayor's Comment When Told of Boxing Match Held by Democratic Club.

When told of a boxing match said to have been held under the auspices of the Eighteenth Ward Regular Democratic club in West Madison street Friday night, and over which Assistant State's Attorney Michael [illegible]. Sullivan was said to have presided, Mayor Thompson said yesterday:

"I thought that was against the law. I hope Mr. Sullivan will give all the facts to State's Attorney Hoyne and let him take proper action against every one concerned."

The match was said to have been held "on the quiet." The mayor laughed as he expressed the hope that Hoyne will act.

Coal Man Beaten and Robbed.

John H. Thompson of 3638 Southport avenue was in his coal office alone last night when two men entered, and after beating him into unconsciousness robbed him of $2.30 and fled.

ELECTION BOARD TO QUIZ POLLS CLERKS ON FRAUDS.

Canvass Ends, but Investigation Will Go On with View to Action by Grand Jury.

Examination of judges and clerks of election by the canvass board with a view to straightening out mistakes was completed yesterday, and the election commissioners prepared to call several judges and clerks again to testify on alleged frauds. According to the commissioners much evidence was presented to them of violations of election laws.

"We only examined the judges and clerks at these hearings to get them to straighten out mistakes," said Commissioner August Lueders.

"Some testified they knowingly violated the law, while the others would not admit it, but the evidence against them was strong enough for criminal action. We will call these people in again and examine them more closely. I am satisfied we will recommend that State's Attorney Hoyne take cognizance of the evidence and also we will recommend to County Judge Scully that he punish some of the judges and clerks."

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS HOLD PARTY WILL CONTROL HOUSE

Congressional Committee Says Two Seats Won in Pennsylvania Give Majority—Republicans Deny.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—The election of M. Clyde Kelly and Guy Campbell, Democrats, to represent the Thirtieth and Thirty-second districts, respectively, in Pennsylvania, gives the Democrats control of the house, according to the figures of members of the Democratic congressional committee. Representative Oldfield of the committee said today that the Democrats have 216 and the Republicans 213, with six districts scattering or in doubt.

The Third New Jersey and the Second Michigan districts are still in doubt. The Republicans do not concede a majority to the Democrats.

Woman Overcome in Fire.

Mrs. Hannah Levine, 77 years old, 1214 South Halsted street, was slightly overcome by smoke yesterday when a fire broke out in the rear part of the first floor of the two story building in which are the offices of the Jewish Daily Courier.

DIXIE BRAND
DIXIE BRAND

YOU CAN OWN A Dixie Estate Near Tampa, Florida

And Enjoy an Independent Income for Life!

In the finest part of Florida, near the great and prosperous city of Tampa, you can now easily own a beautiful, profit-producing DIXIE ESTATE, planted to fancy Grapefruit, Oranges and Avocados (commonly called Alligator Pears, and the highest priced fruit known.)

Past and present prices for these fruits show an earning power of from $1,000 to $1,500 a year for one-acre Dixie Estates and proportionately upwards of that amount for larger size tracts. Even one-half or one-third of these returns, to be ultra-conservative, would show a profit of nearly 100% on your investment annually.

You Can Live in Florida or Remain in Your Present Home

Your Dixie Estate can yield you a splendid income without your doing a stroke of work on it! For under our plan of caring for your trees, fruits, etc., you do not have to leave your present home or employment unless you choose. If you wish, you can, of course, live on your Dixie Estate in balmy, winterless Florida, in a cozy home 'neath turquoise skies and amidst the glorious beauties of your flowers and your luxuriant money-producing fruit trees. Such is the life your Dixie Estate offers you and your family. Write for our free booklet.

A Few Dollars a Month Pays for All!

A few dollars a month pays for your entire estate—the land and the trees both. The payments are so small that a person on a small salary can make them without missing the money. Our free booklet explains our easy payment plan in full. Write for it today—mail the coupon or a postcard—and see for yourself that you are not paying out or spending this money but investing it in a safe, money-making property—a highly developed fruit grove, which, as statistics show, should in a few years bring you a substantial and permanent income.

An Investment for Independence

Here is one of the finest opportunities ever offered to any man or woman ambitious for a secure and plentiful future. Whether you are drudging along for a bare living wage—whether you are a merchant or a farmer—or whether you already have an independent income—you cannot in fairness to the duty you owe yourself of getting the most out of life, neglect this chance to own a Dixie Estate in Florida.

We plan to plant at least 1,000 of these Dixie Estates this year and bring them into bearing for their owners. As the Estates are taken up, naturally the prices will rise. So it is to your advantage to investigate this opportunity without delay.

Why a Dixie Estate Means a Happy Life

LOCATION—The best in all Florida, in the vicinity of Tampa—population, including suburbs, 70,000, growing so rapidly that it is destined to be become the Los Angeles of the South. Dixie Estates will be near paved boulevards, railroad stations, schools and churches.

THE SOIL is as good as any of the best fruit land in all Florida. You could not buy better land for fruit growing no matter how much you paid for it.

THE CLIMATIC CONDITIONS are ideal for fruit growing. A more health-giving, charming climate could not be desired.

THE TREES are the very finest obtainable—budded, pedigreed stock, grown by experts. Owning extensive nurseries and having years of experience developing Florida lands enable us to develop these Dixie Estates in the most approved up-to-date manner.

Fancy oranges and grapefruit are well known money producers, when brought into bearing by expert, scientific methods.

The avocado (commonly called alligator pear) is known as the aristocrat of fruits. The supply is so limited that in northern cities only the rich can afford to pay the extravagant price it sells for. In December, 1915, avocados sold in Chicago at the almost unbelievable price of $3.00 and $4.00 each. It is no doubt the highest priced fruit known.

ONE SINGLE AVOCADO TREE HAS PRODUCED $1,500 IN FRUIT ANNUALLY. When you realize what a wonderful fruit the avocado is, you will understand why we claim that in Dixie Estates (which contain 20% avocado, 40% grapefruit and 40% orange trees) you are offered a heretofore unheard of opportunity to derive a splendid YEARLY INCOME FOR A SMALL INVESTMENT. The proof is what you want!!! We have it and will gladly send it FREE.

YOUR DIXIE ESTATE receives expert and scientific care and attention for three years. A grove manager then takes charge if you do not wish to look after it personally. He will care for your Dixie Estate—its development and marketing of fruit—indefinitely for a percentage of the profits. You can receive the benefits of this truly marvelous proposition even if you never intend to live in Florida.

Write or Come into Our Office!

Let us send you the full story of Dixie Estates at once. Mail the coupon—or if convenient, drop into our office or have your wife call and we will give her the full particulars for you. ITALIAN SLAIN; NO ONE TELLS WHO OR WHY

Twenty-sixth Murder by Mafia Leads to the Arrest of Five Men.

The police in their investigation of the murder—the twenty-sixth Italian murder in the city this year—got as far as a game of tre-sette. They believe they know three of the players—possibly the entire four. Beyond that they found only shrugs, outturning of palms, "I dunno's," silence, mystery.

Five hundred Italians filed into the little room in the rear of Frank Reda's undertaking shop at Morgan and Polk streets yesterday and viewed the corpse pierced by three bullets. No one knew the dead man—of course not.

Found Behind Saloon.

The tragedy of the affair centers in the dead man—the rest is mostly humor, of a sort. He was found, his lips sealed in death, in the rear of a saloon kept by Joseph Ciricola and Angelo Marino at 1066 Polk street. He was shot in the neck, the right breast, and through the heart.

James Minardi, 915 Blue Island avenue, was stabbed in the face and went to the county hospital, but he was only slightly hurt. Peter Currillo, 911 Forquer street, had a bloody knife hidden in his cap when arrested near his home. But Currillo denied cutting Minardi. Moreover, Minardi said he didn't know who cut him. So there you are.

Five Italians are under arrest at Maxwell street. They are the two saloon keepers, Lorenzo Ramondini, 553 Mather street, Fred Mazzucca of Akron, O., and Currillo.

Information Lacking.

The prisoners were put through a rigorous sweatbox inquisition by Capt. Joseph C. Mullin, Lieuts. Patrick Gallery and Joseph D. McGean, and Detective Sergts. Philip Parodi and Michael De Vito.

"Ramondini, Muzzucca, Minardi, and myself, we play tre-sette," said Circicola. "Five strange Italian men come in. Nobody knows them. They ask us to drink. All right. While we drink, somebody shoots somebody else in the foot. Minardi gets cut. Everybody runs out. That's all."

That was little enough, but it was more than any of the others would admit knowing.

Circicola's coat was matted with blood. The police believe he carried the dead man out of the saloon and dumped him in the rear. Ramondi and Mazzucca had revolvers when arrested. One chamber of Mazzucca's weapon had been fired. Ramondini's was fully loaded, which did not relieve him of suspicion—he may have reloaded it.

Had Wedding Invitation.

The dead man had in his pocket an invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Alessandro Vallcento, 821 Sholto street, to attend the wedding of their daughter, Rosa, to Michael Caltro on Oct. 29. The Vallcentos said they could throw no light on his identity.

Ramondini, the police say, is an old Black Hander. He has a little notch in the rim of his left ear. An Italian informed on him. He caught him in a pool room, threw him across a pool table, and cut a cross with a knife on each cheek. As Ramondini ran out the door the victim fired a bullet which also wounded Ramondini so that little notch in his ear.

Ramondini was arrested three years ago for an attempt to extort money by a Black Hand letter from Cardimoni, a butcher in Desplaines street. He was shot in the breast May 12 at night at Taylor and Canal streets by an unidentified man. Tony Trumbo, his pal, was killed six months ago in Grand avenue.

Flying squads will operate this week in all the Italian colonies. The detectives will search all suspicious characters for guns in an effort to curb the campaign of murder.

PLAIN LAUNDRY SOAP

That's What This Beauty Entrant Uses for Shampoo and She Never Employs Cosmetics.

Miss Julia Blackfield

Miss Julia Blackfield of 6012 Dorchester avenue, is entered in the beauty contest to be staged at the Drug Trade exposition at the Coliseum Dec. 2 to 10.

Yet attend Miss Blackfield as she speaks:

"I never use rouge or cream on my face. I find that the twenty-four block walk I take to and from work each day has given me a good complexion. Ordinary laundry soap serves my purpose perfectly when I want to shampoo my hair."

ITALIAN FLEES CHICAGO.

Arrested in Flint, Mich., Charged with Carrying Concealed Weapons.

Flint, Mich., Nov. 25.—Declaring he was armed to defend himself against a Black Hander he met on a street in Chicago two days ago, Tony Linder was arrested today at the plant of an electric power company here, where he had been employed two days.

Linder showed a letter purporting to have come from the Black Hand and containing a warn to "keep his mouth shut," or suffer death. He said he left here last February after a threat of death and went to Chicago.

There have been two murders and two attempted murders, attributed to the Black Hand, in Flint since last February.

Manila Bay Hero to Speak.

Admiral C. B. T. Moore, one of the heroes of Manila bay, will be the guest of and will speak before the Hamilton club at a luncheon in the main dining room Tuesday. He will talk on "Universal Military Training."

CHAIN LETTERS RAISE $2,500 TO HELP SALESMAN

Friends Unable to Stop Flood of Dimes for Blind, Paralyzed Drummer.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 25.—Chain letters, asking for contributions of 10 cents each from traveling salesmen, have raised $2,500 for Frank Wetherbee, 58 years old, a former St. Paul salesman, who, blind and paralyzed, is living at Bemidji, Minn. Much of the money has come from Chicago.

The chain letters were started by T. J. Burke of the Northern Grocery company of Bemidji. Burke's sympathy was aroused when he found Wetherbee three months ago living at his ranch, twelve miles from Bemidji. Wetherbee, who is bedridden, was being cared for by his wife, who also did the plowing and harvesting and raised garden truck with only a little assistance.

Burke started the fund to raise sufficient money to care for Wetherbee during the winter. A trained nurse was obtained. Wetherbee has been expected to die momentarily since last spring, but lingers on.

Councils of the United Commercial Travelers have attempted unsuccessfully to kill the chain letters. The association has given liberally to the support of Wetherbee for several years and a St. Paul wholesale house for which Wetherbee one time worked, and other St. Paul firms have assisted.

The Last Word in Footwear Fashions

"LA FRANCE" Shoes are being recognized as leaders of footwear fashions. The styles embrace all of the novelties that are in demand in this interesting and important shoe age. Women who seek new styles have been well rewarded when they have tried

LA·FRANCE

These shoes do not necessarily follow the style of the day—they set the style that others follow. "LA FRANCE" Shoes mean fashionable shoes.

There is a "LA FRANCE" style for every woman—a "LA FRANCE" last for every foot. Those who want an extreme style will find it here; and those who desire something a bit more conservative will find it here also; while those who desire the sensible arch support shoes, will find an admirable number in the "LA FRANCE" family. The prices range from $4 to $10.

Four Days More
To Save $175 on the Hudson Super-Six.

On December 1st the prices on all Hudson Super-Six models will be advanced $175. All fine car makers confront the same condition as the Hudson. High-grade materials have enormously advanced. All must use lesser materials or advance the price, if their profit is now a fair one. Now is the time to decide your next year's car.

The Hudson Factory is just completing its current year's production. Some Hudson dealers have sold their year's allotment—some have not.

These are the last cars to be built from materials contracted a year ago.

On December 1, we start our new production. There will be no change in models. The only changes, if any, will be minor refinements.

The materials for these coming cars will cost us vastly more than the first cars cost us. That is due to market conditions. No quality maker can escape the higher material prices now prevailing. The Hudson price must advance $175.

If your dealer can supply you a Super-Six today, you will save $175 by getting any model, open, enclosed or all-season.

Fair Warning

We announce this in simple fairness. Any Hudson dealer who has unsold cars will be very glad to keep them. He can sell them next spring at the new prices.

But, as for ourselves, we won't advance the price until our cost advances. And that is on the new production, starting Dec. 1. Until then, your Hudson dealer, if he has cars, should sell at present prices. Go and see.

1917 Costs Are Fixed

It is the custom in this line to contract materials for one year in advance. It is now essential, else car makers cannot get them.

So, whatever the coming year's conditions, the cost of fine cars will not drop. All must pay the current prices for quality materials.

Not all the cars will advance, perhaps. Some makers may lower the grade of materials. Some whose profits are too high may cut them.

But all makers who use Hudson grade of materials must provide for this added cost. So the Hudson Super-Six, even at the advance, will undersell like-grade cars.

The Pinnacle Car But Not the Top Price

The Hudson Super-Six, in a hundred tests, has proved itself the greatest car built. It holds all the world's records which mean anything to owners.

It holds all the stock-car speed records. It holds the stock motor speed record of 102.53 miles per hour. It holds the 24-hour record of 1819 miles. It holds the Pike's Peak hill-climbing record—the greatest event of its kind—against 20 famous competitors.

It has twice with one car, in one continuous trip, broken all transcontinental records. It ran from San Francisco to New York and back in 10 days and 21 hours. No other car ever before attempted the round trip against time. Only the endurance of the Super-Six is equal to that run of 6972 miles—twice across America.

These things prove supreme endurance, due to an almost frictionless motor which is patented by Hudson. It cannot be imitated. And every Hudson detail—finish, luxury and quality—matches with that motor.

So the Hudson Super-Six must now be conceded the highest place in Motordom. Yet note how far it will undersell some cars, even with this advance.

But these are facts for late buyers. Today any Super-Six that is still unsold can be bought at the present price. And in the same models as next spring, save in possible small refinements. With such a saving one could well afford to even lay the car up for the winter.

See if your dealer has an unsold Super-Six.

MEXICAN CRISIS SHOWS NEED OF FORCED SERVICE

Volunteers Not Prepared to Fight Trained Army If U. S. Should Be Attacked.

ARTICLE VIII.

BY CAPT. HENRY J. REILLY.

A study of the mobilization of the national guard along the Mexican border shows that it took us more than a month to assemble 100,000 troops at the various points along the border. It shows that almost without exception the units mobilized were considerably below war strength, and in some cases even below peace strength.

A considerable portion of each unit consisted of untrained men enlisted at the time of the call or shortly thereafter and therefore valueless as soldiers. Of the balance comparatively few had served long enough in the guard to be considered other than partially trained soldiers. The majority of the officers, due to lack of adequate training, were unable to properly care for or lead their men.

The necessity to rely upon the voluntary system to produce the men not only prevented the desired number from being obtained, but brought into the service many men whose presence at home would have been much better for the country as a whole, while leaving in civil life tens of thousands of young men with no business or family responsibilities.

Wages Fail to Draw Men.

Due to the difficulty of enlisting cooks, horseshoers and other men in the various trades because of the difference in the wage offered them in civil life and that possible for them to obtain in the army, thousands of men suffered from bad cooking and thousands of animals went unshod.

Due to lack of proper organization into higher units, such as divisions with generals and staffs accustomed to handling them, delay and confusion resulted not only in getting the troops to the border, but in handling them after they reached there. Due to the lack of a sufficient number of artillery, engineer, signal corps, hospital corps and train troops, all these divisions were lacking in many of the essentials both for fighting and supply.

Due to the lack of a sufficient amount of equipment of various kinds, the quartermaster corps and ordnance department of the regular army were unable to furnish the animals, equipment and arms needed for even this small force of 100,000 men.

Transportation Problem Serious.

Because of a lack of the proper study of the means of transportation and a failure to build the proper strategic railways and roads to the border, large parts of it are difficult to reach with troops. In other words, only with difficulty, great effort, and at a considerable cost, were we able to more or less put where the strategic situation demanded, not an army, but an aggregation of miscellaneous units of various arms lacking in numbers, partially trained and badly equipped.

The fact that the possible enemy facing us was badly equipped, badly led and lacking in determination, was the only thing which saved us from humiliating defeat.

A vigorous enemy, properly organized, could have crossed the border in any number of places, driven back or defeated our small forces of widely scattered regulars and taken possession of such railway centers as San Antonio, El Paso, and the lines between these places and the Pacific coast before any considerable force of the national guard could have reached the border.

Not Equal to Trained Army.

Due to the seizure of the railways such forces as did arrive would have been unable to keep in touch with each other, and consequently could have been defeated easily by concentrations carried out by the enemy, first against one and then against another. Also, our national guard in the condition in which it was sent to the border could not have successfully resisted even an approximately equal force of trained soldiers.

Under our present system the guard, as it was on the border, is not prepared to face these troops on an equal footing, while the regulars would be seriously handicapped by lack of numbers, organization, and equipment.

Once more the bureau system and voluntary service have failed. Once more we have had demonstrated to us the absolute necessity for a general staff.

LABOR CONVENTION CLOSES; MILITARY TRAINING OPPOSED

American Federation Goes on Record Condemning Drill in Schools —Gompers and Officers Re-elected

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25.—The American Federation of Labor brought a notable two weeks' session to an end tonight by reëlecting President Gompers and all other present officers, and choosing Buffalo as the 1917 convention city.

The report of a special committee appointed to prepare a statement of the principles upon which the federation declares its position with respect to "militarism" was adopted unanimously.

"We are unalterably opposed to any form of physical training or any quality of mental education which would tend to inculcate the spirit of militarism," the report says. "The child's immature and impressionable mind must not be taught to think, except with horror, on the killing of human beings. To arouse the thought that any of their school hours are devoted to preparation for the possible use of arms against their fellow men is to brutalize their instincts and subvert the influence of the necessary lessons of humanity, peace, and good will, which it is the duty of our public schools to impress upon them."

Admiral Moore to Speak.

Admiral C. B. T. Moore, U. S. N., is to come to Chicago under the auspices of the Navy league to speak on different phases of preparedness. Tomorrow morning he will speak to the students of Lake Forest college on "The Navy," and in the evening he will address the Winnetka Men's club. Tuesday noon he will speak at the Hamilton club.

YALE BEATS HARVARD; MAROONS ROUTED

CROWD OF 77,453 SEES TRIUMPH OF ELIS, 6-3

Neville's Touchdown Gives Blue Eleven Victory, First Since 1909.

BY GEORGE DALEY.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Yale defeated Harvard by a score of 6 to 3 in the massive bowl today and Yale's football regeneration is complete. Seven years make a long span, but Tad Jones made it possible for Capt. Black and his men to bridge the gap in one short afternoon, and to beat an eleven from Cambridge for the first time since far back in 1909. The magic of Percy D. Haughton availed not.

And while a stirring chapter was being written in football history, the greatest and most brilliant crowd that ever paid to see any sporting fixture in the history of the world looked on with mixed feelings of disappointment and elation.

Battle Before 77,453 Spectators.

This crowd, which rose in ranks from the gridiron to the sky line, it would seem, numbered 77,453, and this regiment on regiment of men and women with blood congealed by the biting cold one moment and surging hot the next from sheer excitement, saw Robinson kick a goal from the field when standing on the thirty yard line toward the end of the first period and then saw Joe Neville rush the Crimson goal line less than one minute before the second period ended for the score which made a Yale victory possible.

This is a plain statement of facts, but adjectives are needed and some superlatives, too, to paint if possible some faint picture of the swaying, riotous crowd; of the rush of the game; of the penalty, damaging and dispiriting, which cost Harvard a touchdown and probably the game, following a dashing, inspiring run of twenty yards by the squirming, slippery Casey; of the fumble by La Roche which opened wide the door to Harvard's goal from the field; of another fumble by Harry Legore, which, contrary to the general run of errors and mistakes, opened the door equally wide to Yale's touchdown and Yale's rejoicing.

Gates Big Factor in Victory.

"Ti" Gates, who carried much of the burden of the game on his own broad shoulders, was the man who made Yale's victory possible by his sharp alertness. He it was who snapped up the loose ball and charged along for a gain of twenty-seven yards. And he it was who after planting the ball on the Crimson's twelve yard line and under the actual shadow of the goal posts, set the football stage for one of those dramatic moments in sport which are talked about for days, even for years.

It is necessary to go back a step or two that the incidents, stirring in themselves, which led up to this all too early climax may be interwoven. A mighty punt by Ralph Horween from behind his own goal line early in the game suddenly put Yale on the defensive, while a moment later a nine yard punt by Legore put Yale deep in a mire hole.

How Harvard Score Was Made.

A penalty against Harvard of fifteen yards staved off danger for the moment, but when La Roche fumbled Horween's next punt and Thatcher, with active brains and clutching arms, fell on the ball for Harvard on Yale's twenty-seven yard line, the danger returned tenfold.

"There goes the game," shouted hundreds in unison, and for a time it looked as if they shouted truly. Harvard jabbed and thrust along for nine yards in three rushes, but the Yale forwards fought back so fiercely that on the fourth down Robinson dropped back for a try at goal.

Standing on the thirty yard line, he received a perfect pass from Harris and with the coolness and precision of a Charley Brickley took all the time he needed and drove the ball true to the mark across the bar and between the posts. One side of the bowl was a madhouse.

Elis Refuse to Quit.

This score, coming as it did, might have discouraged some football teams, but not this Yale eleven and Capt. Black. It served as a spur almost to greater efforts.

The joy of Harvard came near the end of the first period, but before the second quarter ended this joy was turned to an ever growing anxiety, and for two reasons. An exchange of punts early in the second quarter gave Harvard the ball on its own thirty yard line, and then came a play which made all the difference in the world.

Eddie Casey slipped through a gaping hole on the left side of the Yale line, and then, twisting clear from three tacklers close to the side lines, doubled on his tracks, dodged or sidestepped two other Yale men, and raced seventy yards for a touchdown.

Penalty Nullifies Effort.

The bowl was alive. Many a hat was sacrificed; many a throat cracked, and then came a mumbling silence and a reaction more congealing than the bitter wind.

David Fultz, the umpire, stood far down the field, a lone but conspicuous figure, waving his arm for the return of the ball as relentlessly as fate. Harvard men could hardly believe their eyes. Yale men could hardly conceal their exultation.

A Harvard man has been guilty of holding, and so had made Casey's break through the line possible.

Dave Fultz blew his horn and waved frantically even before the play was developed, but few saw or realized this, and thousands marveled at a man so brave. In any case, Harvard was penalized fifteen yards, and a run by Eddie Casey which would have been immortal in Harvard football was converted into a mere incident of a hectic game.

Try for Field Goal Fails.

This excitement over, Horween punted from deep in his own territory a rather short punt of twenty-seven yards to La Roche on Harvard's forty-two yard line, and when the rushing game failed Legore took a long shot at goal by a drop kick, which fell short.

Then came another of those tense moments which had the crowd shivering as much from excitement as from the cold. Horween made another rather short bunt and La Roche made a fair catch on Harvard's forty-three yard line.

Charley Comerford was called on to tie the score for Yale on a try at goal from placement. He measured the distance with his eye, stepped back, and drove his foot against the ball. The thousands fairly gasped as it traveled on its way, and fully half those thousands groaned aloud when the ball hit one of the goal posts two feet above the cross bar and bounded back in the field of play for a vapid touchback instead of three much sought points.

Turning Point of Battle.

So Harvard tried again to punt the ball out of danger, and on two exchanges got it to Yale's forty-six yard line, or practically to the center of the field. The turning point followed.

La Roche launched an attack which gained twelve yards in four rushes for a first down. On the next play Legore fumbled, but before a groan could be manufactured in the Yale throats an exultant shout rang out. "Ti" Gates was on the ball like a flash, and, snapping it up, was on his way in less time than it takes to tell it for the Harvard goal line. Robinson brought him down and threw him out of bounds twelve yards from the mark so eagerly sought, and, as said some time ago, the stage was set for a dramatic if early climax.

For the next two minutes the huge crowd was divided in its admiration for the surge and drive of Yale and the grim, bitter stand of Harvard. Seven times Yale thrust and lunged, and seven times Harvard fought back, yielding only foot by foot to the ever furious and even desperate advance.

Fight for Every Inch of Ground.

One first down was eked out in four plunges, landing the ball on the two yard line. Legore then lost a yard, so fiercely did the Harvard forwards charge through. Neville got it back with a rush. Legore then squirmed along for a yard and a half with a quick thrust off tackle, and the ball rested a scant two feet away from the Harvard goal line.

It was now or never for Yale. It was do or die for Harvard. By the rules of the game Yale had just one more try, and the men faced each other with muscles tense and nerves vibrating. A hush settled over the crowd. It was more gripping than the wildest cheer.

La Roche barked out the signal. The ball went back to Neville, and with Capt. Black opening the way, he crashed over the line for the first touchdown scored by Yale over Harvard in nine long years and for six points, which, as it turned out, meant a Yale victory.

No Goal After Touchdown.

One-half the bowl seethed. No other word sufficiently describes the riotous, half mad shout of Yale men, who have waited so long for a turn in the football way.

Comerford failed to kick the goal.

PURDUE ELEVEN PLAYS HOOSIERS TO 0 TO 0 SCORE

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Purdue and Indiana battled to a scoreless tie before a throng of nearly 9,000 spectators on Stuart field today. It was a fierce struggle from first to last, the Boilermakers excelling but lacking sufficient punch to score.

Three times they menaced the Indiana goal, once being on the four yard line. At this point, however, a forward pass over the goal line went wild and the ball went to Indiana.

At the start Purdue kicked off and Indiana immediately punted. After making short gains Huffine tried to drop kick for Purdue from the forty yard line, but the ball fell short.

Slip in Mud Costly.

Indiana took it and Hess punted. Van Aken, Huffine, Abrell, and Faucett carried the ball down the field and a forward pass, Huffine to Hume, landed the ball on Indiana's twelve yard line. Here Huffine passed to Van Aken behind the goal line, but Van Aken slipped on the muddy ground and lost the ball.

Soon after Indiana worked the ball down to the center of the field and tried a forward pass. Buschmann fumbled the ball when he had a clear field for a touchdown.

In the second quarter Indiana braced and marched down to the Purdue thirty yard line. Here the visitors were forced to punt. Purdue's forward passes were good for gains and then Huffine tried for a field goal on the twenty-five yard line. He failed.

No Advantage in Third.

The third quarter saw the team seesawing back and forth, neither being able to gain any substantial advantage. Hathaway of Indiana tried for a goal from placement after Indiana had reched the Purdue twenty yard line on runs by Hathaway, Hess, and Erehart. The kick went wild. There was much fumbling in this period on both sides.

In the last quarter time was taken out frequently for Indiana. Huffine hit the Indiana line for substantial advances, but Purdue lost the ball on an intercepted pass. With only a few minutes to play Purdue began a steady march to the Indiana goal. Faucett, Abrell, Huffine, and Buechner all figured in the gains. Huffine finally plunged through for an eight yard gain, putting the ball on Indiana's ten yard line. Abrell made four yards and Huffine added three. Huffine then failed to gain. On the next play he shot a forward pass, but it was a touchback. The game ended soon after that. Lineup:

DRISCOLL IS RE-ELECTED AS 1917 LEADER OF PURPLE.

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Pattie Driscoll, star half back of the Northwestern eleven, was reëlected captain of the Purple squad here late tonight during a banquet at the Deshler hotel. Driscoll was cheered by members of the team and coaching staff who were in attendance.

"The reëlection of Driscoll was a very fitting thing," said Coach Fred Murphy. "Pattie is a very capable back and a remarkable leader."

Ohio State Beats Purple for Big Nine Title, 23 to 3

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Playing winning football by coming from behind when the punch was needed, Ohio State defeated Northwestern today on Ohio field, 23 to 3, and thereby won the undisputed championship of the Western conference.

The Buckeye eleven always was there in the pinches. It had enough reserve strength to make ground when it was needed, but to Chick Harley, the clever little half back of Ohio State, is due most of the credit. He scored two touchdowns, kicked one goal from the field, and was a power on the defense.

Boots Field Goal at Start.

In the opening period, after both teams were unable to make consistent headway, the ball rested on the Purple twenty-five yard line. Despite the best efforts of the Buckeye backs to make ground, either through the line or off the tackles, not enough ground could be gained to warrant any play on the fourth down, except an attempt to make a goal from the field. Harley stepped back to the thirty-four yard line and with Yerkes holding the ball, the player who learned to play football in Chicago drove the ball between the posts and over the bar for the first score of the game.

The Ohio rooters went wild, and as the game was played it looked as if these points would decide the issue. The teams struggled with all the physical energy and football knowledge in their makeups in the second period. The third period was about the same, with the exception that Northwestern had the best of the play. The Purple had the ball in the Buckeyes' territory most of the time, and if it had not been for a bad pass, Smith to Ellingwood, the complexion of the game would have changed.

Purple Loses Ball on Downs.

With the ball on the local's four yard line, Smith, the Purple center, tossed the ball over Ellingwood's head. Despite the bad pass, Capt. Driscoll recovered the ball and on the next play a forward pass, Kohler to Underhill, resulted in a fifteen yard gain. The Purple backs were sent against the Ohio forward line, but they were unable to gain and lost the ball on downs.

There was little to choose between the elevens until the final period, when Harley and Driscoll, unquestionably two of the best backs who have graced a western gridiron in years, started to work. After Northwestern had failed to gain after getting the oval in midfield, Driscoll dropped back for a field goal. Standing on his forty yard line, he drove the ball squarely between the posts for the points which knotted the score.

Harley Scores After Long Run.

After the kickoff the ball rested on Ohio's forty yard line, following an exchange of punts. The Buckeyes were unable to gain on straight plays, and instead of calling upon Harley to punt the little player was sent around the Purple left end for a run, which resulted in a touchdown.

Using a straight arm, which enabled him to shake off tacklers, Chick squirmed his way through the entire Purple team and planted the ball behind the goal for points, which put Ohio State in the lead and drove the fans into a frenzy of enthusiasm. He added another point by kicking goal, which made the score 10 to 3 in favor of the local team.

Registers Second Touchdown.

The second touchdown was made by Harley after his teammates had rushed the ball to the Purple fifteen yard line. Again he was called upon to make an end run, and he skirted the Purple right end for another touchdown. He failed to kick the goal, the ball sliding off his foot and missing its intended mark by a scant foot.

The last touchdown was made by Capt. Sorensen after the team had worked the ball down the field and inside the five yard line by hard and aggressive playing. The captain then was sent through center for a touchdown. Instead of Harley kicking the goal, Sorensen wound up his brilliant career by kicking the ball over the bar.

Purple Makes Desperate Rally.

With the battle going against them Murphy's men turned loose everything. They threw the ball around the field with reckless abandon, taking chances, for they realized they might just as well be beaten by a larger score. The realized that forward passes might result in touchdowns, thereby giving them enough points to offset the markers secured by the local eleven.

Coach Murphy shot substitutes into the game with instructions to try everything. The ball was thrown around the field in almost every conceivable manner, but the best efforts of the Purple players went wrong. No matter how hard they tried, no matter how the play was planned, something happened, and either the pass was intercepted or the runner nailed for a loss.

Big Night at Columbus.

Naturally this town is mad tonight. It is first time Ohio State has been in a position to claim a sectional title, and the fans swear by Coach Wilce and his team, which deserves a world of credit. It is a strong and powerful aggregation, one which will bear watching next season.

Northwestern played good football, but its best was not good enough. The Ohio line was much stronger, and its forwards stopped Kohler without gains on most of his attempts, especially those from punt formations. Even Williams and Underhill, who were substituted for Brightmire, were unable to gain when ground was needed, and it is sufficient to say the best team won.

Fully 15,000 persons saw the game. The little batch of Northwestern rooters made themselves heard by giving the Purple yells whenever Ohio cut loose with its cheers. The field was soft and slippery, but was an even break for both teams.

Buckeyes 10 to 8 Favorites.

Previous to the game Ohio was favorite in the betting at 10 to 8. When the Purple rooters arrived this morning Ohio was slow to cover their money. Just before game time the Northwestern band marched around the field, followed closely by the Ohio State band.

A small band of Northwestern rooters seated on the east side of the field shouted the Northwestern locomotive in a manner which made even the Ohio rooters stand up and cheer. The Buckeyes came right back with the "Old Ohio" cheer. Seated on the Northwestern side were Col Nathan McChesney, James A. Patten, and George T. Merrick, trustees of the Purple institution.

The Purple athletes were first on the field. They went through the usual stunts. Coaches Murphy and McDevitt personally looked after the final practice, which meant so much to Northwestern

ALL-STAR ELEVENS

Walter H. Eckersall's selections for the All-Conference football eleven will appear in tomorrow's TRIBUNE. His All-Western selections will appear next Sunday.

ILLINOIS HELD TO 0 TO 0 DRAW BY WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Playing that fighting brand of football characteristic of days of old, Wisconsin, by virtue of the most stalwart defense seen on Camp Randall in years, this afternoon battled Illinois to a scoreless tie in the closing game of the Badger's 1916 season.

Had not the slippery ball been fumbled by Kreuse right at the start of the fourth quarter, when the Badger backs were hammering the Illini within the five yard zone, the score undoubtedly would have been recorded in the Badger favor.

Tries Goal from Placement.

Honors for the first half of the game swung heavily on the side of Illinois. After an exchange of punts a thrilling snake run by Macomber of twenty yards, and dashing darts through Wisconsin's line by Knop and Sternaman, worked the ball up through Wisconsin territory for Illinois to within twenty yards of goal. Then with four chances to negotiate the distance, Illinois failed to drive back the Badger defense and Macomber essayed to kick goal from placement.

Wisconsin's rush forced him to hurry the play and the ball went wide. Carpenter then made a bad pass to McCrory, and a partially blocked punt gave the ball to Illinois again on the Wisconsin thirty yard line. Again Wisconsin rose to the occasion, maintaining an impregnable front, and McComber tried a second time at the bar, but his drop kick was only a roller.

Peril Badger Goal Anew.

At the start of the second half Illinois got the ball on an exchange of punts. A sprint by Macomber for fifteen yards and a long pass to Kraft again put the ball on the Badger fifteen yard line. When Macomber tried at a long end swing around right, Kelley, plowing through heavy interference, brought down the Illinois leader unassisted. On an identical try at the other extremity, Cramer dropped Macomber for a loss, and the ball went to Wisconsin when Macomber again failed in an attempt to drop kick.

Wisconsin then stepped from the defensive to the offensive and Kreuse and Edler went through center for long gains. A long pass of thirty-five yards, Taylor to Simpson, put the ball seven yards from the line.

Kreuse Loses the Chance.

On the first attempt Kreuse drove through for five yards, but dropped the ball, and Macomber punted out from behind his posts. After that there was an avalanche of forward passes by both teams.

For Wisconsin Red Kelley and Ray McCrory did the most brilliant work. Time and again Kelley spoiled plays for the Illinois men with the precision of an all western end. McCrory was cool and collected at all times, used splendid judgment, and outclassed his opponent at kicking. Macomber was the bear of the Illinois team. Lineup:

GOPHERS GAIN AT WILL; USE DAZZLING PASSES

Stagg's Men Plucky, but Are Crushed, 49-0; Get Few First Downs.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Minnesota's wonderful football eleven may have no claims to a championship title, but regardless of that it crushed the Chicago team yesterday at Stagg field in the final game of the season with the same abandon which it might have displayed in a September practice scrimmage. The final score was 49 to 0, and Chicago was so far outclassed that comparisons would be ridiculous.

In offensive playing Minnesota was so powerful that only three times during the combat was it compelled to punt. Minnesota was so powerful in defensive playing that only twice during the game was Chicago able to make a first down without the aid of a penalty.

During the first half of the battle the Maroons gained a first down because Jack Agar was able on one occasion to dodge around Minnesota's left end for about twelve or fifteen yards. In the fourth quarter, after all was lost, Graham succeeded in shooting a long forward pass successfully. At all other times when Stagg's men attempted to carry the ball they seemed to lose more ground than they gained.

Gophers' Power Stuns Maroons.

It was one of the worst defeats ever suffered by a Midway football team, and when it was over old admirers of the Maroons were of the opinion that Chicago had been defeated by one of the strongest elevens that ever played in the west or even in the entire country. No one could understand how this same team had been licked three weeks previously by the Illinois boys, who a week ago were decisively beaten by the Maroons.

So wide was the margin between the two teams that toward the finish Chicago rooters were given to cheering if a Minnesota man was stopped after plunging through the Chicago line for a gain of only five yards or a Chicago man was able to hit the Minnesota wall of defense for a gain of two feet. Never during the afternoon could the affair be classed as a contest. It was absolutely one sided from start to finish. The Minnesota team was so admirable that long before the end it had won the praise of every one present.

Adept at Any Tactics.

With its shifty plays and powerful backs the Northmen were able to carry the ball down the field consistently without ever resorting to forward passes or trick plays. But, acting as if such a method would be unfair to the people who paid to look on, the Gophers abandoned such straightforward methods of advancement and did some forward passing such as hasn't been seen in these parts in years.

Once the wonderful Mr. Wyman of Minnesota hurled a pass of forty yards with as much accuracy as if the receiver had been five yards in front of him. Another time he heaved one for at least fifty yards, and on several other occasions he shot passes for shorter gains. At times it seemed as if the Minnesota men actually were shooting those passes simply to thrill the crowd and not because they needed to do it to win the game.

Sometimes on a first or second down, when there was no reason to think a man would not tear through for a big gain on the next play, the Minnesota boys would execute a long forward pass apparently just to lend a thrill to the entertainment.

Impossible to Check Backs.

The Gopher backs seemed able to tear through Chicago's line almost at will. Seldom was the old fashioned end run tried. Instead, there were deceptive shifts and fake passes and unexpectedly some one would dash through a hole in the Maroon line, crash against the secondary line of defense and bound on for another two or three yards before being pinned to earth.

Once on a fourth down Minnesota lacked three and a half yards of the required ten. The ball was in Chicago territory, although about forty yards from the goal. Instead of kicking, as expected, Minnesota simply sent the superhuman Mr. Wyman through the middle of the line on a shifty delayed pass sort of a play, and Wyman not only gained the necessary three and a half yards, but added another three to it.

After the great Williams machine was warmed up it seemed absolutely impossible to stop. Outside of the first half minute or so of play it is doubtful if the Maroons ever would have been able to make Minnesota punt without the aid of penalties. Right at the start Chicago kicked off and Minnesota could make only about five yards on the first three plays, so the visitors punted. Minnesota didn't have to punt again until the last quarter, and probably would not have then except for penalties suffered.

Chicago's Line Melts.

The Maroon line, which held so beautifully a week ago against Illinois, seemed as nothing in the way of the Minnesota backs yesterday. Wyman, Hansen, Wise, Sprafka, and Long seemed to take turns in dashing through the holes with the ball. The Maroons backing up the line did most of the tackling. The galloping Mr. Sprafka didn't enter the fray until the second half was well under way. Because of

OLIPHANT WINS FOR ARMY OVER NAVY TEAM, 15-7

Former Purdue Star Scores Nine Points in Service Duel.

BY WALTER TRUMBULL.

New York, Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Scarcely had the 30,000 enthusiasts who braved the cold today settled themselves in their seats at the Polo grounds to watch the annual battle between the elevens of West Point and Annapolis, when Elmer Oliphant of Washington, Ind., wrote the conflict down as an Army victory.

The game was only a few seconds old when this stocky, light haired westerner clasped the leather oval firmly at his own ten yard line, and, aided by the splendid interference of his teammates, raced almost the length of the field to plant the ball in the shadow of the Navy posts.

Watch Oliphant, Cry of Battle.

Thereafter it was not the Annapolis players alone who cried "Watch Oliphant"—those words rose as an exclamation to the lips of all in that vast assemblage. They were uttered triumphantly from the Army side, and ofttimes despairingly from the south stand, where the Blue and Gold of the Navy shone bright in banner and ribbon and flower against the gray background of chill concrete.

The score was 15 to 7 in favor of West Point, and the Purdue projectile was directly responsible for nine of those fifteen points. Without his efforts it is far from certain that his team would have been victorious, as after a bad start the Annapolis men came back in whirlwind fashion and in the latter part of the game fought their opponents to a standstill.

Scores Almost from Kickoff.

The Army won the toss and took the west goal to obtain the advantage of the wind. Capt. Ward of the Navy carefully bounced the ball on the little mound of earth at the center of his own forty yard line, then booted it violently toward the Army goal.

Oliphant received it on West Point's ten yard line and gathered it to his bosom. He was in third speed with the celerity of Dario Resta starting an automobile race. His comrades, seeing he was very busy indeed, made up their minds he should not be annoyed by any members of the opposing team. So splendid was the interference they furnished him that, as, after swerving, he charged up the left side of the field, no Navy tackler got his hands on him until he had run eighty-three yards. On the Navy's seven yard line a middy finally reached him and brought him to earth.

This only staved off the inevitable score for a moment. Vidal gained four yards on the first plunge of the line, then Oliphant completed his work by taking the ball over for a touchdown. From rather a hard angle he failed to kick the goal.

Army Gets Placement Goal.

West Point's next score was a goal from placement kick and its final score was a touchdown. The goal was missed.

Annapolis made its only score shortly after the beginning of the second half. With the ball on the Army's twenty-seven yard line, Vidal dropped back to punt. Goodstein broke through the West Point line and blocked the kick. Snatching up the bounding ball, he crossed the intervening space between that point and the Army goal line before any tackler could reach him. Reifel kicked the goal.

This was the first touchdown scored by the Navy against the Army since 1907. It put new life into the Navy men, and from that time until the close of the battle they fought desperately to turn defeat into victory. Had it not been for Oliphant's sensational run which opened the game they might have succeeded.

In the Hudson river, a fleet of sixteen battleships and lesser fighting craft had dropped anchor to give their men and officers a chance to see the game, and it was said that about 10,000 were granted shore leave for this purpose.

Lansing Represents President.

Secretary Lansing was there, representing President Wilson, who had a cold and must have been lonesome in Washington, for all his official staff who could get away saw the annual classic. Secretary Baker occupied a box on the Army side and walked out to midfield between halves to shake hands with and extend condolences to Secretary Daniels. Postmaster General Burleson and Secretaries Wilson, McAdoo, Redfield, and former Secretary Garrison occupied boxes and distracted attention from the struggle which the teams waged on the gridiron.

The gold braid section included Admiral H. T. Mayo, Rear Admirals Fletcher, Usher, Sigsbee, Peary, and others of equal or lesser rank; Gen. Leonard Wood, Gen. Crozier, Gen. Scott, and others, including several dozen colonels, majors, captains, and the like.

an injury he was left on the bench, while Wise performed for him. Sprafka finally was entered just so the crowd could see him, and, although handicapped by injury, he was good enough to star in such a fray.

It would be difficult to pick any individual star in the Minnesota crew. One felt sure he hadn't seen any such dashing play at quarter back as was displayed by the small but alert Mr. Long. It seemed as if there could not be better half backing than was shown by Hansen, Wise, and Sprafka, and one felt certain that no man lived who could have excelled the fullbacking of Wyman.

Play of Line Faultless.

One expected great things of the renowned Mr. Baston at left end, but he didn't show any more brilliancy than did his mate, Mr. Flynn, at the other end, who plucked two of Wyman's long distance passes. The line from tackle to tackle was faultless, Mr. Mayer gaining added distinction by kicking seven goals after touchdown in seven chances. The whole Minnesota aggregation played as if it were one unit.

The brilliancy of the Chicago players, which showed so well a week ago, never was visible. At times one actually thought the Chicago men stopped or hesitated to avoid being hurled too severely to earth by the speedy Minnesotans. If Chicago had any new things to uncover, it didn't show them. There were two or three spread plays not seen before, but there was nothing attempted that even affected the defense of the Gophers.

After about one-half of the first quarter had been played, there was little hope left on the Maroon side. When Minnesota failed to gain right after the kickoff, Wyman punted and from the twenty yard line Chicago started. Agar and Pershing lost five yards trying end runs, which had worked on Purdue, and then Agar punted.

Minnesota Marches to Goal.

Minnesota took the ball in its own territory and ripped and tore its way through the Chicago line clear to the goal. There was another kickoff, and again Minnesota ripped and tore its way down the field, this time hastening the touchdown by a long forward pass. The quarter ended with the Maroons licked and the Gophers just about warmed up.

In the next quarter Minnesota made two more touchdowns by the same ripping plays through the Maroon line, brightening things up a bit by shooting an occasional long forward pass. Wyman first heaved one to Baston and then fooled the Maroons by shooting one to Flynn. Between halves every one who was rooting for Chicago was reconciled to defeat.

In the third quarter Minnesota maintained its constancy by scoring two more touchdowns, and again most of the ground was gained by ripping and crushing assaults at the Chicago line, though a brilliant forward pass of fifty yards, Wyman to Flynn, occurred in this period. Wyman heaved the oval fifty yards, then Flynn ran about twenty more, being downed on Chicago's three yard line, from where Hansen plunged over for a touchdown. Right after that Sprafka was put in, and before the quarter was over he had scored, carrying the ball twenty yards for the count.

Subs Get Chance to Perform.

In the fourth quarter Minnesota counted only once, partly because there was no need for further exertion and partly because of penalties. Several substitutes were put in just for the satisfaction they might gain from having taken part.

The biggest crowd of the year was present for the grand windup, and even though badly beaten, the Midway boys didn't seem depressed after it was over, for they seemed to realize they were outclassed. All told about 18,000 persons were there, regardless of the wintry wind and the snow flurries.

NOTES OF MAROON GAME

A Detroit newspaper man was present at the combat with a desire to arouse athletic authorities at the University of Michigan to try to come back to the western conference. He declared the Minnesota eleven superior to any he had seen this season.

Stagg made only two substitutions during the game, Bondzinski replacing Fluegal at right guard and Norgren taking the place of Parker at right end. Parker was hurt early in the first quarter, but played on for some time.

The Chicago players weren't numbered because Coach Williams had refused to number his men. Consequently the press stand scribes had their troubles finding the names of substitutes and stars.

Between halves fair co-eds and freshmen passed coffee pots among the crowd to take up a collection for the prison camp fund for captives of all nations engaged in the European war. The total amount raised was $1,339.

Among the interested spectators were Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox; Ray Schalk, catcher of the White Sox, and Bob Roth, outfielder of the Cleveland baseball team.

OHIO-PURPLE NOTES

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—James Patten, Col. McChesney, and G. Merrick, trustees of Northwestern university, were on hand to see the contest.

It was a clean game despite the bitter feeling. Few penalties were inflicted.

The weather was ideal for the players but too cold for the spectators. Coach Wilce arranged for blankets for the scrubs, but still it was too cold for comfort.

Michigan was well represented on the field. Joe Magidsohn, a great half back, was referee; Curtis Redden, one of the best ends in the history of football, and Clarence Eldridge were the other officials.

NEBRASKA WINS FROM HAWKEYE CREW BY 34-17

Cornhuskers Use Both Styles of Football in Downing Iowa —8,000 See the Game.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 25.—Nebraska University's football eleven today defeated the University of Iowa team, 34 to 17, before a crowd of 8,000. The Iowans after the first quarter were unable to stop Nebraska's line smashing backs and were powerless to prevent big gains when the Cornhuskers resorted to the aerial style of football.

The first period netted ten points for the locals, when, after a punting duel, in which Capt. Laun excelled, Davis went across with the first touchdown of the game, and a moment later kicked goal. Just before the end of the period Davis brought Iowa supporters to their feet with a pretty field goal from the forty yard line. Score: Nebraska, 0; Iowa, 10.

Nebraska Takes Lead.

In the second period alternate line smashes and forward passes put Otoupalik across with three touchdowns, giving Nebraska 20 to 10 for the locals, after Corey kicked two goals. Iowa took a brace in the third period and Von Lackum scored a touchdown, Davis kicking goal for the last point scored by the Hawkeyes. Nebraska failed to score in the third.

The forward pass, alternating with heavy line smashes in the final period, netted the Cornhuskers 14 more. When the passes had advanced the ball within what was considered scoring distance Otoupalik was sent through the line, and in each case succeeded in crossing, Corey kicking goal.

Alumni See Contest.

Iowa was outclassed in each period but the first. The work of the Nebraska back field, Cook, Caley, Dobson, and Otoupalik, was a feature. Hundreds of alumni, here to attend homecoming exercises, witnessed the game. Final score: Nebraska, 34; Iowa, 17. Lineup:

WILLIAMS LAUDS PLAY OF GOPHERS

After the Gophers' victory over the Maroons Dr. H. E. Williams, coach of the Minnesota squad, had a lot to say about the game.

"The boys played the most magnificent game of football I have ever seen," Dr. Williams said. "The whole team proved to be an aggregation of stars. Baston's work was simply phenomenal. Before the game he was a marked man and was watched like a hawk. In spite of this he got out into the open time after time and caught forward passes with phenomenal skill.

"The game played by Wyman at full back was brilliant in every department. I doubt if his forward passing has ever been equaled. Many times Baston was used as a decoy to attract the Chicago defense, while Flynn or one of the backs received the pass. The boys held Chicago safe at all times, although Chicago had a fine team, well drilled in every department of play.

"The defensive playing of Minnesota was one of the great features. Chicago's backfield was brilliant and fast. Pershing, Graham, and Agar did spectacular and brilliant work in the open field and during every minute of the game threatened to break away. At one time Pershing after a run half the length of the field through the greater part of the Minnesota team was downed by Long in a magnificent diving tackle that prevented what might have been the most spectacular play of the game.

"The splendid spirit of the boys was invincible. The team played almost without error and deserve everything they got."

HARVARD LOSES ONLY FIVE OF ITS REGULARS IN JUNE.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Harvard will lose only five of its regular lineup call next commencement. Of the twenty-one men who played against Yale, nine will graduate in June.

Harte and Charley Coolidge, the ends; Caner, tackle; Capt. Dadmun, guard, and Joe Harris, center, will receive their degrees.

The team next fall will be built around Ralph Horween, half back, who probably will be chosen captain; Robinson, quarter back; Thacher and Casey, backs; Walt Wheeler, tackle, and Bill Snow guard.

The freshman team, the best Harvard has had in years, should furnish some good men, one of whom is Arnold Horween of Chicago.

PURPLE WOULD HAVE WON ON DRY FIELD, SAYS PATTEN.

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—"On a dry field we'd have licked Ohio State today," said James A. Patten, millionaire Chicago wheat magnate, when interviewed tonight. "The fast Northwestern back field couldn't get going on the sticky field.

"We outplayed Ohio State in the first three quarters. This is Murphy's last year under contract and we're going to make every effort to sign him up to coach again."

DIAGRAM OF MAROON-GOPHER GAME ON STAGG FIELD

The score read 6 to 3 and the half ended two plays later. So narrow was the margin between victory and defeat.

The second half was full of thrills, full of exciting incidents, full of tense moments, but Yale, playing safely, but for all that keeping the ball in Harvard territory most of the time, met and beat back every offense which Harvard launched. This Yale eleven simply would not be denied.

Percy D. Haughton sent in Harvard substitutes by the dozen, almost, to strengthen if possible the attack. Every strategy was used to make this attack go. Forward passes were used, always the last weapon of a despairing team. Something had to be done to get a man loose, and once it almost came.

Legore Stops Coolidge.

Murray shot a long forward pass to Charley Coolidge for a clean gain of thirty yards and an open road to the goal line, but Harry Legore saved Yale with a tackle from behind. It was Harvard's brightest chance. Once again the option came for a long try at a goal from field, which might have tied the score, but a forward pass was used instead and failed. Ere long the game ended.

Then out from one side of the bowl the Yale hosts poured to dance in joyous revel through the traditional snake dance, which has been watched more than danced in recent years. Capt. Black and the other members of the team were hoisted high on shoulders; somebody burned red fire on one of the goal posts; hats were ruthlessly tossed about, and exuberance ran riot.

And on the other side of the bowl all was still. The scene was received with the half doubtful surprise of those who witnessed the breaking of a long established precedent, then a song rang out. Harvard was game in defeat even as Yale and Princeton have been.

Gathering Beggars Description.

When more than 77,000 men and women are gathered together in one place they must be seen to be appreciated. The crowd was almost as inspiring as the game. It was imposing in its moments of silence, it was wonderful in its moments of spasms.

When every seat of a bowl like this at Yale is filled with human faces and the many lined wraps and feathers, the effect is hard to describe. The bowl was the most densely populated space in the United States this afternoon. From the innermost rim to the last row of seats high up on the temporary stands, erected around the top, not a vacant spot could be seen.

The fur coats and bundling wraps made the bowl look brown and drab when the crowd was in repose, but when it was roused to action color fairly flamed forth and satisfied without dazzling the eye.

Too Cold for Real Comfort.

When thousands of throats had been frazzled and stricken next to dumb, the owners of these throats went to the other anatomical extreme and stamped feet and thrashed arms. This no doubt was largely for circulating purposes, the blood needing stirring.

The sun cheated. The slanting rays carried no warmth. The whistling wind carried a nipping chill. It was quite too cold, in fact, for comfort, but most everybody was prepared and then, too, numbed feet and shivering backs meant nothing when compared to the thrills of the game.

The singing, the organized cheering, were entertaining as usual, but not so effective as the spontaneous roars which broke forth ever and anon. The big crimson "H" which blossomed forth in fluttering handkerchiefs between halves was impressive, too, and when the disintegration came, this overflowing city was flooded.

Yale Team the Stronger.

And now again to the game. On all that goes to make up football, Yale had the better team today. The Blue eleven was more aggressive, more compact, and rugged on the defense, and carried a greater drive on the attack. Keen alertness and sound grounding in the fundamentals also were characteristics of the Yale team today, as a week ago against Princeton.

Harvard's attack did not carry the smoothness and finish or the deception, for that matter, of a year ago. It was jerky and practically impotent. At no time could it break down the Yale defense for any sustained advance, and on the slippery field even Eddie Casey was hobbled. This youth broke away just once for one of his brilliant runs, and that, as told before, went for nothing.

Casey Star for Crimson.

This same Casey shouldered the burden of the attack and carried the ball twenty-two times in the forty-five rushes made by Harvard, but he averaged a bare two yards to a rush.

Yale gained 166 yards by straight rushing from scrimmage formation to only eighty-four for Harvard, and made five first downs in this way, to three for the Crimson. The punting was about equal, although Horween was more consistent than Legore and Neville, who divided the work for Yale. Neither team had a forward passing game worth mentioning. Harvard got off one pass for thirty yards, but it only showed the possibilities of a play that the team was unable to reach.

The work of both sets of ends and of the tackles, too, was brilliant to a degree. Such end play has rarely if ever been seen in a big game, and be it said Moseley and Comerford and Church, too, when he was substituted for Moseley, more than held their own with the dashing Harvard pair, Charley Coolidge and Dick Harte.

Moseley earned a place among the Yale ends of the past who have stood out, and Comerford was not far behind. The former was not in the best physical condition, either, but he recked not of this. The way he tried to block Robinson's drop kick by diving headlong across another Harvard man was a bright spot in the game.

Losers Favorites at 10 to 7.

Harvard men did not appear to take the loss of the game seriously to heart, although they lost heavily in the wagering, which had made the Crimson a 10 to 7 favorite just before the elevens lined up. They took occasion tonight, however, to point out that had Casey's seventy-one yard run for a touchdown in the second period been allowed the team would have returned home a winner. This was the most spectacular feature of the game. Lineup:

NOTRE DAME IN 46-0 WIN OVER ALMA COLLEGE

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Harper's substitutes hung a 46 to 0 defeat on the Alma college team this afternoon playing on Cartier field covered with snow, and with the Hoosiers wearing gloves. The biting wind made fumbles frequent and forward passes slipped from the hands of the players before they could get them into the air.

Fritz, Slackford, and Fitzpatrick of Notre Dame did most of the scoring, running through the entire Alma team on several occasions. Joe Dorais ran the team from quarter, and his end runs netted many of the Hoosier gains. In the absence of Harper, Assistant Coach Rockne managed the Notre Dame squad and sent every man into the game except those regulars who were slightly injured, wishing to save them for the Nebraska tussle. Final score: Notre Dame, 46; Alma, 0.

STATEMENTS BY COACHES

Coach Murphy, Northwestern—I am satisfied with my team. They played all the football I taught them, but were beaten by a better team. I have no excuses to offer and am proud of the fact that I developed a team which was a contender for the conference title.

Jack Wilce, Ohio State—I was sure my team would win and am sorry we could not play Minnesota. I admit we have been lucky in certain games, but that is what is to be expected in football. I hope we will be able to schedule games with Chicago, Minnesota, and Wisconsin next year.

BALL PLAYERS AT BANQUET.

Thirty-six players and six managers of the Ed. Price & Co. Baseball league were the guests of Elonzo Tyner, vice president of the company, last night at the Fort Dearborn hotel club rooms. Prizes of $5 gold pieces were given to each of the members of the Cutters' team, which won the league championship last season.

WHITE ELECTED NEW PRESIDENT OF EXMOOR CLUB

BY J. G. DAVIS.

To be elected president of a "factionless club" would doubtless appeal to the average golfer as being as fortunate as scoring a one on a 200 yard hole. The former honor fell to the lot of F. Edson White, vice president of Armour & Co., who last night unanimously was chosen leader of the Exmoor Country club at its twentieth annual election, held at the Chicago Athletic association.

A "factionless club" savors of a rose without a thorn and a search for the golfing Burbanks who brought about this condition traces its beginning to a suggestion of the membership committee headed by Percy B. Eckhart. Acting on this suggestion, application blanks were abolished and from that time on membership could be secured only by invitation from the membership committee, following a recommendation by some member of the club.

Invitation Sign of Welcome.

Now an invitation is practically an assurance that a candidate is welcome by the entire organization, and the confusion that sometimes followed a formal application by the candidate himself has been eliminated completely. Quite simple, Watson.

President—F. Edson White.
Vice president—Percy B. Eckhart.
Secretary and Treasurer—James L. Martin.
Board of governors—A. P. Van Schaick, Allan M. Clement, Walter H. Miller, T. R. Wyles, R. H. Hunter, Richmond Dean.

Carr President Two Terms.

Mr. White succeeds Robert F. Carr, who has held office for two terms. Under his guidance the club has reached its period of greatest importance. Mr. White is a member of Old Elm, South Shore, Chicago club, and Chicago Athletic association.

During the twenty years of existence the club has made wonderful progress, it being estimated that the club holdings have increased 500 per cent since the property was acquired. This, coupled with substantial yearly profits, has made the organization strong financially.

The club has completed most of the work of rebuilding the entire course and T. R. Wyles, who is given much of the credit for the work which has given the club a championship course, stated that rebuilding will continue until every hole has been given an entirely different character.

Robert F. Carr, the retiring president, was presented with a handsome candelabra as a testimonial of appreciation from the club members.

CRANE AND ENGLEWOOD DRAW IN TITLE BATTLE

No Score in Game Ended by Darkness—Rooters Clash on the Field.

BY OTTO A. ENGEL.

Battling for three quarters, when the combat was called because of darkness, Englewood and Crane Tech, finalists for the Chicago High School heavyweight championship as well as the county honors, failed to cross each other's goal in a contest which was marked by every brand of football imaginable. Backed by precedent, the combating schools will make a "fifty-fifty" affair of the championship, as each will be awarded an emblem, unless they come to an agreement to play off the tie.

Failure of the police to control 4,000 partisans, who insisted on seeing the battlers, even within the danger zone, caused the first half to drag out an hour and forty-five minutes. Time after time the officials were forced to halt proceedings, but every time the field was cleared the spectators rushed pell-mell to a vantage point, leaving the rival elevens enough space for short runs. Under these conditions real football was difficult.

Tie Like Victory for Crane.

Just as the third period closed at 5 o'clock and the ball no longer could be distinguished, Referee Lipski blew his whistle, denoting the close of the combat. Crane rooters yelled with glee, for their team was regarded by everybody as rank outsiders. Even Coach Meyers didn't believe his boys had more than a fighting chance with Capt. Hargrave a sideliner because of a broken collar bone.

Englewood apparently was equally glad that it came out with a tie, for once it looked decidedly threatening at the five yard line, but a Crane fumble brought much relief. Then Crane had the ball on the south siders' twenty-three yard line when the game came to an abrupt end, and in the gathering darkness there always was that possibility of a Tech student slipping by.

Cheer Leader in Fist Fight.

So enthusiastic did some of the rooters become over the chances of victory presented to each team that several minor fistic encounters were staged as a side show. An Englewood cheer leader grew hot under the collar when Crane fans jeered some of his remarks, and Mr. Cheer Leader retaliated by planting his fist squarely on the jaw of one of his tormentors. Police interfered, but quiet was restored when the two belligerents were walked off the field to get returns second handed.

Fumbles in the first half cost each eleven the victory. Early in the first period Rollie Anderson let the ball slip from his fingers, but the alert Geis of Crane picked up the truant oval on his thirty yard line and raced to the ten yard mark of the opposition. It looked like a sure touchdown, but Englewood overpowered their lighter foemen, threw them for a nine yard loss; then the danger was eliminated momentarily when a penalty shoved the tech team back fifteen yards.

Fumble Stops Englewood.

Later in the period a forward pass, Geis to Ludvig, good for thirty yards, placed the ball on Englewood's twenty-five yard mark, just as the first session closed. At the start of the second period Crane smashed its way to the fourteen yard mark, then three more catapultic blows advanced the ball to the five yard point. Eiszner was handed the ball on the next play, but it slipped from his frozen fingers and Bromsted of Englewood fell upon it.

Coach Baradell's team took a brace, and, giving an exhibition of championship football, swept the Crane line aside in a consistent march goalwards. For a minute Crane steadied, held for downs, but in turn was forced to relinquish the ball on the thirty yard line. Bromsted and Leonard smashed their way seventeen yards on plunges and Bromsted came back with a ten yard gain, placing the ball on the twelve yard mark.

Techs Again in Danger.

Leonard, who was playing with a hand injured in the Evanston game, placed the ball on the two yard mark after three line crashes, but on his fourth straight attempt to put over a touchdown, Leonard fumbled and Crane recovered, then rushed the ball to the thirty yard point when time was called.

The third period saw Crane on Englewood's twenty-five yard mark, and Englewood on Crane's twenty yard line, but neither eleven had the necessary punch to put over the winning score. In this session Peyton featured with two end runs of twenty yards each, while Geis and Bernstein reeled off a couple of good advances. Lineup:

SENN TO BATTLE PARKER MINORS FOR GRID TITLE

Qualifies by Beating Crane in Playoff by 15-7 Count.

BY PREP.

Senn lightweights, last season's Chicago league title holders, will defend their 1915 honors against Parker High, southern sectional winner, in a combat to be played either Thanksgiving day morning or next Saturday. Senn won the northern crown by beating Crane Tech at De Paul field yesterday morning, 15 to 7, in the replay of their 0 to 0 tie.

Coach Crook's youngsters got the jump in the opening half by scoring two touchdowns, and against such odds Crane put up a valiant battle, which might have turned out differently with a bit of select judgment in the use of plays earlier in the contest. Senn wasted little time in scoring its first touchdown, which came from a forward pass to Lifvendahl, standing behind the goal line after three minutes. In the second period Hose intercepted a Crane pass and dashed down the field sixty yards for a score.

In the third period Abele dropped a nice kick from the thirty yard line after Crane put up a determined fight, but in the final period Crane showed an old time spirit which wasn't halted until Wells smashed his way through the Senn line for a touchdown. Lineup:

HYDE PARK HIGH SWAMPS U. HIGH

Using a lightweight backfield for three-quarters of the way, Hyde Park swamped University High, 37 to 0, in their annual game at Stagg field yesterday morning, despite the fact the Chicago leaguers were outweighed by the Maroon preps twenty pounds to the player. At half time the count was 19 to 0, but with the start of the fourth quarter Coach Scanlon gave his heavyweights a workout for their game at Louisville Thanksgiving day. Ludwig was banged up a bit and was forced to quit hostilities. Lineup:

NAVAL TRAININGS NIP LEWIS.

The Illinois Naval Training school eleven won from Lewis institute at the sailors' Lake Bluff gridiron, 14 to 0, yesterday in a hard fought game. Successful forward passes aided the winners, who scored in the first minute of play after a fumble and in the last quarter after the ball had been placed on Lewis' one yard line.

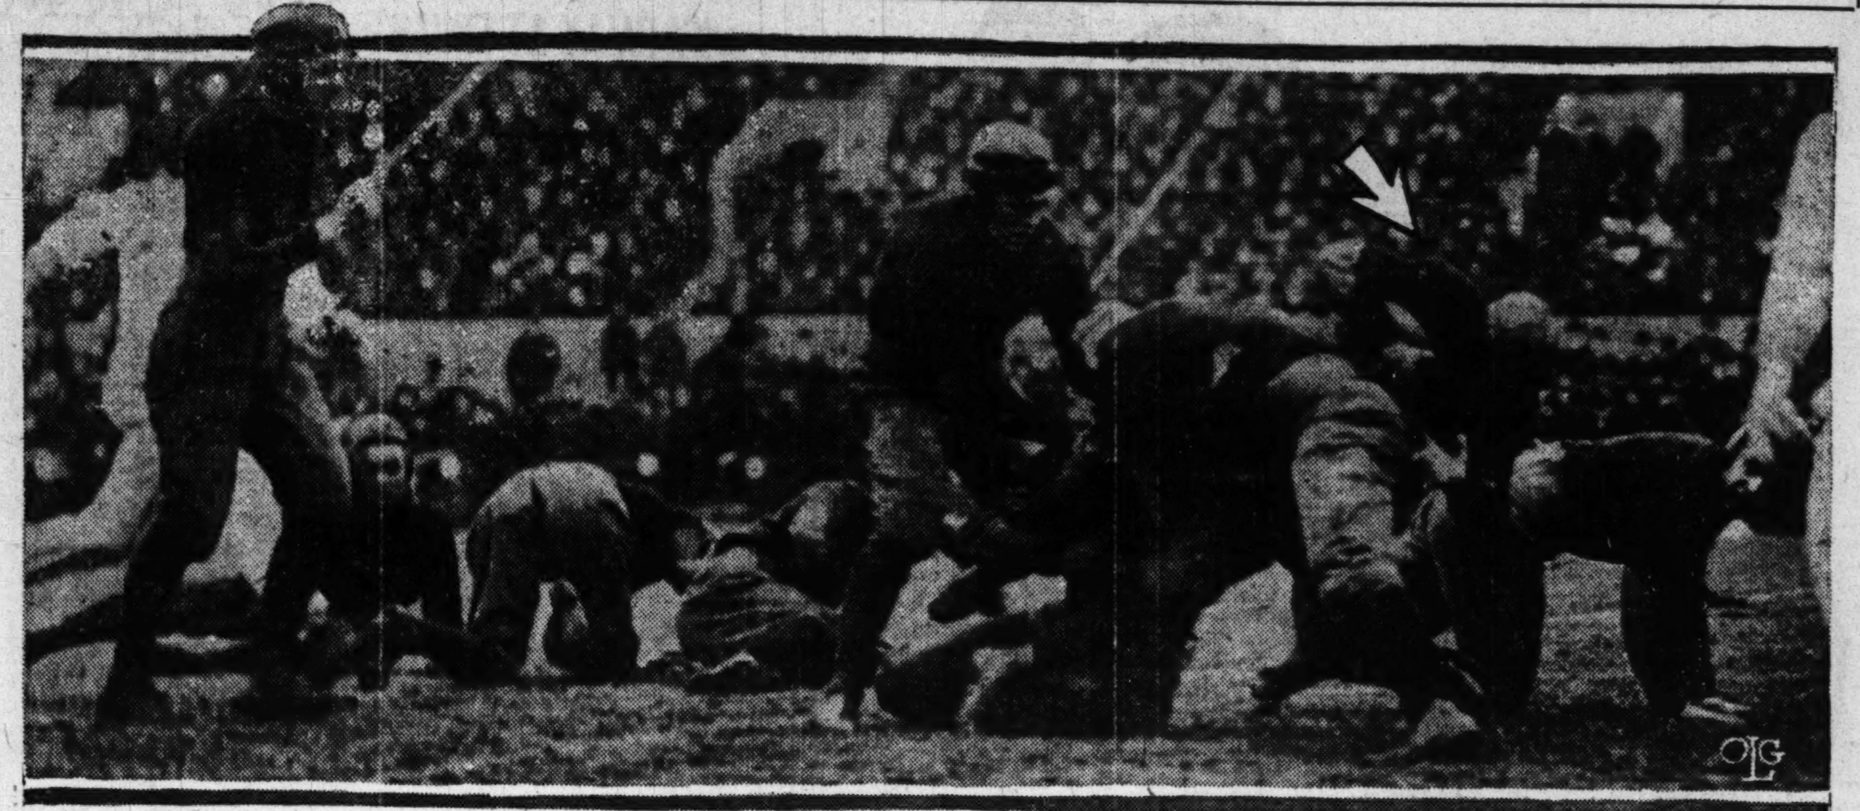
WYMAN OF GOPHERS IN STRAIGHT BUCK THROUGH THE MAROON LINE



In the Wake of the News

by RING W. LARDNER

THE DIARY OF A SIREN.

NOV. 22.

I HAVE made up my mind that I will have to speak plain to Mr. Cooley and let him know that there can be no friendship between he and I. I will not allow him to pay me attentions while he is engaged to Miss Walters and though I have tried to avoid his company in every way and tried to show him that there could be nothing more than a mere speaking acquaintance between us, he seems determined to be with me as much as possible and for the last three or four mornings has hurried through his breakfast so as to be in my company on the way down town.

Tonight after dinner we all went in to the living room and he put on a dance record and asked me would I dance with him, right in front of his fianced wife.

"No, Mr. Cooley," was my reply. "I will not dance with you and I guess you know why."

"Don't I dance well enough," he said smiling.

"You dance perfectly," I said not returning his smile. "But there is some one else for you to do your dancing with."

And with that I came up to my room. I should think it would be plain enough to him that I do not intend to be accused of interfereing between a couple engaged to be married but he seems to not pay any attention to my coldness but seems to be determined to be with me and talk to me. There is only the one thing left for me to do and that is speak plain and I will do so the next chance I get though I will not seek a chance to be alone with him.

NOV. 23.

I have not yet told Mr. Cooley that he must cease his attentions to me, but the opportunity is coming tomorrow and then I will speak plain. This morning he rushed to get through his breakfast as usual so as he could a company me down town. When we had taken a seat on the elevated he said.

"Miss Meyers, how about taking lunch with me today?"

"Thank you, Mr. Cooley," was my reply, "but I have an engagement."

"How about tomorrow?" he asked and without thinking I said that I had no lunch engagement tomorrow.

"All right," he said, "I will meet you at the entrance to Schultz's at half past 12."

At first I was going to refuse his invitation, but then I realized that this would give me a chance to talk with him and convince him that he must cease his attentions to me. So I accepted and am going to lunch with him tomorrow and I am determined that this will be our last time alone together though I know it will take all my courage to inflict the wound which my decision will mean to him.

NOV. 24.

Diary I wish I had of been born with a heart of stone so that I could inflict wounds without feeling the hurt myself. I was determined today that I would speak plain to Mr. Cooley and tell him that there was no chance of anything stronger than a mere speaking acquaintance between us but when the opportunity came I had not the heart.

He smiled when we met at the entrance to Schultz's. I smiled back faintly in return and he said:

"You don't seem to be any too glad to see me."

"I guess you understand, Mr. Cooley," was my reply. "Under different circumstances I would be only too glad to see you at any time."

"Don't you like this restaurant?" he asked and I could not help from laughing at the way he turned off my remark. He seemed so happy to be with me and acted so much like a care free boy that I did not have the heart to end his dreams.

But diary there can be no more such meetings between us and the next time he asks me out to lunch or some where I will speak plain and show him how impossible it all is, though I had a wonderful time today and it will break my heart to wound him. Oh that things could of happened differently.

BLOOMINGTON HIGH TROUNCES OAK PARK BY SCORE OF 21 TO 14

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Central Illinois High school brawn matched its strength for the first time this season against Cook county grid skill today, and fast open field play by Bloomington High beat the Oak Park heavyweights, 21 to 14. Bloomington's long suit of negotiating thirty and forty yard passes was chiefly responsible for the result.

No score was registered until the second quarter, when Oak Park scored on end runs and line bucks. Bloomington came right back and tied the count, only to find Oak Park in the lead at half time, 14-7. A delayed pass in the last period sent Bloomington ahead, after which defensive play prevented the opponents from scoring. Cole and Kendall starred for Oak Park. Lineup:

Time, 1:51 2-5. Song of Valley, Zodiac, Southern Gold, Chivator, Mr. Mack, Finalee, Gainsborough, Operth, Uncle Will, Bob Redfield, Typography, Daingerfield, and Fen Rock ran.

Sixth race, 3 year olds and up, selling, 1⅛ miles—Burglar, 107 [Obert], $23.70, $8.30, $5.50, won; High Tide, 114 [Robinson], $3.70, $3, second; Devil Fish, 118 [Carroll], $7, third. Time, 1:58. Handfull, Thomas Callaway, Freda Johnson, and Baby Sister ran.

Seventh race, all ages, selling, 1 mile and 70 yards—Margaret N., 98 [Brown], $11.10, $4.80, $4.60, won; Jem, 110 [Ball], $3.10, $2.80, second; Sevillian, 104 [McAtee], $6.50, third. Time, 1:47 1-5. Thought Reader, Maxim's Choice, Hops, Jack Revees, Little Nearer, and Cliff Field ran.

ENGLEWOOD MAY GO EAST.

Unless there is a hitch between now and Thanksgiving day, Englewood High school football players will play at Haverhill, Mass., Saturday, Dec. 9. If Haverhill should lose to St. Johns academy of Danvers, Mass., which it plays Nov. 30, there might be a hitch in the arrangements. The playing of this contest is contingent upon a two years' contract, calling for home and home games. In the meantime De Paul academy also is seeking an eastern game on the same day in Boston and efforts are being made to schedule Medford or Somerville, Mass.

STAGG BACKERS CITE PROOF NORGREN, END, IS NOT INELIGIBLE

The report that Hans Norgren, end on the University of Chicago football team, played for a year while ineligible is unfounded, according to Midway authorities. Northwestern alumni are said to have circulated the rumor that Coach Stagg was playing a man against conference rules.

Norgren is in his second year of conference competition, not his third, as was alleged. A year of competition on another college team previous to his Chicago playing would still make him eligible for this fall on Stagg's eleven.

Coach Stagg declares that De Paul college is not on the list of schools which are counted in conference rules regarding eligibility and that Norgren would not be violating the Big Nine rule if he had played two years on the north side team. There is still a third proof of the Chicago end's eligibility. Norgren never was a student at De Paul college, but was enrolled in De Paul academy.

SHOOT FOR MANY TURKEYS.

Twenty-five shooters entered for the Thanksgiving turkey shoot at the Lincoln Park traps yesterday, and fifteen turkeys were given as prizes. Scores of 100 target events:

G. W. Peck, 92; J. R. Cooper, 88; Ward Burton, 88; L. C. Huckins, 83; H. W. Shrover, 83; J. L. Hooper, 81; Jack Vilas, 80; Murray Ballou, 79; M. F. Steffins, 78; D. Hull, 73; C. C. Smith, 68; H. A. Reiter, 60.

Those who shot at fifty targets made the following scores:

J. A. Groves, 46; J. Talbot, 36; R. R. Palmer, 46; Mrs. J. Vilas, 31; O. Kausche, 37; E. Lindstrom, 36; J. Chappel, 18; A. S. Peabody, 31; A. Smith, 31; J. H. May, 34; J. B. Crawford, 36; C. W. Irrgang, 41; C. G. Burmeister, 45.

LAKE FOREST IN RUNAWAY BEATS CULVER, 69 TO 7

The slaughter began with Capt. Bergen of Lake Forest making a touchdown within the first three minutes of play. Playing snappy, consistent football, Lake Forest swept the visitors off their feet.

Culver's Lone Touchdown.

Culver's lone touchdown came at the end of the first half after the cadets had received a forward pass, following successive ten yard gains. The half closed with the score standing 33 to 7 in favor of Lake Forest.

In the second half Culver made its downs three times, but the most of the time the ball was passing its goal line in the hands of a Lake Forest man.

Give Coach Seiler Credit.

Lake Forest followers give Coach Seiler all credit for the one-sided victory, and the coach himself was well pleased with the way his men fought. The back field—Bergen, Scott, Rogers, and Porter—all played brilliant football for Lake Forest. Jonatta, quarter back, ran his team like a veteran and was responsible for one of the touchdowns on a kickoff. Jaicks, the right end, also came in for some big gains, and made one touchdown. Vondras, the former Crane captain and Cook county tackle, found everything Culver lost. Lineup:

DECIDE GRID TITLES TODAY.

Two Chicago football titles will be decided this afternoon at Schorling's ball park, Thirty-ninth street and Wentworth avenue. In the curtain raiser, starting at 1:15 p. m., the Cornell Hamburgs, with a record of seven consecutive victories, will battle the recently organized Homewood A. C. for the major honors of the city. The second tilt will bring together the Cornell A. C. and the North Shores, which finished their Chicago Amateur league schedule with four victories and two tie games each. The winner in the final scrap will be awarded the cup donated by Judge Newcomer.

POND TO HELP MERRIMACS.

Reinforced by Eddie Pond, Maroon freshman star and former De Paul academy captain, the Merrimacs will battle the Lexingtons of the Chicago Football league at Garden City park today. The Merrimacs are out to duplicate their clean slates of former years, but anticipate quite a tussle from their west side neighbors.

Frenzen Colts Want Game.

The Frenzen Colts of Berwyn, champion lightweight team of the suburbs, have an open date for Thanksgiving day and would like to meet some team averaging 115 to 120 pounds. Please call Franklin 3000 or Berwyn 790-R, between 6:30 and 7 p. m., and asked for Ed. Bergstrom.

North Ends vs. Circle C.

The Chicago North Ends today will line up against the crack Circle C. at Addison and Sheridan road. Kickoff at 3 p. m.

BOOST MISKIE AS OPPONENT FOR GIBBONS

Billy Makes a Hit in East, but He Lacks Speed of Ten Round Stars.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

Some real activity seems on the verge of being stirred up in the light heavyweight ranks despite the fact that the field is exceeding small, when star performers are considered. When Mike Gibbons, who is generally conceded to be the best of the performers in the middleweight division, handed out a ten round trimming to Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis light heavyweight, he demonstrated plainly that he carries the class. But while the Phantom went along fightless for several months before he met the "man killer," another light heavyweight who also calls St. Paul home has hopped into the limelight with remarkable speed. This home rival of Gibbons is Billy Miskie.

This Miskie person has been hitting such a hot pace in eastern rings that there already is talk of sending him against Gibbons. Eastern critics, principally those of Gotham, are unanimous in the opinion that Miskie is one of the best boys handling the upholstered kids at the present time. They point to his fistic repertoire, which they declare contains everything a good fighter should possess, and this means that he can punch, can box, can take a punch, is a good judge of distance, and possesses about all the cleverness he needs to go with his other attainments.

Think Miskie Could Beat Mike.

Some of these critics in the east have been so shockingly bold as to pick Miskie for a winner over the Phantom should they meet. That, it strikes us, is going a bit strong, for one who has watched both of these scrappers in action many times would be considered a bit foolish around St. Paul or other western cities where the pair have performed if he were to make such a prediction.

Perhaps the enthusiasm which usually is stirred up following the appearance of a winning westerner in the east has had the effect of delivering a knockout to the judgment of the critics. In this neck of the woods we are well aware that Miskie is a pretty good scrapper, but rating him on a par with Gibbons seems out of line. Miskie is a good fighter and close to the top all right, but he lacks that one thing which in these days of ten round milling is paramount—speed. If a boxer in the middleweight class has speed and cleverness he is pretty certain to finish on the winning side in the record books, and if you don't believe it ask Mike Gibbons.

Beats Moha and Levinsky.

Miskie jumped to a place in the fistic hall of fame only recently in New York, when he handed a decisive beating to Bob Moha, the "Cave Man" of Milwaukee. What Billy did to Moha was plenty, and as Bob is a pretty good piece of fighting machinery Miskie's work naturally aroused great enthusiasm. Previous to this encounter Miskie tried his hand against that busy bird, Battling Levinsky, and scored a victory on points. Of course, that wasn't so wonderful, for many others have accomplished the trick.

In a communication from Mike Gibbon's secretary—yes, secretary, for Michael doesn't employ a manager—we are informed the Phantom doesn't take Miskie seriously. It seems Mike wants to shunt Billy off on Brother Tom, and he points to the dope, which shows that on two occasions Brother Tom gave Miskie a trimming.

Darcy Will Not Visit Us.

Les Darcy, the Australian star, who just at present is busy showing his loyalty to the colors, is another scrapper who must not be overlooked when light heavyweights are mentioned. Darcy is one of the chaps who, with training, can make the middleweight limit, but he has fought and licked so many heavyweights in his native country that he is considered a light heavyweight. There has been some talk of Darcy coming to this country to meet Gibbons, for it looks as if this pair were the real goods, but it is learned from a reliable source that no such thing is likely to happen. If Darcy fights Gibbons, it will be on Australian soil.

There are reasons why Darcy does not think it would be advisable to fight the Phantom on American soil. He has heard all kinds of tales about the treatment he would receive here, and has listened to the bunk, which has caused his decision to remain at home and force Michael to tackle him on his native heath if Mike cares to battle.

Gibbons May Invade Australia.

It may surprise some, but it is not entirely unlikely, that Gibbons some of these fine days may pack up his grip and make the trip to Australia to "call" Darcy. Some few days before the Phantom fought Dillon in St. Paul he was talking to Harry Sherman, the promoter who staged the bout, and, according to Sherman, he remarked:

"After I lick Dillon I want to lick a couple of other fellows; then I may close up my boxing career with a trip to Australia."

BARTELME AFTER BIG GAME

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 25.—Director of Athletics P. G. Bartelme of the University of Michigan was en route east today, presumably to complete arrangements for the Wolverines' 1917 football schedule. It is accepted here that Pennsylvania and Cornell will be booked again as the big games of the season. Possibility that either Dartmouth or Pittsburgh will be scheduled in place of the annual Syracuse engagement is not regarded seriously by the campus dopesters.

SOL METZGER TO RETAIN JOB

Washington, Pa., Nov. 25.—Sol Metzger, present coach of the football team at Washington and Jefferson college, today signed a contract to take charge of the team again next season. The terms were not made public.

CORNELL HARRIERS TAKE BIG INTERCOLLEGIATE RUN.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25.—Cornell won the intercollegiate cross country run on the new West Rock course here. John Overton, Yale captain, won the individual championship, covering the course in :35:30 4-5. The contest was one of the most spectacular in years.

Overton's victory had been expected. He finished easily, with Caroll of Michigan second in 35:49½, and Wenz of Cornell third in 35:58 2-5. The order of other finishes follows:

Dempsey, Maine; Dresser, Cornell; King, Harvard; Watson, Syracuse; McDermott, Cornell; Windnagle, Cornell; Thompson, Dartmouth; Preti, Maine; Shotwell, Princeton; Boynton, Cornell; Levine, Yale; Zurnino, Princeton; Smith, Dartmouth.

DEPAUW TEAM BEATS LAKE FOREST, 35 TO 0, BY RALLY AT FINISH

Greencastle, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Depauw university defeated Lake Forest on McKeen field today, 35 to 0. All the scoring was done in the last half, Depauw opening up with long forward passes and end runs. Kramer, Depauw punter, dropped back for a fake kick and ran fifty yards for a touchdown in the third period. He kicked goal.

Wheat, Depauw quarter back, then scored two touchdowns in rapid succession by long forward passes to Woodruff, one pass being forty yards. Lake Forest was crushed by the open work of Depauw in the last half. The first half was even, both using straight football. Lineup:

West secured a grand slam.

Both the bidding and play of west were daring, but sound.. The fact that it was possible to throw the lead to east and finesse through the diamond honor held by south greatly increased the value of the diamond prospect.

After the second trick west figured that south must have the king of clubs alone, because north would have opened with the singleton club.

After the third trick west likewise reasoned that the king of diamonds must be alone in the south hand, as otherwise there would be no reason to insert the knave, it being impossible for west to lead trumps a second time from dummy.

Playing with the courage of his convictions, west bagged both kings, secured a grand slam and a tremendous score.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—Kindly give your opinion about a make in a game of bridge whist. The score is rubber, rubber. The dealer passed and his partner declared no trump on the following cards:

Spades, A, K, 9, 8, 7, 6; clubs, 9; diamonds, A, J, 7, 2; hearts, K, 2.

Was his make correct? Or should he have made it spades as the dealer claimed, as nobody had anything on the third rubber? S. E. B.

Ans.—Regardless of the outcome, dummy should have made it no trump.

* *

At the other table second hand kept still, but third hand, having no diamonds, a poor hand with five spades to the ten, bid three spades and made a small slam.

Being asked to decide concerning the bid of three spades, we find it impossible to give an opinion without knowing the remaining cards.

RUNNERS OF PURDUE TAKE COUNTRY RACE; MAROON MEN SECOND

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Purdue won the annual western conference cross country run, with Chicago second. The time was 26:25.. Scoring was by point, the lowest score winning, as each runner was counted according to the position in which he finished. The score was as follows: Purdue, 54; Chicago, 63; Ames, 72; Minnesota, 92; Ohio State, 94; Wisconsin, 102; Iowa, 103.

The runners started from Stuart field just before the Purdue-Indiana football game, and finished there after a five and one-half mile run over the country roads west of Purdue.

Purdue had previously defeated Illinois in a dual meet and was a favorite, although Minnesota, Ames, Chicago, and Ohio were all expected to fight hard for first place. The first five men of each team to finish were counted.

Tenney of Chicago was the first man to finish. His time was 26:25, the fastest ever made in a western collegiate cross country run. Tenney ran a beautiful race. Wallace of Minnesota pushed in second, Husted of Ames third, Hawthorne of Ames fourth, Campbell of Purdue fifth, Otis of Chicago sixth, Atkins of Purdue seventh, Schardt of Wisconsin eighth, and Large of Purdue ninth.

Purdue also captured fourteenth and fifteenth places, and this gave the team the race. Powers of Chicago finished thirteenth. Jones and Snyder of Chicago finished twenty-first and twenty-second.

Reo

While the Present Price Stands
This Big Beautiful Reo the Fifth
Is a "Gold Dollar for 90 Cents"

ADVICES FROM LANSING where Reo cars are made, warn us that, at any moment, it may be necessary to raise the price of Reo the Fifth.

THE REO FOLK have steadily held to the announced price for several months past despite the fact that prices of materials have steadily advanced and other makers have been compelled to make substantial increases.

THEY HAVE HELD THAT so long as the materials last which were purchased at former prices, they would not add to the price of this Reo the Fifth.

AND SO IT HAPPENS that those who are now buying and getting deliveries of this "Incomparable Four" are actually getting the car at less than its value—less than it can be sold for hereafter if prices of materials stay where they are or advance further.

WITH THE PRESENT DEMAND for this model, and the strenuous effort of the factory to catch up with it, the materials purchased two years ago (at former prices) will soon be used up.

JUST WHEN we do not know. Factory does not say.

BUT WE ARE WARNED that "the factory reserves the right to advance prices on any model without notice" and that any orders—bona fide orders with a cash deposit and definite delivery date—in our hands at such time will be recognized and filled at the present price but no more.

WHEN YOU CONSIDER the size; the passenger capacity; the quality of materials—the best metals known to science; real leather instead of imitation; and "50 per cent oversize" in all vital parts—you must appreciate what wonderful value is this Reo the Fifth at $875.

FOR IT ISN'T THE PRICE ALONE—it's the famous fact that this is the cheapest car in the world to maintain.

YOU CAN BUY A "SKIMPED CAR"—a four or a six—at less, of course.

BUT THE DIFFERENCE in quality, in service and especially in upkeep cost, is vastly more than the difference in the price.

WHEN YOU BUY A REO the Fifth you buy security—material as well as physical.

AND THAT'S WORTH MORE than the difference in price.

YOU KNOW—YOU KNOW that when you start out in your Reo the Fifth the drive, be it five miles or five thousand, will be pleasurable and enjoyable all the way.

AND YOU KNOW it will be free from those "pesky little troubles" that vex most motorists and are inevitable—yes, inevitable—in the "skimpy car."

THAT "50 PER CENT OVERSIZE," the Reo standard factor of safety—in bearing, in axle, in gears—in all vital parts—is your guarantee and your reliance. You'll enjoy every hour in your Reo.

BUT YOU KNOW THAT—your Reo friends have told you so. This ad is to warn you that there isn't a minute more to lose.

ORDER NOW—we can promise a fairly prompt delivery. "Cover" yourself at the present price. And above all, make sure, now, that your new car will be "The Gold Standard of Values"—Reo the Fifth!

SOCCER MIXUP MAY COST FLAG FOR ENGLEWOOD

Winning Goals Disputed by Lane—Other Teams Send In Protests.

Heavyweight championship honors of the Chicago High school soccer league will go to Englewood provided an individual protest by Lane and a combined protest by Lane, Calumet, and Schurz are not sustained by the athletic board of control.

Englewood defeated Lane, 3 to 2, at Bricklayers' field yesterday afternoon. Englewood scored in the opening five minutes. Lane improved in the second half, Willis and Topper counting. Referee Smythe then gave Englewood a penalty kick on an attempt to trip by a Lane player. This decision is disputed by Lane, which also claims a free kick for Englewood in the first half. Lane also claims the second half was four minutes overtime and that Englewood's last two goals were made during that period.

Ground of Other Protest.

The combined protest of Lane, Calumet, and Schurz will be that although the Bricklayers' field was picked as neutral territory, both Englewood teams practiced on it before the series started, and as it is larger than the fields on which the school teams play, it gave Englewood an undue advantage.

Hyde Park forfeited its tie game with Englewood by playing a lightweight boy in goal on the heavyweights. It forfeited its match with Lane on Nov. 18 for a similar reason. Lineup of Englewood-Lane game:

Englewood [3].		Lane [2].
Michel	Goal	Lippe
Darby	Right back	Schwartz
Redeghiero	Right h'lf b'ck	Tenczar

OAK PARK TEAM WINS SUBURBAN SOCCER TITLE.

Playing on the neutral field of University High school, Oak Park won the championship of the Suburban Soccer league by defeating New Trier, 3 to 1, yesterday morning. The victory entitles Oak Park to meet the Chicago high school champion for the city championship shield.

The match was a playoff of a tie. Oak Park defeated U. High, 1 to 0, in the replay of a scoreless tie, in which it was charged an incompetent official affected the result. Dr. Monilaw went to Oak Park and after hearing the evidence consented to a replay, and as Oak Park won, it tied New Trier, making yesterday's playoff necessary. Lineup:

Oak Park [3].		New Trier [1].
Coleville	Goal	Cavanaugh
McGrath	Right back	Stachel
Blount	Right h'lf b'ck	Wolf
Sutphen	C'nt'r h'lf b'ck	McClean
E. Ohlsen	Outside right	Davis

R. Ohlsen	Outside left	Fowler

Goals—R. Ohlsen, Beatty [2] Davis. Referee—Gemmill.

BOXING CARD FOR CICERO.

Eddie Kelly, the fighting barber of Hot Springs, Ark., now claiming Chicago as his headquarters, mixes with Kid Peizzo tomorrow night at Cicero in the main event on a card of three six round bouts. The boys are featherweights. Kelly has been training at Kid Howard's gymnasium. If he should win he plans to issue a challenge to the featherweight world.

WOMEN RACE AT PINEHURST.

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—A small but interesting meet opened the Pinehurst racing season today. The women's purse, a three-eighths, won by Miss Esther Tufts on Nellie in :37, was the feature of the afternoon.

Iowa City, 38; Davenport, 7.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 25.—[Special.]—Iowa City High school won the annual game from Davenport, 38 to 7, today.

CHICAGO AND DETROIT PLAN FOUR-CITY BALKLINE LEAGUE

The success of the first half of the intercity balkline match between Chicago and Detroit has led to the formation of an intercity balkline league, with Cleveland and Pittsburgh as the other prospective members. It is planned to have two players with class A ratings and two with class B ratings in the national list represent each city. If only three cities join the teams will be increased to five men.

Nashua, 67; Charles City, 0.

FINE YALE TICKET SELLERS.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25.—Five of the seven men arrested last night charged with offering for sale tickets to the Yale-Harvard football game in a manner contrary to local ordinances pleaded guilty in the city court today and were fined $10 and costs each. One Yale undergraduate and a hotel clerk charged with a similar offense secured continuances, and the case of a high school lad charged with stealing tickets from a dormitory room and offering them for sale was also put over.

ROLLER HOCKEY GAME TODAY

The Riverview and Dreamland roller hockey teams will clash this afternoon at Dreamland rink. The series now stands one and one. The game will be called at 4:30 o'clock. Roland Cioni, the Dreamland star skater, captains the Dreamland team and Art Eglinton heads Riverview.

Vet Eleven Wants Game.

McKillip's Veterinary college players want opposition for a Thanksgiving day game, either in Chicago or out of town. Team should average about 165 pounds. Call Condon, Calumet 430, to arrange game.

GUESTS AT 2 BIG GAMES SWAMP NEW YORK HOTELS.

New York, Nov. 25.—The Yale-Harvard game at New Haven and the Army-Navy contest here swamped New York's hotel facilities. More than 500,000 guests were turned away from the regular hostelries.

The Army team, with some 200 cadet rooters were quartered at the Astor, the other West Pointers finding accommodations at half a dozen smaller hotels. The Navy contingent, with headquarters at the Biltmore, was scattered in the four other hostelries.

At the St. Regis the ballroom was pressed into service as a sleeping apartment for last minute guests.

W. AND J. TRIUMPHS, 41-0.

Washington, Pa., Nov. 25.—Washington and Jefferson triumphed over Chattanooga, 41 to 0, today. The southerners played a stubborn defensive game against straight football of the heavy local team, but this style of game wore down the visitors finally. W. and J. was often penalized for holding and fouls.

Springfield, 6; Dartmouth, 2.

AMERICANS MEET PULLMANS TODAY IN DELAYED TILT

Waiting until the eleventh hour, Chairman Duffy of the national cup committee yesterday wired Secretary Cummings of the Illinois State Soccer association that the Chicago Americans of the professional league had been given permission to play their match with the Pullman team of the Chicago league today. No reply was made to Pullman's contention that the consent of both teams was necessary to postpone the match, as was done last Sunday.

Accepting this ruling, Pullman will be on hand this afternoon to meet the Americans at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue at 2:30. Pullman's league game with Joliet is postponed. The Rovers and Corinthians will play an exhibition game at Bricklayers' field.

Games in the Chicago District league are:

Second division—Lincoln Park and International Harvesters at Forty-eighth avenue and Sixteenth street, Fram at Harvey, Columbians at Hawthorne, St. Georges at Washington park and Caledonians at Ogden park.

Third division—Mohawks at Palmer park, Chicago Hungarians at Swedish II., Olympia at Calumet park, Lake Forest at Cechie.

All games start at 2:30.

On Thanksgiving afternoon at Bricklayers' field, Chicago will play the rest of Illinois.

YALE TEAM WINS SHOOT, TOO

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25.—Yale won the intercollegiate gun club shoot at the Yale traps today with a score of 529 out of a possible 500. Princeton was second with 413, Cornell third with 362, and Dartmouth last with 351. Capt. Caesar of Princeton won the silver cup offered by the Intercollegiate Trap Shooting association for individual high score with 90 breaks out of a possible 100.

SYRACUSE DEFEATS TUFTS

Boston, Mass., Nov. 25.—Syracuse defeated Tufts, 20 to 13, in a game enlivened by end runs, which many times netted big gains, and forward passes that went thirty and forty yards. Meehan of Syracuse drop kicked a field goal from the forty-five yard line and another from the eighteen yard line. The Syracuse touchdowns were made by Rafter, while Doane scored Tufts' touchdowns.

BASKETBALL RESULTS.

Eckhart Park Blues, 50; St. Stanislaus, 14.
Antler A. C., 60; Mezzron Juniors, 17.
Antler Juniors, 30; Lincoln Center, 5.
Ogden Park, 29; Park Manor, 14.

A SENSIBLE cigarette will give you far more than good taste

SEVERAL other good cigarettes, besides Fatimas are pleasant tasting. But for your steady, day-in and day-out cigarette, you want more than good taste alone. You want a sensible cigarette—a cigarette that will treat you comfortably at all times.

Fatimas are as sensible a cigarette as you can smoke because they are always cool and comfortable to the throat and tongue. And they leave you feeling fine and "fit" even though you may smoke more often than usual. Because their Turkish blend of all-pure tobaccos is so delicately balanced.

WHEAT IS AGAIN LOWER; WINNIPEG BREAK A FACTOR

Long Liquidation Continues and There Is Also Much Selling by Shorts.

Further recessions were seen in wheat prices yesterday, resting spots showing declines of 1⅛@2c for the day. There was more liquidation by longs and increasing pressure from shorts, while bearish sentiment predominated. The trade was much affected by the pronounced weakness at Winnipeg, where November closed 11c lower, with advices from there indicating a light demand for cash wheat. Friday's export business in wheat was not as large as expected, and no sales were reported yesterday. News from Argentina was more favorable, and the bulls, in fact, had little to encourage them.

During the early part of the session there was buying of May wheat on the dips by houses with seaboard connections, but it did not amount to much, and the market all through the day lacked good support. Liquidation was most pronounced in the December and consequently the latter delivery was relatively weaker than distant months.

Liverpool Wheat Is Steady.

Liverpool spot wheat was quoted as unchanged and dull. Broomhall said that India was offering wheat more freely and that the early wheat in Australia has been harvested and that the movement has commenced. Australia shipped 768,000 bu wheat this week, against 624,000 bu last week and nothing a year ago. London advices indicate that every effort will be made to have the people of England use some substitution for wheat wherever possible, and the consumption is expected to show a material falling off.

Cash wheat here was steady to firm, with receipts still light. Local shipping sales were 25,000 bu. Clearances from the seaboard were 451,000 bu, against 1,027,000 bu a year ago. Primary receipts totaled 1,563,000 bu, against 3,308,000 bu a year ago. Winnipeg had 6,037 cars wheat for the week, against 10,508 a year ago. Minneapolis stocks increased 120,000 bu for one day.

Lower Level for Corn.

Lower prices also prevailed in the corn market, final figures showing losses of ⅛@⅝c. The weakness in wheat had a depressing effect on the market, as did the reports of good rains in Argentina. There was good buying of corn early, some of it apparently against export sales, but the offerings were free. Receipts of corn continue liberal and prices in the sample market were ½@1c lower. Local shipping sales of corn were 65,000 bu. Lack of cars is restricting business to a greater extent than is generally believed, and only 527,000 bu corn were shipped from here this wek, while 2,674,000 bu were received.

Liverpool spot corn was 1@1½d higher in face of more favorable news from Argentina and smaller demand. Clearances from the seaboard were 43,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 1,190,000 bu, against 859,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Market Is Weaker.

Oats were weaker with other grains. Trade volume small. Closing quotations showed losses of ⅛@⅝c. Free local and commission house selling was encouraged by the further break in wheat. Elevator people bought December oats and sold the May. The rains in Argentina are expected to be of much benefit to the crop. Local receipts of oats this week were 2,833,000 bu, while 2,761,000 bu were shipped. Clearances from the seaboard were 301,000 bu. Local shipping sales were 120,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 869,000 bu, against 949,000 bu a year ago.

Hog product closed a little higher after exhibiting early weakness. There was good buying of lard by eastern interests and fair purchases of ribs by an outside packer. Hog prices at the yards were higher and receipts were considerably under expectations. Western markets received 861,500 hogs for the week, against 547,600 a year ago. Liverpool spot lard was 9d lower. Local meat shipments for the week totaled 19,634,000 lbs, against 15,901,000 lbs a year ago, while 7,676,000 lbs lard were shipped, against 8,318,000 lbs last year.

Rye Market Is Steady.

Rye was steady with No. 2 to arrive selling at $1.53. Receipts were 10 cars.

Barley was dull and 1@2c lower. Malting was quoted $1.05@1.27 and sold $1.12@1.25; feed and mixing quotable, 90c@$1.04, and screenings, 50@95c; latter selling at 95c; skimmings were quoted 65@70c. Receipts, 111 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet. Year, $5.60 nominal; March, $6.00 bid and $6.25 asked; cash lots sold at $4.85. Clover seed ruled unchanged with cash lots quoted $12.00@18.00.

Flax closed 4c lower with cash quoted $2.75@2.79; Minneapolis was 4c; Duluth, 2½@4½c, and Winnipeg, 3½@5¼c lower, respectively.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

Circulars have been mailed to members of the board of trade asking for support to the proposed amendment to the "insurance" rule of the exchange. The circular was signed by W. H. Perrine, chairman of the warehouse committee and by J. J. Stream, chairman of the legal advice committee. The amendment was said to be designed to meet an emergency now confronting the market. The maximum amount of insurance obtainable on each of the public elevators, as fixed by the board of underwriters, is insufficient to cover the capacity of these houses figured at present high prices for grain. The proposed amendment is said to divide the responsibility of obtaining insurance on grain passing into public store between the buyer and seller. The grain now in store is now insured, and under the provisions of the amended rule would be available on delivery, the same as now. The vote on the amendment will be taken next Wednesday. There is considerable opposition to the proposed change, and it is believed there will be a hot fight over it. It is thought present conditions may be relieved, in part at least, by loading grain into boats.

Primary receipts of wheat since July 1 have been 214,000,000 bu, compared to 254,547,000 bu last year, and corn receipts for the season to date have been 18,283,000 bu, compared to 15,474,000 bu a year ago. Oats receipts for the season aggregate 153,000,000 bu, against 124,618,000 bu a year ago. Wheat receipts for the week were much smaller than a year ago, while corn arrivals were about double. Oats arrivals for the week were about the same as a year ago, the movement being still heavy.

Cash wheat prices were lower yesterday following the decline in the December, but the tone was steady relatively. The shipping demand was moderate and sales were 25,000 bu. The much talked of Greek orders, it is understood, have not yet been placed, and there was not much buying for the allies. Minneapolis cash wheat trade was quiet. The demand was slow, except for cars which could be reloaded. Other outside markets were easy. Receipts continue moderate, with primary receipts less than half as large as a year ago.

Rosario wheat closed 1@1½c lower and corn was 1½@2c off, with oats unchanged.

A bearish influence in the wheat market was the weakness at Winnipeg. Wheat prices there were 4⅝c@11c lower, the November being especially weak. The drop in the November was not regarded as especially significant, however, as it is so near the end of the month no more wheat will be bought to fill tonnage, as latter has been about all secured.

Sincere & Co. had the following from the central corn belt of this state: "We believe conditions are more bearish than the trade is aware of. One of our local dealers has this week cribbed 14,000 bu of corn outside his elevator, and there is no end of delivery in sight, as many of our farmers have but just commenced to haul."

The shipping call for corn was only fair, according to shippers, but there was some buying of futures by cash houses, which was thought to have been against such sales. Local sales reported were 62,000 bu, with sample prices ½@1c lower. Oats were ¼@½c off, and there were sales of 120,000 bu. Country sales were fair of corn.

Early wheat has been harvested in Australia and the movement has commenced. Weather has turned clear and warm. Argentine cables reported more rains in sections, with markets easier.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 51 cars; corn, 253 cars; oats, 171 cars; rye, 10 cars; barley, 111 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 62,000 head, and for all next week, 235,000 head.

Liverpool reported oats strong with advancing markets, London leading with up turn of 1s 6d per quarter. Argentine offers of oats are reported light.

Reports from Washington received by grain interests say there will be a big fight over the question of an embargo on grain exports.

The New York Central lines have placed an embargo on grain shipments to the seaboard for export.

There were rumors of corn business for export at the seaboard, but they could not be confirmed.

Charters were made yesterday for 300,000 bu oats to Georgian bay.

MARKET DEVELOPS STRENGTH.

New York, Nov. 25.—Overnight developments of unusual importance contributed in large measure toward the strength and activity of today's market, the general rise wiping out a considerable part of the midweek's recessional movement and restoring some prominent issues, notably United States Steel, to maximum levels.

The amicable understanding between the department of justice and the legal representatives of the railroads regarding the course of litigation connected with the Adamson law and the adjustment of the Mexican situation were made the occasion of a fresh outburst of bullish enthusiasm.

Next to Steel, whose recurrent rise to the new record of 129 was accomplished on the usual enormous turnover, coppers enjoyed speculative favor, leaders of that group gaining one to two points, Utah opening with an advance of five points, only a small part of which was relinquished.

Rail Issues Hold Back.

Utah securities, the Harvester issues, Nova Scotia Steel, Gulf States Steel first preferred, and American Agricultural Chemical were among the less prominent issues to register gains of four to almost ten points, with two to three for Mexican Petroleum, the paper issues, and some equipments and munitions.

Rails were the only issues of importance to hold back, the movement in that quarter being among the low priced shares, such as Rock Island, Wisconsin Central, and Western Maryland.

Among the few reversals were Bethlehem Steel, which lost 19 points, Atlantic Gulf, and West Indies common and preferred, Maxwell Motors, and Montana Power, the latter losing but a small part of the previous day's spectacular rise.

Bonds were irregular, strength in Rock Island issues and the coppers being again offset by the hesitant tone of internationals. United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

Government Issues Life Tables.

The census bureau has just issued a preliminary report of the first series of life tables ever issued by the United States government. These tables are based on figures of the total population of various states and the total numbers of deaths occurring. The results shown differ somewhat from the experience tables of life insurance companies. The former are based on the general, unselected population, while the latter include only selected risks that have been accepted after medical examination.

One would naturally expect the selected risks to live longer than the general population, but just the reverse seems to be shown. While the differences are small they are nearly always in favor of the general population. Any one of several reasons may account for this. It is possible that the man who carries life insurance leads a more strenuous life than the average and wears out sooner. Or it may be that people whose constitution and ancestry justify an expectation of exceptionally long life are less inclined to insure themselves, while those having cause to fear early death seek insurance and often pass the medical examination.

Some curious facts are shown by the new tables. The mortality among Negroes is much greater than that among whites up to middle life, but later it is less. Of each 100,000 white male children born, 31 are alive at 100 and 1 at 105, while of each 100,000 Negroes, 40 are alive at 100 and 1 at 108. Of 100,000 Negresses 112 are alive at 100 and 1 at 110.

The new tables when issued in full will be of great assistance in working out the details of a system of annuities. There is, of course, no medical examination for an annuity, and computations ought to be based on life tables of the total population and not on the experience of a selected fraction.

By-Products Coke.

C. D. R.—The By-Products Coke corporation has issued $5,235,000 of stock and has outstanding $3,245,000 of bonds, according to the latest available balance sheet. Earnings are subject to rather wide fluctuations. Dividends started at 2½ per cent in 1907, increased to 8 per cent in 1913, and dropped to 4½ per cent in 1914. This year earnings are said to be large and increasing, and dividends have been paid at the rate of 10 per cent. Only limited information is made public.

Brief Answers.

N. W., Lockport, Ill.—In the first six months of this year California Petroleum earned $580,592 net, being an increase of about 6 per cent. Since July 1 the company has been receiving somewhat better prices for crude oil and it is expected that the report for the year will show the full dividend on the preferred stock earned.

W. B.—The Southern railway never has paid dividends on its common stock. This stock is of $100 par. It is purely speculative at present.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Cotton goods were firm and yarns tended higher today. The wool industry was disturbed by the commandeering of Australian wools by the government. Knit goods buying was less feverish, but the demand was general. Burlaps and linens were firm.

A continuance until Nov. 28 was granted four innkeepers yesterday when they were arraigned before Justice F. A. McKee in Oak Park on charges of selling liquor without licenses. They are William Snow Erbes, Jacob Rutt, John Jurs and William Kruse, and conduct roadhouses on the Villa street road near Elgin. They were taken in raids by Attorney Charles E. Erbstein and deputy sheriffs.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—A continuation of yesterday's buying movement caused a further advance of nearly half a cent in the cotton market today, with January contracts selling up to 20.98c, or no less than 105 points above the low level touched at the opening yesterday morning. That delivery closed at 20.96c, and the general list closed very steady at a net advance of 15 points on the inactive month of August, and of 38 to 47 points on other deliveries. The market opened firm at an advance of 10 to 28 points, with the near months relatively firm on overnight buying orders. The scattering demand for the late months was encouraged by bullish overnight spot advices and favorable reports from the dry goods trade. Realizing by some of yesterday's buyers and a little liquidation of contracts carried over the recent break appeared to furnish about the only opposition to the advance and the highest prices of the day were reached in the late trading, with December selling at 20.87c and May at 21.31c, or within 11 to 15 points of the highest records for the season. The close was within 3 or 4 points of the best. There appeared to be very few orders here either way from the south, and more than half the morning's business was transacted in the last half hour. Port receipts today, 36,107 bales; for the season, 3,801,342. Exports today, 29,658; for the season, 2,273,751. Stock, 1,467,701. Futures:

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 25.—Marked strength was displayed by the cotton market today, prices rising about $2 a bale on a general demand, stimulated chiefly by bullish spot accounts, which was met by only moderate offerings. General comment was that the technical position of the staple had been made healthy by the liquidation of this week. The opening was at the advance and in the early trading prices went to 16 to 21 points up. Futures:

U. S. OPENS UP 20,000 ACRES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—An area of 20,000 acres, known as Ham's Creek basin, was detached from the Routt national forest in northwestern Colorado today by executive order and will be opened to homesteaders. It consists chiefly of grass land and scattered woodland and was considered of little value for national forest purposes but easily adaptable for agriculture.

NEW YORK BANKS SHOW A DROP IN EXCESS RESERVE

Item Declines $21,000,000 and Is Close to Low Mark —Stocks Hold Firm.

New York bank statement showed a decrease of more than $21,000,000 in the excess reserve, the contraction bringing the item down to $58,647,240, close to the low.

Although important banking interests must have known what the figures approximately would show, the stock market continued firm. United States Steel common touched its high price, 129.

The bank statement figures revealed a contraction of $32,500,000 in loans, while deposits decreased $67,624,000. The loss in the excess reserve was due, therefore, to a loss in cash. The figures follow:

ACTUAL STATEMENT.

	Nov. 25, 1916.	Decrease.

Bankers' Club Meeting.

The next meeting of the Bankers' Club of Chicago will be held at the Congress hotel on Dec. 16. The principal speaker will be F. A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York.

The club has invited a number of newspaper men to be its guests in compliment of Mr. Vanderlip's former vocation, that of financial editor of THE TRIBUNE.

The club has invited as special guests the presidents of the principal banks of the larger cities of the central west. F. G. Nelson, president of the club, believes the coming meeting will be the most representative gathering of men identified with banking and the big industries that has been held in Chicago in recent years.

Chicago Securities.

On the local stock exchange Union Carbide was the feature, advancing from 192½ to 196. No new developments were reported to account for the rise. Other stocks were steady, though Swift & Co. shares advanced 2 points.

Trade Acceptances Discount.

The federal reserve bank of Chicago yesterday announced the establishment of a discount rate of 3½ per cent on trade acceptances having a maturity within ninety days, to encourage loaning on acceptances on the sale of merchandise. The rate is preferential to the extent that on other discounts this rate applies only to paper maturing within fifteen days.

A trade acceptance, as defined in the regulations of the federal reserve board, is "a bill of exchange drawn by the seller on the purchaser of goods sold and accepted by such purchaser. To be eligible for purchase the bill must have grown out of an actual commercial transaction, domestic or foreign; that is, it must be a bill which has been issued or drawn for agricultural, industrial, or commercial purposes or the proceeds of which have been used or are to be used for the purpose of producing, purchasing, carrying, or marketing goods in one or more of the steps of the process of production, manufacture, or distribution. It must have a maturity at time of purchase of not more than ninety days, exclusive of days of grace."

Bank Clearings Larger.

Chicago bank clearings for the week ended Nov. 25 were $463,652,197, as compared with around $496,000,000 last week. The gain over the corresponding week last year was $166,559,494, or 56.08 per cent. The figures:

Date.	Clearings.	Balances.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

Counsel for the Fisher Body corporation shortly will take steps to contest the suit filed against the concern by the Springfield Metal Body company, which alleges that the former concern is infringing on certain of its patent rights. President Fisher of the Fisher Body corporation is quoted as saying: "We have been advised that there is no infringement. Had we thought otherwise we would have abandoned that line of business, since it does not constitute more than 2 per cent of our gross income."

The appellate division of the Supreme court of New York has postponed until next Friday its decision on the question of attachments obtained against the Tennessee Copper company in four suits instituted by W. H. Steiner & Son, who claim damages to the extent of $980,853 for breaches of contract. These are four of seven similar suits commenced against the Tennessee Copper company in the state of New York.

United States Steel common, which again reached its high price at 129, is being recommended in some quarters of Wall street, where an impression prevails that the long interest in the stock is too strongly intrenched to permit of dislodgment without a great downward movement in earnings. The latter and cheap money appear to suggest no such dislodgment at this time.

It is thought in Wall street that there is important buying in U. S. Smelting common stock, based on the prospect of a declaration of increased dividends at the December meeting of the board. It is declared large profits were realized through control of an immense amount of lead, which has been in demand by the allies.

The International Paper company announces its price for renewed contracts covering 1917 requirements will be approximately 3.10c a pound net. The company also announces that tonnage allotted to various publishers will be cut down considerably to fit in with the capacity of the mills. The extent of this reduction has not yet been determined.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announce that the British treasury bills which will be payable in dollars in New York are similar in form to New York City revenue bills, will be available on Dec. 1 and at rates of interest depending upon money market conditions. They will run from thirty to sixty days.

William Morris Imbrie & Co. report that earnings of the Electric Property corporation for October were at the rate of about 25 per cent on the common stock. The earnings for the year to end Dec. 31, 1916, are expected to be about 18 per cent on this issue.

It is declared in Montreal advices that the rumors of a pending change in the presidency of the Canadian Pacific railroad are absolutely without foundation and have probably had their origin in speculative quarters.

Rock Island stock is again the subject of bullish rumors. Predictions are heard in the street that the shares are destined for much higher prices.

Local Curb Active.

Local unlisted securities have been fairly active, especially in the motor and sugar stocks. American Chicle common was weak, declining some 10 points to sales at 71, and closing with stock offered at 75. American Fork and Hoe common was in good demand at 114½, with light offerings at 116½. The preferred is quoted around 125.

Avery common was wanted at 90, with stock offered at 93. The preferred closed at 97 bid, offered at 98. A steady buying in Butler Brothers advanced the market to sales at 290. Consumers common was rather quiet, while the preferred was wanted at 81, with stock offered at 82. Deere & Co. preferred changed hands at 96. Moline Plow preferred sold at 95, ex-dividend.

Colorado Power Dividends.

At a meeting of the directors of the Colorado Power company held on Nov. 16 a resolution was adopted making the dividends on the common stock payable quarterly on Jan. 15, April 15, July 15, and Oct. 15 to stockholders of record the last day of the preceding month. Heretofore the dividends have been made payable semi-annually.

Dividends Declared.

Oklahoma Producing and Refining, regular quarterly 2½ per cent, payable Dec. 23 to stock of record Dec. 11.

Swift & Co., regular quarterly $2, payable Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 9.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The stock market was generally steady today. Business was of the usual Saturday dimensions, consisting chiefly of home funds and copper, rubber, and shipping shares at hardening prices. The decline in Argentine rails was checked. American securities improved under the lead of United States Steel and colsed steady. Money and discount rates were inclined to harden, and rates on New York are being carefully watched. Bar silver, 35 3-16d per ounce. Money, 4¾ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 5½@5⅝ per cent; three months, 5½@5⅝ per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Trading was quiet on the bourse today. Rentes, 61 francs 10 centimes. Exchange on London, 27 francs 81½ centimes. Five per cent loan, 87 francs 85 centimes.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The renewal of near-month liquidation caused a further decline in the market for coffee futures here today, with December contracts selling off to 7.98c, or about 24 points under the high level of the week. The general list opened at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points, and eased off during the morning in the absence of any important support, with May selling off to 8.38c and July to 8.51c. Rumors of an easier tone in the cost and freight market may have had some influence in the late trading and the close was at the lowest point of the day, at a net decline of 7 to 12 points. Sales, 31,250 bags. November and December, 7.98c; January, 8.06c; February, 8.15c; March, 8.24c; April, 8.30c; May, 8.37c; June, 8.43c; July, 8.50c; August, 8.55c; September, 8.60c; October, 8.66c. Spot coffee dull. Rio 7s, 9⅛c; Santos 4s, 10¾c. Offers of very well described Santos 3s were reported in the cost and freight market at 10¼c and of 3s and 4s at 10c, London credits. The official cables from Brazil were not received.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—SUGAR—Following prices were quoted by the wholesale dealers per 100 lbs: Cut loaf, H. & E., $9.18; powdered standard, $8.26; standard cane granulated, $7.98; beet granulated, $7.58; extra C, $7.98; canary, $7.38.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The market for raw sugar continued to decline and prices showed a further loss of ⅛c compared with previous prices. There were sales late last night of 10,000 bags of full duty Peruvian sugar at 4⅝c c. i. f., equal to 5.88c for centrifugal, 96 test, and today there were offerings of Cubas at 4⅝c cost and freight, with refiners again indifferent. Closing prices were 4⅝c cost and freight, equal to 5.88c for centrifugal and 5.01c for molasses. Refined sugar was unchanged at 7.50c for fine granulated, but trading was light, with buyers inclined to hold off and await some adjustment in values, which are above a parity with raws. Futures were again under selling pressure from outside interests as well as trade sources, prompted by the continued weakness of the spot market in spite of unfavorable weather advices from Cuba, which said that it was raining there and that the movement probably would be further delayed. Closing prices were 5 to 8 points net lower, with sales of 16,400 tons. December sold from 4.74c to 4.70c, closing 4.70c; January, 4.29c to 4.23c, closing 4.23c; March, 3.97c to 3.94c, closing 3.92c; May, 4.07c to 4.02c, closing 4.01c; July, 4.12c, closing 4.08c.

MIGHTIEST OF METALS
Steel & Copper
Steel and copper are indeed the mightiest of metals, not only in war, but also in peace-time. Their use throughout the world right now is on an ever-increasing scale—in fact, the demand is becoming so great that a steel and copper famine is shortly expected.
And, as a result of the phenomenal earnings of companies in these industries, they have placed themselves in an Aladdin-like financial position, and stockholders are bountifully participating in their prosperity through increased and extra dividends, as well as handsome market profits.
A comprehensive treatise on the steel and copper situation, along with an analysis of the best purchases in each class of these securities, is contained in the current issue of our fortnightly publication

ANNOUNCEMENT
The officers and directors of the Powdered Coal Engineering & Equipment Company wish to announce that preparations for removal to the new large plant, Western Avenue and Washington Boulevard, will necessitate discontinuing, for the present, demonstrations of burning powdered coal by the Pruden Process, as the Carroll Avenue plant will no longer accommodate the growing requirements.
The new plant, having a floor space area of over 31,500 square feet, will be appointed to meet the various demands for demonstrating to railroads, manufacturers and other large users of fuel the vast economic and smoke elimination features of the Pruden Coal Carburetor.
When the new plant is fully equipped all grades of coal will be used in proving the economies, and ample accommodations will be provided for all who may be interested in fuel economy and smoke elimination.

Hog receipts of 19,000 head met with an active demand at strong to 10c higher prices. The quality of the offerings was ordinary and the best price obtained was $10.15, or 5c lower than Friday's best figures. The bulk of the supply, however, sold at $9.25@10.00, against $9.10@10.00 Friday, and the average price showed a net gain for the day. Pigs were steady.

Final prices made heavy hogs 20c higher than a week ago and other grades 10@15c higher. Pigs were unchanged. The average price of all hogs here this week was placed at $9.50, the lowest made since the first week of October. Total receipts here this week showed a decrease of about 17,000 head, but the aggregate at principal markets was 594,000 head, or the largest week's run reported since last January.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 5,800; Swift & Co., 2,800; Wilson & Co., 2,300; Morris & Co., 1,500; Anglo-American, 1,500; Hammond, 1,500; Boyd-Lunham, 600; Roberts & Oake, 1,000; Western Packing company, 2,000; Miller & Hart, 500; Independent Packing company, 1,600; Brennan Packing company, 1,100; butchers, 1,500; shippers, 2,000; total, 25,700; left over, 3,000.

CATTLE.

Although receipts of beef cattle at Chicago this week showed a decrease of nearly 4,000 head, the demand was more than proportionately curtailed and sales were made at steadily declining prices. The close made steers largely 25@50c lower than a week ago, sole exceptions to this much decline being the prime heavy, fat beeves. Even the latter showed a loss of 10@15c for the week. It is expected the poultry trade will absorb much of the consumptive demand the coming week and traders look for values to continue on a downward trend unless receipts are materially reduced.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 284,500, against 295,700 the preceding week, 176,200 a year ago, and 137,600 two years ago. Total for 1916 to date, 8,376,000, against 7,156,000 the same period in 1915.

SHEEP.

Lambs finished the week at a net advance of 50@75c for the week and the average price this week was placed at $11.65, the highest on record. Sheep and yearlings finished the week at a net gain of 50c and the general market was in an exceptionally strong and healthy position. Receipts for the week showed a decrease of nearly 36,000 head, and shipments were cut in two. This left both packers and shippers with only limited stocks on hand at the finish and traders look forward for continued firmness in the market.

TIDE OF GOLD FLOODS U. S

Each Person Has $39.28 Share of $4,024,095,762 in Circulation—Big Increase Over 1915.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—The swollen gold tide in circulation at the close of the fiscal year was such that, theoretically, every man, woman, and child in the U. S. A. had a $39.28 interest in it. The United States treasurer's report published today showed $4,024,095,762 in circulation, an increase of $454,878,188 over 1915, with about half of the amount in gold.

MANY AMERICANS TO GO TO LYONS, FRANCE, SAMPLE FAIR

Purpose Is to Further and Foster U. S. Exports—$40,000,000 Orders Expected at Gathering.

A committee representing some of the strongest business interests in America has been formed to further and foster American exports by means of the Lyons, France, sample fair.

Working in association with the American organization are committees in France, Great Britain, Italy, Spain, Russia, Switzerland, and other countries.

It is the aim and object of these various committees to bring together at the next annual Lyons sample or wholesale fair, to be held in March, 1917, a large and representative gathering of manufacturers and wholesale buyers from countries all over the world.

Last March the Lyons sample fair, which is the successor of the heretofore great Leipzig fair, now closed to the world because of the war, had 1,342 different exhibitors, representing manufacturers of the following countries: France, Italy, Great Britain, Canada, Russia, Spain, Portugal, and the orient, and a large attendance of wholesale buyers from all over the world.

The American committee proposes to correct the 1916 impression and see that American manufacturers are well represented at this world's great commercial gathering in March, 1917.

The opportunities for placing American goods before buyers from Europe, South America, and the orient offered by this great fair are most unusual.

Last year over $10,000,000 in actual wholesale business was transacted during the fair, and $8,000,000 more was refused because of inability on the part of manufacturers to make deliveries.

In other words, $18,000,000 in wholesale orders was offered to manufacturers at Lyons last year. It is conservatively estimated that more than $40,000,000 in actual orders will be placed at the 1917 Lyons fair.

ROADS' OPENING STATEMENT IN CONGRESS INQUIRY ENDED

Counsel for Rail Heads Says Relations with Labor Will Not Be Discussed at Present.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—The opening statement for the railroads before the joint congressional investigating committee was concluded today by A. P. Thom, counsel for the railway executives' advisory committee.

Mr. Thom disclosed that at this time the railroads would not introduce the subject of their relations with labor.

"It may be," said Mr. Thom, "that congress will have to confront and deal with these questions either before this committee or some other committee, but it ought to be met when it arises and not at present."

Mr. Thom read a memorandum from Richard Olney indorsing the principle of federal incorporation and outlining how Mr. Olney thought it could be best accomplished.

Capital Stock $2,500,000—25,000 shares of $100 each.
$750,000—7% cumulative preferred.
$1,750,000 common.

This Company offers for immediate sale $300,000 of the seven per cent cumulative preferred stock at par with a bonus of one share of common stock with each share of preferred.

The entire proceeds of the sale are to be used for the immediate erection of Mill No. 1 on land which has been secured in the village of Ecorse (three miles from Detroit city).

This property is desirably situated on the Grand Trunk, Michigan Central and Lake Shore Railways and near the Public Dock, which assures the finest shipping facilities, both for the raw material and the finished product.

Mr. Harvey K. Flagler, President and General Manager of the Company, is well known in the steel tube trade. He has built and operated several mills, notably the National Tube Works (now owned by the U. S. Steel Corporation).

Six per cent interest will be allowed on all subscriptions until mill is completed.

Detroit was selected as the site for this mill because of the shipping facilities and because Detroit is rapidly coming to the front as one of the great steel manufacturing points of the nation.

Steel enterprises are now earning large dividends and the condition of the market assures continued large profits for many years to come.

On request, a prospectus will be sent showing the tremendous profits in the steel tube business.

On completion of present financing, the Company will have net current assets of more than $1.33 securing every dollar of outstanding preferred stock.

No bonds, notes, or other evidence of indebtedness maturing later than two years from date of issue may be created without the consent of the holders of two-thirds of the outstanding Preferred Stock.

BASED ON THE 1917 PRODUCTION, A $500 INVESTMENT IN THE PREFERRED STOCK OF THIS COMPANY SHOULD, WITH THE EARNINGS OF THE 20% BONUS OF COMMON STOCK, GIVE TO THE INVESTOR MORE THAN 20% PER YEAR NET ON HIS MONEY.

The Sandow Motor Truck Company is a Chicago Manufacturing Company which took over and is conducting the business of the Sandow Truck Company. This latter Company began the manufacturing of motor trucks five years ago and spent its first and second years in experimental and organization work.

On April 1st, 1913, this Company had visible assets of approximately $5,000. One year later its assets had been increased out of earnings to $35,000.

At that time the business was incorporated, capital increased, and thereafter the Company paid dividends on its Preferred Stock regularly, and in addition accumulated a surplus of over $41,000.

Starting modestly in the small factory shown in one of the above photographs, it progressed to the second factory, and has just moved into the large new factory on Grand Avenue—still retaining its old factory. The Company's plans for the coming year call for 1,000 trucks, and the earnings on this production should be at least $241,000.

AFTER THE PAYMENT ON THE PREFERRED DIVIDENDS THERE WOULD REMAIN $220,000 OF EARNINGS APPLICABLE TO DIVIDENDS ON THE COMMON STOCK.

This is an opportunity which is given to a small portion of the Chicago public to participate in the profits of a Chicago industry that has always earned substantial profits and the net earnings of which for 1917 SHOULD BE OVER 60% ON THE OUTSTANDING COMMON STOCK.

This Company has an extensive line of credit at large and responsible Chicago banks, is on a firm basis, has a proven article for which there is a wide and rapidly growing market, and shows by its business record for the last five years that it has built itself on the basis of merit of its product and sound business methods.

With additional capital the Company will be equipped to produce on a larger scale and to establish agencies in some of the large cities, select dealers in other territory from the large number of applications on file, our sales in the past being largely in local territory, and carry sufficient stock, enabling us to fill orders promptly, which means a quick turnover.

With the increased factory facilities that we have and with the addition of these agencies to our sales department, the earnings will be increasingly large—and both Common and Preferred Stock will appreciate in value and in price.

BONUS SUBJECT TO WITHDRAWAL WITHOUT NOTICE AT ANY TIME. LEGAL MATTERS HAVE BEEN APPROVED BY COUNSEL.

A GOLDEN GIRL—Miss Flora Whitney is perhaps the most interesting bud of the social season in New York. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and the granddaughter of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt and of the late William C. Whitney. Her great uncle is Oliver Payne of Standard Oil. So she is heiress through different lines to many millions. Her father, like his father, is a famous race-horse man, financial magnate, and owner of newspapers and magazines; her mother is a famous sculptor. Miss Whitney is described as "an extremely engaging person, with the grace of her sport loving father and the hauteur of her grandmother, Mrs. Vanderbilt." The chances are her fortune will be sought to refill the coffers of an English noble house, for the Whitneys have one home in England and another in Scotland.

INTERIOR OF A SUBMARINE—From amidships looking aft, showing the 2,400 horsepower Diesel engines which are used for surface cruising and which charge the storage batteries from which power for the electric engines used in submerged running is drawn. The submarine, which was built in the United States, is considered the best in the world, equal in all respects to the German U-boats of the U-53 and Deutschland types. A number of these submarines have been supplied to England by the American company, and several have been ordered for the United States.

Oily skin and shiny nose

How to correct them

The bug-bear of so many—an oily skin and shiny nose—has various contributory causes. Whatever the cause in your case, proper external treatment will relieve your skin of this embarrassing condition.

Begin tonight the following Woodbury treatment. You will feel the difference in your skin the first time you use it.

With warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice.

This treatment will make your skin fresher and clearer the first time you use it. Make it a nightly habit and before long you will see a marked improvement—a promise of that lovelier complexion which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of a skin specialist. A 25c cake of it is sufficient for a month or six weeks treatment. Get a cake today.

WRITE TODAY FOR SAMPLE—For 4c we will send a "week's size" cake. For 10c, samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Cream and Powder. Address THE ANDREW JERGENS CO., 2102 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Ltd., 2103 Sherbrooke Street, Perth, Ontario.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is for sale by every dealer and druggist in Chicago, and, in fact, by dealers everywhere throughout the United States and Canada. Made by The Andrew Jergens Co., New York and Cincinnati.

THE MODERN SOAP PRODUCT

Not a soap powder---not a chipped soap---not a cake---but pure essence of soap in flakes.

How many times have you hesitated over your dainty clothes, dreading the first tubbing they must have. Filmy chiffon waists; your lustrous silk underwear; baby's soft, fluffy woolens; your loveliest table linens with their tender laces, all seem too fine to trust to soap and water.

The new way of laundering makes it so simple to wash these delicate things that you need never hesitate again. With Lux, the modern soap product, you can launder your loveliest silks, laces, woolens, with no fear for the results.

LUX WILL NOT INJURE ANYTHING THAT PURE WATER ALONE WILL NOT INJURE.

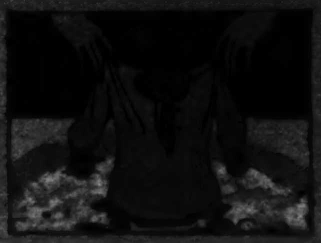
Why soap for fine laundering should be in flakes

Soap should never be rubbed directly on fine fabrics, for the rubbing weakens and will eventually destroy the fabric. The delicate Lux flakes dissolve instantly in hot water, making a soft, creamy lather. Such white, foamy, bubbly suds you never saw before. Lux is so completely soluble that not the slightest trace of soap is left in the garment to yellow or discolor it.

No rubbing is necessary. The dirt comes out so easily! Just a little working about in the water and your clothes are all white and fresh.

Try Lux on your most delicate things

Order a package today and try it on your silks; it will not turn them yellow—on your woolens—it won't shrink them at all. It will not injure even your chiffons. Lux may be purchased at your grocers or at department stores. Lever Brothers Co., Cambridge, Mass.



How to wash silk stockings and silk underwear

Throw a handful of Lux into hot water and whisk into a lather. Add cold water until luke-warm. Colored stockings should be washed separately. Work the stockings gently in the water. Do not rub. Rinse in water the same temperature. It is not necessary to iron silk stockings.

Silk underwear should be washed like silk stockings. Squeeze gently in a thick, sudsy lather made of Lux and luke-warm water. Never rub soap on the garments. Rinse three times in water the same temperature and dry in the shade.

How to wash laces

Soap should never be rubbed directly on lace—it will stain the lace and rot the fine threads, if any particle remains after rinsing. If the lace is at all frail it should be carefully basted to a piece of shrunken cheesecloth before washing. Drop the lace into a bowl of thick lather made of Lux and hot water. DO NOT RUB. The lace may be gently squeezed. Rinse three times in water the same temperature. Pull the cheesecloth taut and pin for drying. This makes ironing unnecessary. If the lace is not basted to cheesecloth it should be carefully pulled and pinned into shape and left until the lace is thoroughly dry.

How to wash delicate waists

Shake a handful of Lux into a bowl of hot water—whisk into a bubbly, foamy lather. Add cold water until luke-warm, then put in your waist and gently squeeze and work up and down in the hands. Rinse three times in water the same temperature and dry in the shade. When nearly dry, iron with a warm iron.

Chiffon waists should be "clapped" in a towel until dry and iron on the wrong side.

Georgette Crepe waists should be gently pulled into shape as they dry. Iron while still damp—gently shaping as you iron.

How to wash baby's woolens

Shake a handful of Lux into a bowl of boiling water. Whisk into a thick, foamy lather. Drop all the little woolens in and let them stand until the water is cool enough for the hand to bear with comfort. Then dip them up and down and gently squeeze. Rinse in clear water of the same temperature. Knitted woolens should not be hung up to dry—but should lie flat on several thicknesses of soft toweling in a moderate temperature.

You will find all of your woolens can be washed by this same method. They will not shrink a single bit and will come out soft and fleecy.

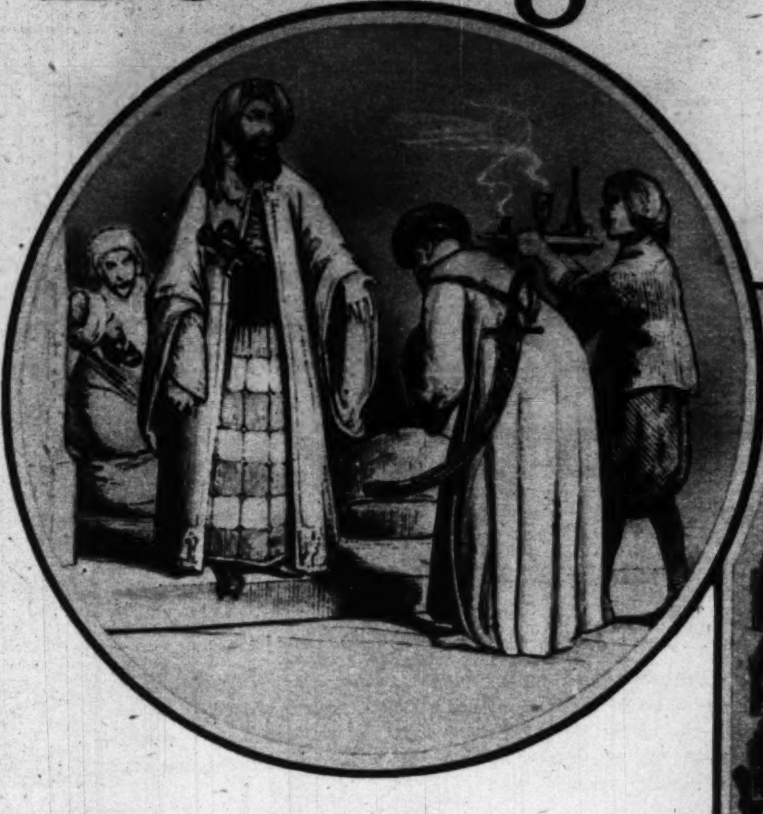
The World's Greatest Beverage for Centuries

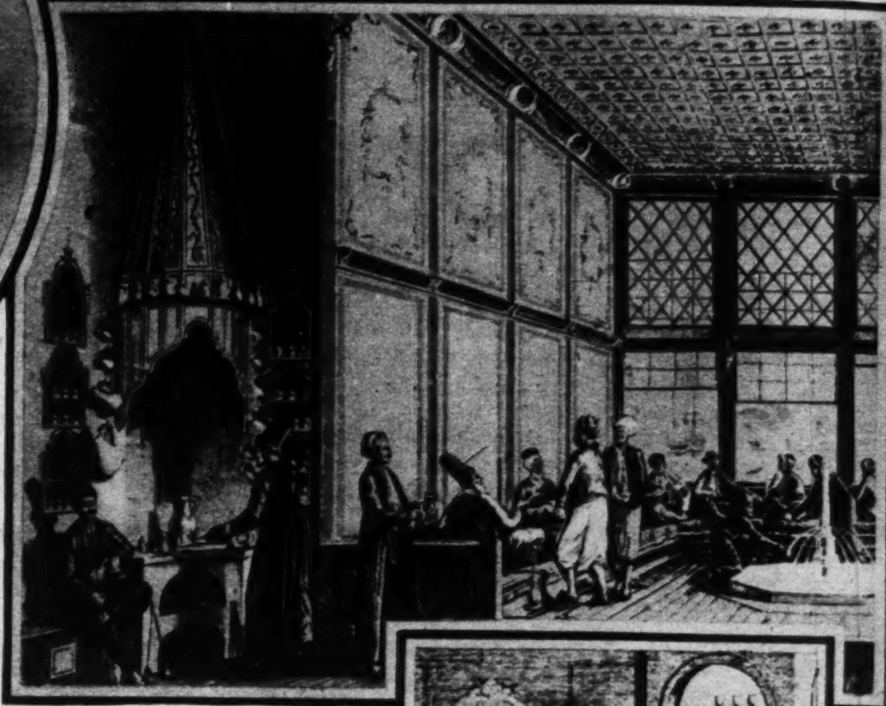
History, through all ages, is full of evidences of the enjoyment which ancient as well as modern peoples have found in coffee and of the respect in which it has always been held.



From an old manuscript of The Thousand and One Nights.

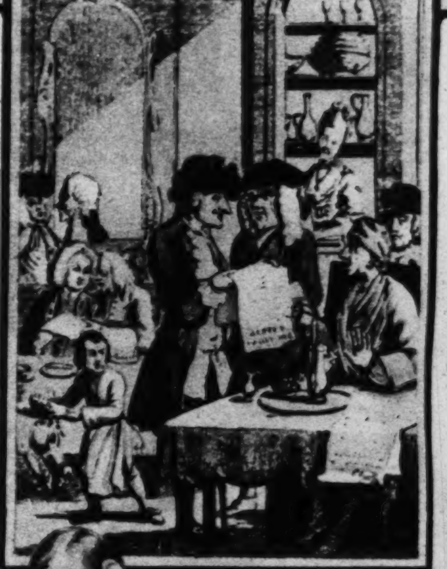
SERVING COFFEE, ON WELCOMING A GUEST IN ANCIENT ARABIA.

It was Coffee the early Arabians chose to offer as an expression of their hospitality. So highly do these people value coffee that to this day no good follower of the prophet concludes his morning prayer without wishing Gemil Eddin, patron saint of coffee, the highest joys of Paradise.



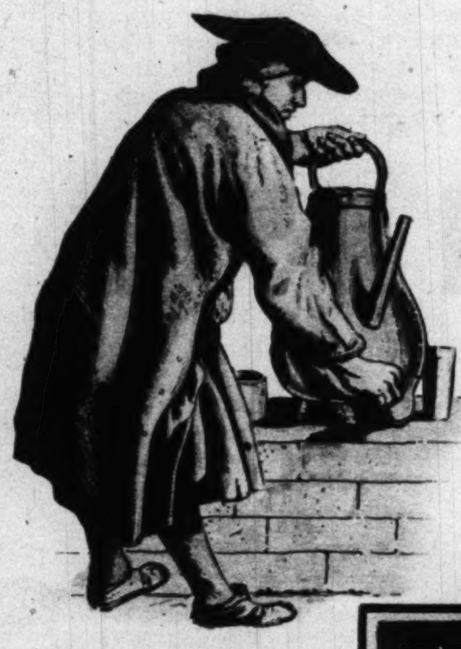
AN EARLY COFFEE HOUSE IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

Very characteristic of the place and the period when the delights of coffee drinking were just being introduced in Turkey. To the enthusiasm of the Turk for coffee may be traced its introduction into France.



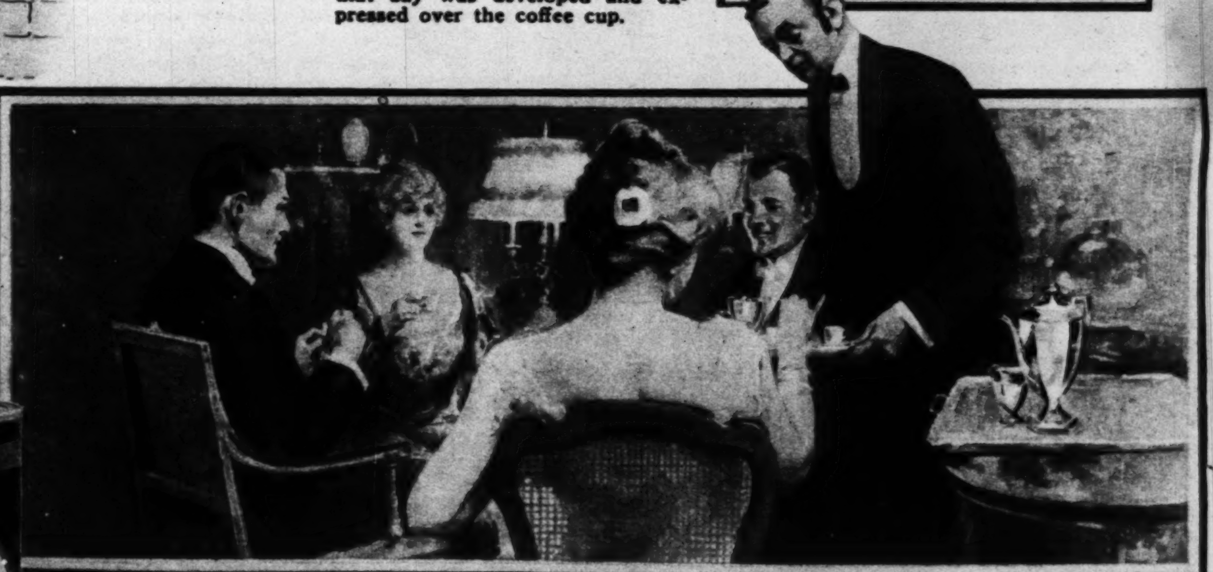
LONDON COFFEE HOUSE POLITICIANS.

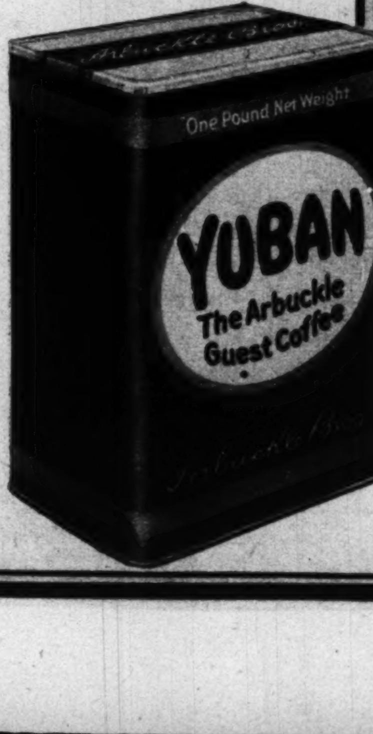
Disraeli says, "The history of the coffee house is often that of the measures, the morals and politics of a people." Certain it is that public opinion on politics, religion, philosophy and all the affairs of that day was developed and expressed over the coffee cup.



A STREET VENDER OF COFFEE IN PARIS—1700.

A reminder of the popularity of coffee in France. Introduced at Court by Louis XIV, coffee gained instant vogue with the aristocracy. The French are to this day ardent devotees of their "petit noir."





THE FAVORITE COFFEE OF THE MOST CRITICAL CITIES IN THE WORLD.

Both in Chicago and New York, Yuban, the private coffee of the greatest coffee merchants, is used in more homes than any other high grade packaged coffee.

With the advantage of these centuries of coffee experience and with all the coffees of the world from which to choose, the greatest coffee merchants selected Yuban for their personal use.

The day it was offered the Chicago public its success was established. Thousands secured it immediately. Today it is used in more Chicago homes than all other high grade packaged coffees combined. If you have not already tried Yuban, order it today. See why all who taste it say it has the flavor they have always wanted and have never before been able to get.

TO VERSAILLES ------ Reproduction of a Painting by Val C. Prinsep

By LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"To Versailles." From the picture by Val C. Prinsep, R. A., in the Mappin Art gallery, Sheffield. Size 94x140 inches. Exhibited at the Royal academy, 1894, and presented to the corporation of Sheffield by Sir Frederick T. Mappin, Bart., M. P.

IT was on Monday morning, Oct. 5, 1789, that the streets of Paris filled with women. Ten thousand of them there were, women grotesquely, fiercely armed, hungry women, furious women, all of them driven on by a mad desire for things long denied them.

The day before at gay Versailles Louis XVI. and his queen, Marie Antoinette, had given a banquet to certain of their loyal favorites. They had feasted and drunk and made merry and given no thought to Paris, twenty miles away, seething ominously beneath the weight of its ugly, starving thousands.

Then the storm broke. The mob raged, swore justice, vowed revenge. Urged on by the half maddened women, the men took up arms and, pushing their faces against the beating rain, surged up the almost impassable valley road which led to Versailles.

King Louis was out hunting. Why should he not hunt when affairs of state bored him, when his own assembly proved unmangeable, and when the whole French populace seemed going insane? So, shrieking and yelling, the mob besieged his palace gates, took him captive on his return, and demanded that he go to Paris with them. Refusing to fire upon women Louis acceeded to their order, and Marie Antoinette, brave and foolish as she always was, insisted on accompanying him.

It was a hapless royal family that made the march to Paris the following day. They took their young son with them, and when they reached the capital they were made virtual prisoners at the Tuilleries. It was the beginning of the end for them. Paris with one blow had the king in its power, and the people of that city, intimidating the assembly by their control of the ruler, became to a great extent the arbiter of the fortunes of France.

It was only a few years after this in France that royalty was abolished, the republic proclaimed, and the amiable but incapable king and his beautiful and frivolous queen were led to the guillotine.

This painting by Prinsep is charged with dramatic action and is an authentic representation of one of the tensest scenes in French revolutionary history. Dramatic incidents always impressed him, and he loved to put on canvas men and women in the throes of strong emotions. Here he has caught vividly the tempestuous, danger spirit of the crowd and stamped it on every face.

Prinsep exhibited his first picture in 1860 and from that time on there were few years when he did not contribute to the Royal academy. Essentially an English painter in spirit and technique, he has many fine paintings to his credit. His "Death of Cleopatra" is an example of his dramatic canvases.

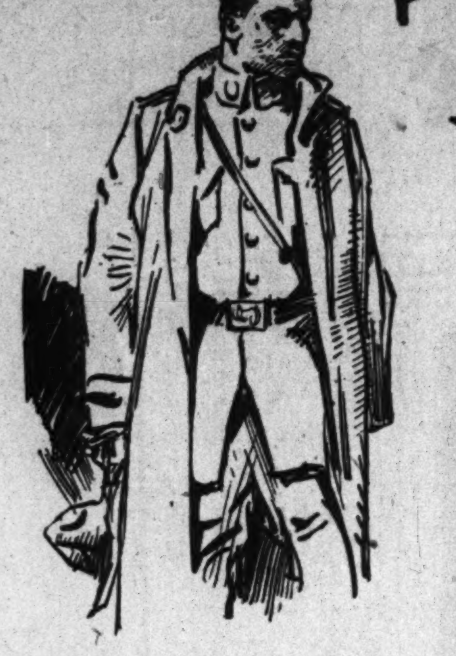
Born in India, many of his subject pictures deal with various phases of eastern life, and at the time that Queen Victoria was made empress of India he received a commission from the Indian government for a series of portrait studies which it gave the queen as a coronation present.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

The LIGHT in HER EYES

A Hopeless Wreck of a Man He Was, Who Wanted Death as an End to Suffering—But He Drew from Her Eyes a Will to Live.

by Margarita Spalding Gerry



AT 3 every afternoon Smith made his way to his lieutenant's steamer chair, in a sheltered nook under the pilot house on the starboard side, carrying rugs and cushions. In perhaps ten minutes he appeared again, almost carrying the lieutenant himself. The lieutenant was tall, where Smith was short, so the arm that Smith had passed around his own neck remained there without much difficulty; and, thus supported, the empty sleeve secured by being thrust into a pocket, and with the sergeant's own arm around the drooping body, the journey from stateroom to deck could be performed without much difficulty. Smith had seen to it that the most desirable spot on the forward deck was reserved for his charge; it was pleasantly in the sun, and yet shielded from the northwest wind that was beginning to have a bite in it. In fact, it was a spot that the deck steward reserved usually only where the tip was of princely magnitude. Yet Smith, who had been put in charge of Harthen's slender resources, had no argument but a hastily uttered story poured into a usually impassive ear.

Those passengers of the Yokohama that happened to be in the vicinity were apt to turn their heads away when the pair appeared. Harthen was too uncomfortably like a corpse to present a spectacle upon which their eyes cared to rest. And when the fussy, anxious little attendant had cautiously lowered his charge into the depths of the chair, swathed him with so many rugs that it was only by inference that one could imagine a man was at the center of them, and sat down on the camp stool at his side, the emaciated face, with the thick skin lying in loose, yellowed folds over the large features, was still without expression. One could only conjecture whether the listlessness of the hollow eyes was due to weakness or despair.

On the fourth morning out, Miss Halstead, with a motion of her definite little right hand which signified that the companions of her promenade should go on without her—there was one new one that afternoon—stopped before the pair.

"Why do you always hold his hand in yours?" she inquired, without prelude. Directness was characteristic of her. Underneath the tender appeal of the glance of eye and quality of voice was the quiet assurance that people would do as she suggested

"Why, it's this way, ma'am," he answered with the deference that he rarely accorded to unmilitary interlocutors. "The lootenant's been all shot up. And his nerves is all to the bad—it's a nervous breakdown, the doctor says," with a sudden assumption of medical phraseology. "Though it's insultin', it seems to me, to talk about his havin' nerves!"

"Tell me all about it. No, no, please sit. I understand, you can't move. I would rather stand." She was facing them as she leaned against the railing. "Doesn't he hear?" This query was made with her eyes, but was so definite that Smith answered it aloud.

"No, indeed, ma'am." It was queer that the man instinctively called her "ma'am" when he was convinced that she was not only unmarried but very young. "He's been that way for weeks. He either doesn't hear at all, or he's so numblike that he doesn't care. It would be good for him, I figure it out, if something he heard would start him up a bit. It ain't natural to be like he is."

The wind had loosened a corner of the big plaided rug whose reds and greens made more ghastly the ghastly face. A shudder passed over the girl as the long lankness of the sleeve was laid bare, empty from the shoulder; and then tears made her eyes more tender. But the sergeant leaned forward to tuck in, with his disengaged right hand, the rug around the bony shoulders. His touch was as tender and fussy as that of an inexperienced little mother with a month old baby. But a glance from Miss Halstead's eyes brought him back to the lieutenant's bony fingers, clasped tight in his own hard hand.

"Would you mind—if it isn't too much trouble——?" Smith straightened his shoulders and was twice the man he was before he heard the gentle courtesy of her voice. "I would so love to hear the whole story, from the very beginning, you know—every word!"

"Indeed, I'd be proud to tell you, ma'am."

Miss Halstead could not know that half the passenger list of the Yokohama had made the request she had voiced, to be refused in gruff discourtesy.

"We was part of the allies about Tien-Tsin, and things was goin' bad. There was the old city, and the walls went around it in a sort of a square. And the Chinamen was pouring shot and shell down into us from the walls as hard as they could drive. Outside the walls was a rotten moat, full of Chinamen, some of 'em dead for a week. Outside that was a swamp, and next to that a field. The field was where the general in chief, an Englishman, was directing things and where the reserves was.

"I wasn't in the lootenant's company at first—he was actin' captain, only he hadn't been made that yet official. Mine was the Fourth. He had just reported from taking a wounded chap to the rear under heavy fire, and volunteered for service and got it.

"Then he came out where I was—I hadn't been in action—there ain't no reason for to tell you why." His face was darkly red and he turned his eyes away from her. "I was feelin' sore. And the lootenant knew it by lookin' at me, so he said: 'You don't give a damn, do you?' And I said I didn't. Then he laughed, a big, happy sort of a laugh. He was about the huskiest off'cer I ever see, ma'am; not much of a man to make a show around where ladies was, but a jim-dandy to make men follow after him. 'Then you come along with me, we don't want any chaps that have got wives and babies to go home to,' he went on. 'For it's a stiff job we're going in for. But if some fools like us don't get up near enough to shoot the grin out of their yellow faces—well, there are women and children within the walls! And there's a line in the dispatches for every one of us that falls!'

"It was a tough enough proposition to get the men across the field. For, you know, that sort of thing ain't got the hurrah and trumpeting and dash of a general charge. It's just pushing your men on bit by bit where it's mighty bad walkin' and seein', on an average of once a minute, some man crumple up and slip down. But when we got into the marsh it got harder still. The lootenant did his best, but we was only a hundred and sixty to start with, and then we was only about eighty. So pretty soon the men stopped altogether, and he couldn't get 'em on. He had his left arm brandishin' around in the air the way you can't help doin' when you're cursin' 'em and beggin' 'em by turns, and kickin', too, and threatenin' to shoot, when a lump of shrapnel come along and glanced off from a tree and tore his arm all to pieces. And he crumpled up, too, and slid to the ground.

"When I got to him he was dyin' peaceful enough, because an artery had been cut that had made a good size puddle of blood on the ground. But when he came to a little he knew, of course, that we wouldn't get up under the walls unless he made us, so he gave up feelin' comfy on the ground and got me to help him to screw the thing up somehow and plug the hole with first aid bandages. He got to his feet, with the hanging hand stuck into a pocket because it got in the way. And—well, he got us up there somehow. I don't know whether the Lord or the devil helped him to do it. But sixty of us—with him at the head, looking like nothin' human that I ever see and yelling like a crazy man—got through the stinkin' water of that there moat and hung on somehow and held the fire so the other chaps could get their breath and forget how bad they wanted to run. It seemed to me that it was the next minute that the Japs piled into it and there was a big hurrah, with some more scrappin', of course, but it's different when it's on your side. And then it was over and we got in.

"And now it's a gamble whether he quits or not. The doctors say he's cured, but I think something's broken inside of his head, or nerves or something, and he don't particular want to live. And I can't make him, nohow. He don't give a d—dime even when I read him the dispatches and he sees that he's been posted by the English general for conspicuous gallantry and recommended for the V. C.—which, of course, he can't get, not being an Englishman, but is the nearest they could come to giving it to him—and decorated by the Japanese. His captain's commission is waiting for him. He's got the whole service in his pocket! And he won't even take an egg and sherry unless I choke him so he has to swallow it! And then he'd fight me if he wasn't so weak!"

Miss Halstead had been following the sergeant's story with a face that alternately paled and flushed and with lips that often trembled. With her eyes hidden she said to Smith:

"You have to hold his hand like that—all the time? Or he shakes and trembles so? But that keeps you by him! That is hard on you—confining."

The sergeant cleared his throat and spoke with embarrassed gruffness:

"That ain't nothin', ma'am, to what I'd like to do. The more you git a chance to do the more doggoned proud you are when it's a man—like—him."

"Do you suppose——" The girl turned on him with the impersonal directness that gave such a curious accession of dignity to her slight and charming presence. "Would it make any difference to him if it was the hand of any one else—my hand?"

Sara had never received a greater tribute than the fact that the battered personality that confronted her saw nothing either belittling or humorous in her suggestion:

"We might try it, ma'am, and see."

Cautiously a hand, soft yet vigorous, slid its smooth beauty into the long, bony fingers as the sergeant drew his hand away. The sergeant straightened himself and stretched his cramped arms luxuriously. Miss Halstead nodded to him with authority:

"Go and get some rest," she said, under her breath, but with the finality that marked her. "I'll stay here for two hours."

It is doubtful if the Yokohama in the length of its seagoing career had ever had the sensation that was furnished it that day. When the tidings reached the aunt, the fiction of whose authority was one of Miss Halstead's most valued possessions, since it enabled her to have her own way very nearly to the top of her bent, that lady swallowed hard in anticipation of certain defeat and bore down upon the spot on the forward deck, under the pilot house, on the starboard side.

Miss Halstead, who understood perfectly that none of the excellent reasons she might bring forward to explain her action would be comprehended by her relative, confined herself in the short conversation, where neither voice rose above a beautifully enunciated murmur, to a gentle statement of her intentions in the matter. Gradually the wave of amusement, the undercurrent of ridicule, subsided around the invulnerable young figure, and she was tacitly allowed to fill her place at the side of the piteous wreck with no comment.

For days Harthen was apparently oblivious. At first he was actually so, too near to the death he had evaded and too indifferent to the life he might have to take up again to be conscious that it was not Smith's hand that closed around his own. But there came a day when something that was not an idea and not altogether a sensation penetrated to the sullen recesses where the bewildered soul of him had taken refuge, and he turned his eyes and looked. Out of a vaguely inimical space, peopled hitherto with discordant sounds and distasteful images, two eyes, made tender by thick lashes of velvet blackness, regarded him. From that day, although motion was to him a thing to be dreaded and speech a phenomenon almost impossible to compass, although he might lie for hours in an apathy that was apparently never to be lifted, yet in some vague, thrilling way he felt.

They had been at sea two weeks before there was any evidence in the invalid's manner that her presence meant anything to him. It was when she was ten minutes late one afternoon. Smith had observed it, for he had made a mental note that the beer would be going stale, when his attention was drawn to his patient's unusual restlessness. From one side to the other Harthen turned his heavy head, his eyes brightened by unmistakable irritable inquiry, and the rugs displaced by his peevish motions.

At that moment Miss Halstead came into sight. And into the lieutenant's hollow eyes there came unmistakable satisfaction. Smith saw it, and from that day dated the military salute with which he invariably greeted the lady. It was the one mark of deference he knew concerning whose good form he could have no doubt. Miss Halstead realized her promotion and marked it with a quiet little side smile, full of indulgent humor.

But the stirring of the lapsed personality of the man brought to the surface a sediment of sullen despair. He had lifted his whole body eagerly. But the motion hurt the still sore wound. And that brought back, what he had for the thousandth time forgotten, that inconceivable outrage, the loss of his arm. The blood for an instant rushed to his anguished, humiliated face and then ebbed away. His eyes turned to the side of the ship, sought the water. There was sinister calculation in their hopeless depths. Being a woman who was all a-tingle with delicate perceptions of the very thoughts of others, Miss Halstead understood.

"He is thinking he might as well drop overboard," she said to herself, in painful sympathy, as the poor eyes sought hers in hunted uncertainty as to how much she had divined. "What can I do that will make him want to live?"

She would not act hastily. She knew that the man's tragedy was a desperate one.

"And I'm sure he's so worth while!" she sighed to herself.

But through the two hours' quietude she sat with her mind at work. "If he were once convinced that he could make up for it somehow," she mused.

She began by appearing at Harthen's side with a bundle of letters—steamer letters, she remarked to the departing Smith, which she had not yet had time to read, and which she would look over as she sat there. When Harthen and she were alone together she glanced through one or two and began making a comment or so aloud. Talking had never been a part of the program; but now, in spite of persistent silence, she chose to consider that the invalid could listen.

"Plucky fellow!" she exclaimed emphatically. "Well, that is just about the bravest man I know! Any other man would have thought his life was over." She almost laughed out with satisfaction, for the fingers that she held contracted. So she went on: "It's one of my friends who has had a knockdown blow. Tuberculosis, you know. He couldn't live east. And he had just worked up a splendid law practice. He had to lose all his equipment—half his life thrown away——" She paused a moment artistically, and then fluttered leaves and spoke with an absent voice: "Any one might be excused for being bitter. But he tells me he is getting interested in the conditions on the Indian reservations—there in dry countries where he can live, you know. Here—yes, this is what he says: 'a practically unlimited field—it's the type of character. They are such splendid men.' Good gracious, he got a bear! But there, I mustn't tire you." She lapsed into silence, noting, from the corner of her eye, that there was an unmistakable flicker of interest in the dull eyes.

From Harthen, though from day to day even the most indifferent could see improvement—Smith recorded with something very like tears of joy in his little reddened blue eyes that the lieutenant was so much better that he swore when the sergeant was clumsy in getting him on deck—there was never a word. Whether he was conscious of her effort, whether he was bored by it or simply enduring, often whether he was awake even, there was nothing to tell her. Until it came to the last day.

They were all out on deck, watching the indistinct line of California coast form itself into the beautiful crescent harbor. Miss Halstead, in the midst of the general confusion and excitement, chose to stand near Harthen, not speaking but conveying to him in this moment that must be fraught for him with almost unbearable feeling—she had discovered from Smith that a mother was awaiting him—the assurance of her own understanding thought. As she turned away to answer some query of her aunt she thought that her skirt caught and bent over to detach it. But it was Harthen's hand. He was looking strongly up at her, and his gray eyes were keen and bright.

"I am going to live," he said. "I want you to know it."

* * *

Miss Halstead came into her drawing room with the slightest frown of impatience upon her face. Kerby had forgotten the sponge cakes and the lemon for tea again, and Capt. Harthen had written that he would be there at 5. Sara was impatient of forms in most things. But it was truism that certain things had to be, and she had very little patience with people that did not do their work. Now she rang for Kerby, brought him to a sense of his shortcomings in a very few words, and sent him away with the distinct impression that if it happened again he would lose a very good situation. Then she dismissed the tiresome detail from her consciousness and wondered how Capt. Harthen would look after the intervening months.

She had supposed that the landing at San Francisco meant the ending of the incident that had formed the central point of the voyage. With the impersonality that was so curious a contrast to the impassioned interest with which she threw herself into the pursuit of her ideas, she had not the slightest emotion over the fact that, having drawn the man back into a wholesome attitude toward his life, she would probably never see him again. While Harthen as an invalid might make overwhelming appeal to the exquisite tenderness that awoke in her at the sight of suffering, she realized perfectly that Harthen, a normal human being, would probably prove rather tiresome than otherwise.

A heavier dash of rain against the glass sent her to the window with a misgiving concerning the effect upon an invalid of the driving rain. Then she caught herself. Of course Capt. Harthen was probably perfectly well at this time—in fact, his letter had said he was. She was turning from the spectacle of the moving stream of bobbing, glistening umbrellas when a tall figure came into sight; it was swinging along at a great pace, with an easy, vigorous stride that filled her with quick approval of the power it revealed. The man carried no umbrella. His gray felt army hat shed the rain in streams, and the rubber cape that he wore was sleek with wet. And as he drew nearer Miss Halstead saw that his strong, high military boots looked impervious to all but the deluge. As the man climbed her own steps she turned from the window with a sudden realization that it was Harthen himself.

She was still conscious of a most unusual sense of embarrassment when Kerby announced him. It was not within her reckoning that the man should carry with him quite the sense of dominance that that splendidly picturesque figure had revealed. The soft chimes of a clock in the next room sounded five times as Harthen, having wriggled his glove off against his thigh after an expert fashion, handed it to the waiting servant, advanced into the center of the room, and stood gravely in the frivolous candle light awaiting her greeting.

He had chosen to wear the khaki which she had been used to think made more deathlike the face of the invalid the summer before. But now it covered the deep chest, the magnificently straight and broad shoulders, the slender waist and powerful limbs of a man who stood facing her in the full, almost insolent splendor of manhood. Although she would not let her eyes actually seek it, she felt that even the empty sleeve was worn like a badge of honor, flaunted with almost defiant bravery, a pennant to ward off pity. So splendidly set up he was, so hard of muscle, without an ounce of flesh that he could do without, so evidently was the will the master, that she caught her breath almost with terror, as if before an uncannily effective, soulless, ruthless machine of steel and electricity.

She raised her eyes to his face. It was all brown and gray; his skin was as dark almost as the khaki against it, his hair was a lighter brown, and his gray eyes, direct and steady, looked into hers with cool power. She had not guessed, in all the days that she had sat beside him on the Yokohama, how fine were the lines of his features, how much capacity for thought lay in the broad forehead, how firmly the lips were set, and how grim was the prominence of the chin. His eyes held her, and she felt flutteringly dominated, anxious to conciliate. She was at once irritated with herself and on the defensive; the sensation was a new one. So, after the first greeting, she spoke with the delicate, incisive coolness of which she was capable, instead of the warmth of welcome that the circumstances would have naturally demanded.

"You are on your way to Washington, you said?"

"To take instructions from the state department—they're giving me a special detail to make some observations." He spoke with crisp, impersonal decisiveness. "But before I sail—I go by way of Russia—I had to see you——"

"What was the obligation?" Something within her was pitting against him, even while she was inwardly scolding herself for rudeness to the guest who certainly demanded consideration at her hands.

But he accepted her challenge with seriousness:

"I considered it an obligation. I told you I was going to live. I had made up my mind to drop off the side before we landed. I was just waiting until I could walk the distance from the chair. You were the first person that made me think living was worth the effort—good Lord, it wasn't that there weren't enough people after one in Nagasaki, what with volunteer nurses smoothing your forehead when all you wanted was to be allowed to go to sleep, and girls laying flowers on your pillow, and all that rot. But not a soul of them all had the sense to know that what a fellow wants in a case like that isn't sympathy, but assurance that there is a way to live—that he can still be on his job. Why, even Gen. Hamlin went out of the room with the tears streaming down his face, and a dandy old scrapper like him ought to have known better than that. But you knew, and you told me just what I wanted to know. So, of course, I had to come here, as soon as I had had a chance to get myself into condition, so you could see whether you thought I had made good so far. I owed that to you——"

The impression that his manner conveyed was that this was a piece of almost professional duty, that he was reporting to a superior officer. Sara fell into the mood; she regarded him with a face as serious as his own:

"How did you do it?" she said. "It's like a miracle." Then she made an effort to bring the situation into the normal. She seated herself and lighted the lamp under the kettle. "But I'm sure you must want some tea."

He disregarded the interruption, although he took the easy chair opposite to her. But he answered the question she had asked.

"I went into training as soon as I was strong enough to walk." It was odd how the detached definiteness of his tone had the force to Sara of the most impassioned utterance she had ever heard. Perhaps it was that her quick imagination constructed for her the determination not to be conquered that lay behind it. "There was an ex-bruiser at home that had some good ideas," he went on, "and we worked out some exercises that served. The worst of it was the fat." There was the nearest to a show of emotion that the interview had brought forth—the emphasis on the word "fat" was indescribable in its abhorrence. "As soon as I began to gain everything went to flesh—all the food they give to invalids do that. So I had to work and diet, too, to get that off and get muscle up again."

He paused a moment, and the muscles of his face tightened.

"The doctors had told me that the shoulder where they had taken off the arm would certainly be higher than the other, and that the lung would be partially atrophied—always was in such cases. I told them—with

"I'm going to get well: I want you to know it."

Rough Stuff by Berton Braley

She Wanted a Cave Man and One Appeared. And, Girls, He Was the Roughest Thing!

THERE are as many different ways of getting across with a woman as there are women. For myself, I never was much in the lady killer line, though I'm conceited enough to think there are one or two of them now who'd dampen a handkerchief if I kicked off suddenly. Leastwise, I like to think that, because I don't like to figure that whether I stick around or hit the sky trail makes no difference to anybody but me.

But as I was saying, there are near to a billion variegated fashions of wooing a woman, but they're all based on two formulas. There's two schools of thought as to making love—one is to please the lady, and the other is to fight her.

The devotees of one school are the ones that keep the candy stores and the florists and the taxicab business up; the pupils of the other believe in Schrecklichkeit instead of soda and bombs instead of bonbons, so to speak. Both ways have advantages.

It seems to have been the experience of the world that nearly every woman longs in her heart for some big, husky, deep voiced brute who will grab her in a python grip and carry her away by main force. And though she does her darndest to keep her admirers in their place—underneath her feet—if one of 'em stops being a door mat and gives even slight evidences of independence, she has a little thrill and magnifies this display of individuality into a cave man's ruthless strength. Many a married man doesn't realize today that the chief reason his wife stands for him is because she thinks he is, secretly and deep down in his heart, a cave man, veneered by civilization, but a cave man none the less.

Marion Robinson not only thought she'd like to be wooed by a cave man, but said so. Said so to me and two or three other fellows who used to call on her now and then, or frequently and often.

"O!" she'd breathe, clasping her hands excitedly, "O, I get so tired of you men of today with your neat clothes and your neat manners and your pleasant, agreeable ways. What a woman wants is a great big primal man who will trample her wishes underfoot and order her around and carry her off and marry her at last whether she wants it or not. I could just love such a man!"

And we'd all look conscious and foolish, and now and then one of us, when we were alone with Marion, would attempt a cave man stunt, only to have her laugh at us. Now you can't be rough and masterful with a girl who laughs at you when you try it.

But one night, just when she was expatiating on the absence of the troglodyte from modern life and enthusing over what a hit a cave man would make with her, the gates clicked—this was in a small town where folks lived in regular houses with fences to 'em—and after a few seconds a man stood at the porch steps, with his hat off, and looked the bunch over coolly.

He was about the biggest man I ever saw outside of a circus. He must have stood about six feet six and he looked four feet across the shoulders. His hair was black and shaggy and disordered, and the hand he held his hat in was as big as two or three of mine, and mine aren't lady fingers.

"Marion," he said, after a moment, "send these poor little shrimps away, I want to talk to you—alone."

The poor little shrimps—Harkins, Bretton, and I—glared at him in a petrified sort of way, but didn't do anything. I didn't care for being called a little shrimp in front of a very pretty girl who had been bewailing the absence of cave man stuff, but after a careful survey of the chest of the giant I had no remarks to offer.

"How dare you!" cried Marion, indignantly. "Go away! I don't know you, I never saw you before."

"I know you," the behemoth said, "and the rest doesn't matter. Send them away."

Harkins got his voice. "If you're a gentleman," he said, "you will do as the lady asks. If you aren't a gentleman——"

"Well, I'm not," observed the behemoth, "I'm a man. And if this woman won't send you away I'll throw you away."

Harkins had more courage than I have. He made a swipe at the intruder, and yelled to me to jump him, too. I dove for his knees to keel him over. Bretton grabbed for his arm.

What's the use? I might as well have tackled two cement pillars, and as for Bretton and Harkins, he took them by the scruff of their necks and with me hanging to his knees, walked over and dropped them outside the fence. Then he took me by the seat of my trousers and tossed me over after them.

"There," he said, "get out and stay out. I won't hurt the girl, so don't bring any cops around here. I'm tired of licking cops."

We didn't summon the police.

We didn't go away, however; we hung around and listened as he went back to the porch. There was a sound of voices, his and hers, in altercation, then they weren't so loud, and finally we took a peek around a bush and saw the mastodon sitting on the porch and talking to Marion, who was quietly seated in an arm chair.

"Do not touch my finger tip
With a nice respectful peck,
Grab me with a python grip;
If I fight you, break my neck."

Bretton quoted softly, and we went away from there.

"It's the cave man line gets over," said Harkins, sadly, a little later. "'Treat me rough, kid, treat me rough,' is the motto of womankind. But I wonder where Hercules blew in from. His manners were harsh but his build was classy."

All I said was, "Colonel, you may fill the glasses again."

Next day I met Marion driving her car down Main street. She stopped and called to me.

"O, Ralph," she cried, "wasn't it awful? I was never so scared in my life. I thought at first he was crazy, but he isn't. And after he came back to the porch I told him what I thought of him and said he shouldn't act that way in civilized society, and pretty quick he was saying 'Yes, ma'am,' and 'No, ma'am' to me, and apologizing for having called me Marion. And I told him if he would sit quietly on the steps for a while and then go away I wouldn't call the police."

"Where'd he come from?" I asked.

"He wouldn't tell me that," Marion said, "nor where he learned my name. But he is a nice giant after all, in spite of his rough ways. He is coming tomorrow evening and promises to treat you men differently if you are there. Will you come? I'm sure you'll like him if you do."

And that's how I happened to be there the next night—and, I suppose, how Harkins and Bretton happened to be there, too. The giant was present, and after being introduced by Marion as Mr. Blake, he swallowed once or twice and said, "I—I guess I was a little rough yesterday with you men; I apologize." And then he shut up and didn't say a word for half an hour when he suddenly announced that he and Marion were going for a walk. "Just the two of us," he added.

"But, we're not," she protested. "You said, you promised——"

"Just the two of us," he repeated, and reached out that huge hand and fairly lifted her to her feet. Then he put his arm around her and half carried her down the steps and out on the graveled walk.

"Good-night boys," he said, and they disappeared in the darkness.

"Good night!" repeated Harkins. And we went to the same place we had found consolation before.

Well, that was the way matters went for several days. Marion would call us up on the telephone and insist that the mastodon had reformed, that he had promised not to be rough any more, but when we would gather, and he showed up, the party would always end by his shooing us off the porch or taking Marion away for a walk. And after that first day she didn't say anything about our being cowards, either. She had sense enough not to blame us for refusing to wrestle with Goliath.

When we suggested the police she'd protest, because she didn't want to be the laughing stock of the community, and we three fellows, and half a dozen others who were occasional callers at Marion's, organized a committee of vigilantes and decided to take other measures.

"I tell you the girl's scared to death," said Harkins, "and it's up to us to rescue her from this monster somehow. I think he's crazy, myself. I suggest we get a gang together, hold him up with a gun some night, and give him an hour to leave town on penalty of death."

"Piffle!" protested Bretton, "that's melodrama."

"All right, what's your remedy?" demanded Harkins.

Bretton just shrugged his shoulders. "I'd leave him alone until Marion gets tired of him, then she'll can him herself."

"But he might carry her away and marry her by force?" said Harkins.

"Not unless she really, down in her heart, wanted him to," said Bretton. "If she likes cave man stuff enough to let him get away with that, why we haven't any business butting in. Let the big guy alone; he'll queer himself in time, I think."

And he wouldn't have anything to do with any plans to knock Behemoth on the head. But the rest of us thought we had a duty to save the girl from the big guy, and we went out with Harkins one night to help stick him up.

Harkins, with a mask on, stepped out of the tree shadows just as the giant was going home from Marion's, and told him to throw up his hands.

"What for?" the giant wanted to know, looking down the gun barrel.

"Because I say so," said Harkins; "quick now."

So the big guy's hands went up quick—so quick that Harkins didn't know what happened, except that his gun hand felt numb. The behemoth had knocked the gun out of his hand. Harkins didn't have time to puzzle much over how the thing had transpired, for the behemoth hit him on the jaw and the subsequent proceedings were nothing in his young life. The jaw was broken, but would be mended in a month or two.

That left Harkins out of our bunch of conspirators. After I went to see him and found he couldn't talk, I wandered down to the Cafe of Consolations where we disgruntled persons were wont to foregather. But there was no sign of Bretton. I stepped into one of the little pews the café man had built, and ordered a beer while I glanced at the afternoon paper. Somebody came in from the other end of the bar and sat in the next pew, where I couldn't see them. But I heard them and, though I don't believe in this listening stuff, when I recognized the voices I did listen.

"But how was I to know he wasn't a regular crook?" said one voice. "He stuck a gun in my face and told me to throw up my hands. If I'd known the poor boob was Harkins I'd have taken the gun away from him and spanked him instead. He ought to be spanked for carrying weapons like that. Why, he might have shot me."

"Well," the other voice said—and it was Bretton talking—"I don't want any more broken bones in this drama. It might be serious. All I want is for you to pull this cave man stunt until the girl gets so sick of you she never wants to see you again. That's the dope—and you do what I tell you and the cash will be yours. Call me a languishing dandy, will she?"

They went on talking, but I couldn't hear what they said. What I heard was enough to prove to me that Breton had hired the behemoth to make love to Marion in cave man style, with the idea of catching the girl himself—on the rebound, you might say.

I liked Marion a lot, but I didn't want to marry her, and with Harkins in the hospital there wasn't any rival of any importance except Bretton for the giant.

I didn't pay any more attention to the affair after that, except now and then to wonder how Bretton's plot was getting along, until about a week later when I got a telephone call from Bretton to meet him at a lonely little church in a village about ten miles from the city. That's all the information he'd give me and I drove out in the car.

Bretton was waiting for me at the doorstep of the parsonage, and he drew me into the shadow. "Shush," he said, "hide here and see what happens."

Feeling like a fool, I hid with him and by and by along comes another car and draws up to the curb and out of it jumps the behemoth, with Marion in his arms.

And right there Bretton came out of the shadows and said, "Ha! you big brute; you thought you'd carry her away by main force, did you? Well, I'll save her." He rushed at the big man, who set Marion down on her feet and turned to face him. Bretton hit him what seemed like a hard blow in the stomach, and the behemoth dropped like a stunned ox in the grass, with a groan.

Then Bretton went over and said, "Poor little girl, poor little girl. Were you terribly frightened? I didn't think he'd go to such lengths as these. I'm glad I came in time to rescue you."

And the poor little girl said, "Jim Bretton, when I need you to rescue me I'll ask for you. What do you mean by butting in here? Don't you suppose I could yell for the police or something if I didn't want to come? And if you've hurt Ed I'll never forgive you."

She ran over to the prostrate giant, who was groaning terribly, and lifted his head. "Are you much hurt, darling?" she said.

He sat up with a jerk.

"Hurt?" he growled, "by that little tap? Rot. He paid me to do a fall and I did it. It didn't work on you the way he thought it would, but I've earned my money—and I'm through."

He got to his feet and went over to Bretton.

"Produce," he said, "two hundred bones—as per agreement."

Bretton, with a sickly grin, produced

"All right," said the giant as he counted the money. "Now I've got enough to stake me for my big fight with Porky Burke, and my fortune's made. Much obliged, folks," and he turned and walked away. The next time I saw him was in the ring, when he won a championship.

Just about the time the big lad left the minister came out and wanted to know what all the excitement was about. Bretton looked at Marion sadly.

"I had intended to marry this lady," he said, "but I guess it's all off."

Marion blushed very prettily.

"Not necessarily," she said.

"B—b—but," Bretton shouted, "I heard you call him darling and I thought——"

"Just what I'd intended you to think," said Marion. Besides, I wormed your plot out of him the first night he came—and he's been my humble servant ever since."

"And yet you—you love me and you'll marry me?"

"Of course, you foolish boy," she said. "If you'll go to all that trouble for me you must want me pretty bad. Besides, Jimmie, I know you aren't rolling in money and I don't want to see you waste your two hundred dollars."

"Come right in," said the minister.

elaborations—that they didn't know what they were talking about, that I didn't propose to carry around anything like that." Here he stood, his lean figure very tense and straight. "Would you mind coming here a minute, Miss Halstead?" he asked. "And put your hand here?"

She obeyed his gesture and spread her fingers over his chest, while he inflated the lungs underneath. "And here," he commanded, "on my back!" Again she obeyed, and felt the great bands knot and unknot under her hand as he flexed the muscles as seriously as though promotion in his profession pended on his establishing his fitness before this judge. "Do you see any signs of atrophy there?" he challenged her. "And is there any difference in the line of this shoulder?"

She shook her head in evidence of the verdict, and sank into her chair again, oddly disconcerted.

"I strike you as being a whole man, not a makeshift?" he asked, his searching eyes on hers. "Ready to do a man's work?"

She nodded again, afraid to trust her voice.

"Then that's done." He heaved a big sigh, and sat looking into the firelight with a certain restfulness in his face. He turned suddenly on her again. "And, of course, you did it, you know that?"

She began to disclaim, but he cut her protestations short. "O, yes, you did it," he ended the matter.

She found it comfortable to create a diversion and made a cup of tea, which he accepted perfunctorily. She couldn't help seeing how cleverly he managed, using the wide arm of his chair as a table, and adjusting his plate and cake and cup and saucer so well that no one would have realized that he was making one hand do the work of two. She thought how much perseverance, how much effort, that skill in itself betrayed, and her throat contracted, but more in admiration than in pity.

"Yes, it took a good long time to learn," he said prosily, answering the thought behind her eyes. "But it is cutting up meat and putting on gloves that is really hard."

"And what is it to be now?" she asked.

"I think my work is going to be in China," he said. "I doubt if I come back here for more than a visit. The Chinese fighting man is a pretty fine being; he doesn't care what happens to him. You get to respect men that even with your superior training you have had to put up a good hard fight to beat. Things are going to be happening. And I'd like to have a hand in making an army. I tell you, there's great stuff there!" The firelight caught his eyes, and for the first time she saw the gleam in them of exaltation; he was on fire with enthusiasm. It made her feel a sudden chill of loneliness, this purpose in which neither she nor any woman could have a part.

"Tell me," she said, leaning forward, "is this the only thing you have brought out of all that horror—the desire to go back? What has it meant to you, after all, all that experience?"

He studied her before he decided to answer.

"I can't go into all the psychological part of it. For one thing, I never was much for going down inside myself to drag up motives and all that. And for another thing, there isn't any reason at all for all the fuss people make about fighting. There is nothing in it but going crazy mad, determined to get your men where you're told to go—and then, if you're hit, a long big grind afterward when the only thing you feel like doing is to swear at the whole thing. And there's no use going into the being sick part of it, for a field hospital is no place to take a woman, even in thought. But when you had been detailed to bury the dead in trenches before you were hit, and then when your cot is right where you can look, in the intervals when the surgeons are not torturing you, into the room where they are cutting other men up and every other minute you see a leg or an arm come shooting through the air to add to the pile in the corner, you lose something in you that has made you regard individual human suffering or death as of great importance in comparison with great projects. And in place of that tenderness you are made, if there's any stuff in you to make it out of, a man. Beyond that——"

"Beyond that?" she asked, a little breathlessly.

"Well," he said, with perfectly sincere grimness, "a brute of an army nurse pounded me a little and flung me down on my unhealed wound because I bothered him. I have learned that it does not pay ever to be the under dog."

He rose, and she knew that the queer interview which had carried her through more untried emotions than any other talk of her life, was almost at an end. A craving for something to make him stay, disappointment that they should end with such a brutal touch, a clutching after further revelation, possessed her. The talk—like the man himself—seemed so incomplete, so garbled.

"But Smith," she said desperately. "Smith's devotion was, at least, as real as the brutality of the army nurse that struck you. Why don't you put the emphasis there? What have you done with him?"

"Smith died last month," he said casually. "The D. T.'s got him. I tried to hold him out of the gutter—it was a great thing for him to have me to putter over. But as soon as I got well he had lost his occupation and there was no holding him in——"

The girl felt indignation at the indifference of his tone.

"How can you speak so?" she said. "The man loved you!"

Harthen dismissed the matter.

"I stayed by him and tried to help. I owed him that. But when the whisky has them nothing will do them any good but a fight. Wrecks like that are ordained fighting men. But there isn't any war now, so Smith went down before his appetite instead of before the guns, where he might have done more good. I tell you, Miss Halstead, there isn't any other thing in the world that brings out all the big hardy virtues but war!"

He turned to go. With her hand on the bell, she knew that she must keep him. A tumult of something had arisen that told her—chokingly—that there was something more that must come. It was only an instant, but it seemed to her an eternity, that Harthen regarded her, with his exasperating air of duty done, his cool, impersonal gray eyes on hers.

"He shall not go," she thought desperately. And before she could have time for another thought, or knew what she was doing, she had raised her eyes and given him—what she had never done deliberately to any man before—a long, deep, challenging glance out of the depths of her woman's being.

Harthen stood still. It seemed to her that he had given a start. Her hand fell away from the bell, leaving a half choked tinkle. He narrowed his eyes, a sudden mood had shot into them that made them almost black. Then he opened them—wide, and they blazed on her.

"Good Lord!" he said in a voice of hushed, significant wonder. "What a beautiful woman you are!"

She had no time to realize the utter brutal honesty of his surprise. She had clutched at her heart for awe. It was coming—the something wonderful, terrifying, before which she shook with longing and shuddered with fear. Kerby appeared. With all her training she couldn't say a word. It was Harthen who took command of her house and her, with a direct and complete sense of possession that left her no recourse but to defend herself with silence that should hide the trembling. He came toward her.

"Send your man away," he commanded her in a low voice. She nodded to Kerby, who slipped out noiselessly, wondering, for all his stiff impassive face. Harthen went on: "I have more to say to you." And again she nodded, unable to speak.

"I think you know there was nothing of—this——" He spoke with entire reliance that she understood, "—when I came to find you. I felt merely that I had to let you see whether I was worth saving. I owed you that. I've never thought much about women, just the puppy idiocies, and—the usual sort of thing. Rum or women, one or both, have done for most of the men I know who have gone under. And I've usually cut them both out. I hadn't a thought of you that way—until a minute ago, and then I knew. I'm going out to an uncertain sort of life. The woman I take out with me may find herself a widow. I'm being sent in all sorts of outlying provinces where they hate anything foreign—don't know there's a government at Peking and never heard of the United States, and a man has to rely on his wits. Your life may depend on a phrase, and my Chinese isn't much yet. And at the best it's a rough life, I suppose, after this——" He gave a careless gesture that included all the beautiful firelit room, candle luminous, and filled with spoils from Sara's whole art filled life.

For Sara, orphaned at 16 and mistress of her fortune at 20, had been allowed to follow out most of the extravagant impulses of her ardent nature. Luckily these were usually for others, and for all beautiful ideas. But the man before her never questioned. Those things—and what they implied—would have no power to attract him; existing, he could see in them no impediment that could come between. It was herself he wanted, this woman that had suddenly bloomed for him out of gray indifference, the woman supremely desirable and therefore to be possessed.

"I've never thought particularly about marrying—there has been too much to do. But I want you to be my wife. I can give you, at least, a name that's worth something where people know my record, and a life that will have some interest, I should think, for a woman like you——" He questioned her a minute, and when the fire had leaped into her eyes that had made them as martial as his own, he went on. "And—what is your name?"—she gave it to him with stiff lips—"Sara—I know you care—I saw it—I want you. Will you come?"

Her eyes were on him. She could not tear them away. He stood before her, a splendid figure, a being of steel and compact energy, magnificently poised and compellingly male. Nothing before had ever dominated her. But this drew, pulled, commanded. She felt herself rising to meet it, she was against the breast——

For an instant she was happy, completely, thrilled to the depth of her being. Then she raised her face and scanned him, with a sort of slow wonder that this man claimed her, come out of space, unknown the moment before. His face had reddened, his arm tightened around her, she was almost breathless, it hurt her. The eyes that fed on her were rapacious, the feeling that had drawn his face out of its control made her almost shudder. The passion in it was more cruel than the cold.

With sick wonder the fairy castle of her dreaming crashed around her. She forced herself back, loosened his grasp, was out of his embrace. His surprise made him yield, half realizing.

"What's the matter, what has happened?" he demanded, too startled to be furious. "What have I done—are you ill?"

She shook her head and crouched down by the tea table, her elbows crashing among the cups and saucers, as she hid her face in her trembling hands.

"I don't in the least understand. But then I never did understand—women——"

There was some contempt in the last word, and his voice was becoming angry.

"Does this mean that you have changed your mind, that you don't care for me after all. If it's so, just say it——"

She raised her eyes and looked at him again. His tone was a challenge. And again the wave of utter love and longing swept over her as she saw the power of the whole man as he stood erect. She had met him, the man who had called to her out of a wilderness of nothing, the one being who could liberate the pent-up capacity for loving within her, who could gratify the craving to abase herself, who would be worth losing the world for. She had found him. And she must give him up. What was the matter, she wondered. Why couldn't she accept it? She would never meet it again. Why must she give him up? Involuntarily her arms went out to him.

Instantly the puzzled anger went out of his face and exultation filled it. He came to her.

"It isn't so? You do care. I know you do. You couldn't have pretended. Come to me—Sara——"

O, the magic of her name on his lips! It gripped her, shook her with feeling, which, ebbing, left her weak and sore. But she rose and faced him, one hand grasping the table, feeling at bay.

"Yes! Yes, I do love you. I want you to know that. But I will not give myself to you. You can't make me. I won't."

He stared at her in silence, while the anger that had possessed him vanished before the sense of something unyielding. His face paled, stiffened again into cool control.

"You say you love me?" he repeated. She nodded. "But you won't marry me? Then you must tell me why. Perhaps you're not free!" he blazed out.

Her tender pity welled up to meet the jealous rage in his face.

"No, no, it's not that. I'm free. I love you. It's not—easy to give you up——" Her face quivered as she realized what his going away meant to her. "It's killing." She said it under her breath. "But I can't marry you. It's that you don't feel—O, I can't tell you. You wouldn't understand it if I did tell you. But it is hopeless. I can't."

Again he faced her in silence, scanning her face, the agony of privation in her eyes. There was no doubt of her suffering. Some band around his heart was breaking at the sight of it.

"You love me?" he repeated, wonderingly. "And you are free. Yet you won't marry me? Because, for some reason, you think it would not be right?"

"Yes," she said, and waited.

He turned away from her and stood thinking. At last he turned on her a face that was fervid with admiration.

"You are plucky," he said. "I tell you, I couldn't do that!"

His recognition gave life to her. She roused herself and stood to face him. The gleaming folds of her gown clung to her and gave the effect of shining armor around her erect figure. She was very tall, and her eyes, with her Diana glow of spiritual aloofness, could look into his almost from a level. For a moment their looks met, like the silence of two armed forces before the charge has been sounded. Then they clashed and the struggle between the two was on.

Neither wavered. Harthen put all the force of him into the determination to conquer, and Sara answered with a quiet that forbade.

And then, in the silence, a miracle happened. For the flash faded out of the red-brown eyes with the shadows around them of black velvet, and Sara's soul looked forth.

A proud and shy and tender thing it was, that had hidden itself timidly while the gallant woman of her went forth to conquest. Proud as it was, it had lived humbly, companioned by sweet and loving thoughts, and known only by its messengers of gentle deeds. Hidden as it was, it had longed passionately to be known. But no woman, save the mother who had so wonderfully equipped her, guessed it; and to no man had she shown it, until she revealed it to this one. And as he stood, in abeyance before her eyes—whose very light was but as the shadows of it—his blindness, made in truth by the very downright honesty of him, was cured. At last he knew her. He looked into her soul and loved.

He bent his head, and with a gentleness that was like the kneeling of a lesser man, his hand groped for hers, and took it into his. He looked at it wonderingly, adoringly, its white sweetness seemed so strange there in the grim brown hand whose whole life had been to tear down, where hers had been to cherish. The lover carried it to his lips with a halting, awkward movement, and kissed it—his lips had barely touched it before they let it go.

"I am more than sorry that I have—troubled you," he said, and stopped. "I am so sorry that—I suppose—it keeps me from being sorry for myself. But I'll go away now—since you can't—go with me."

He turned, had walked half the length of the room before she called him. Her words were almost unintelligible, between laughing and crying. But he heard——

"Come back—I never could explain—you couldn't understand—— But—O, come back—I will go with you—I will!"

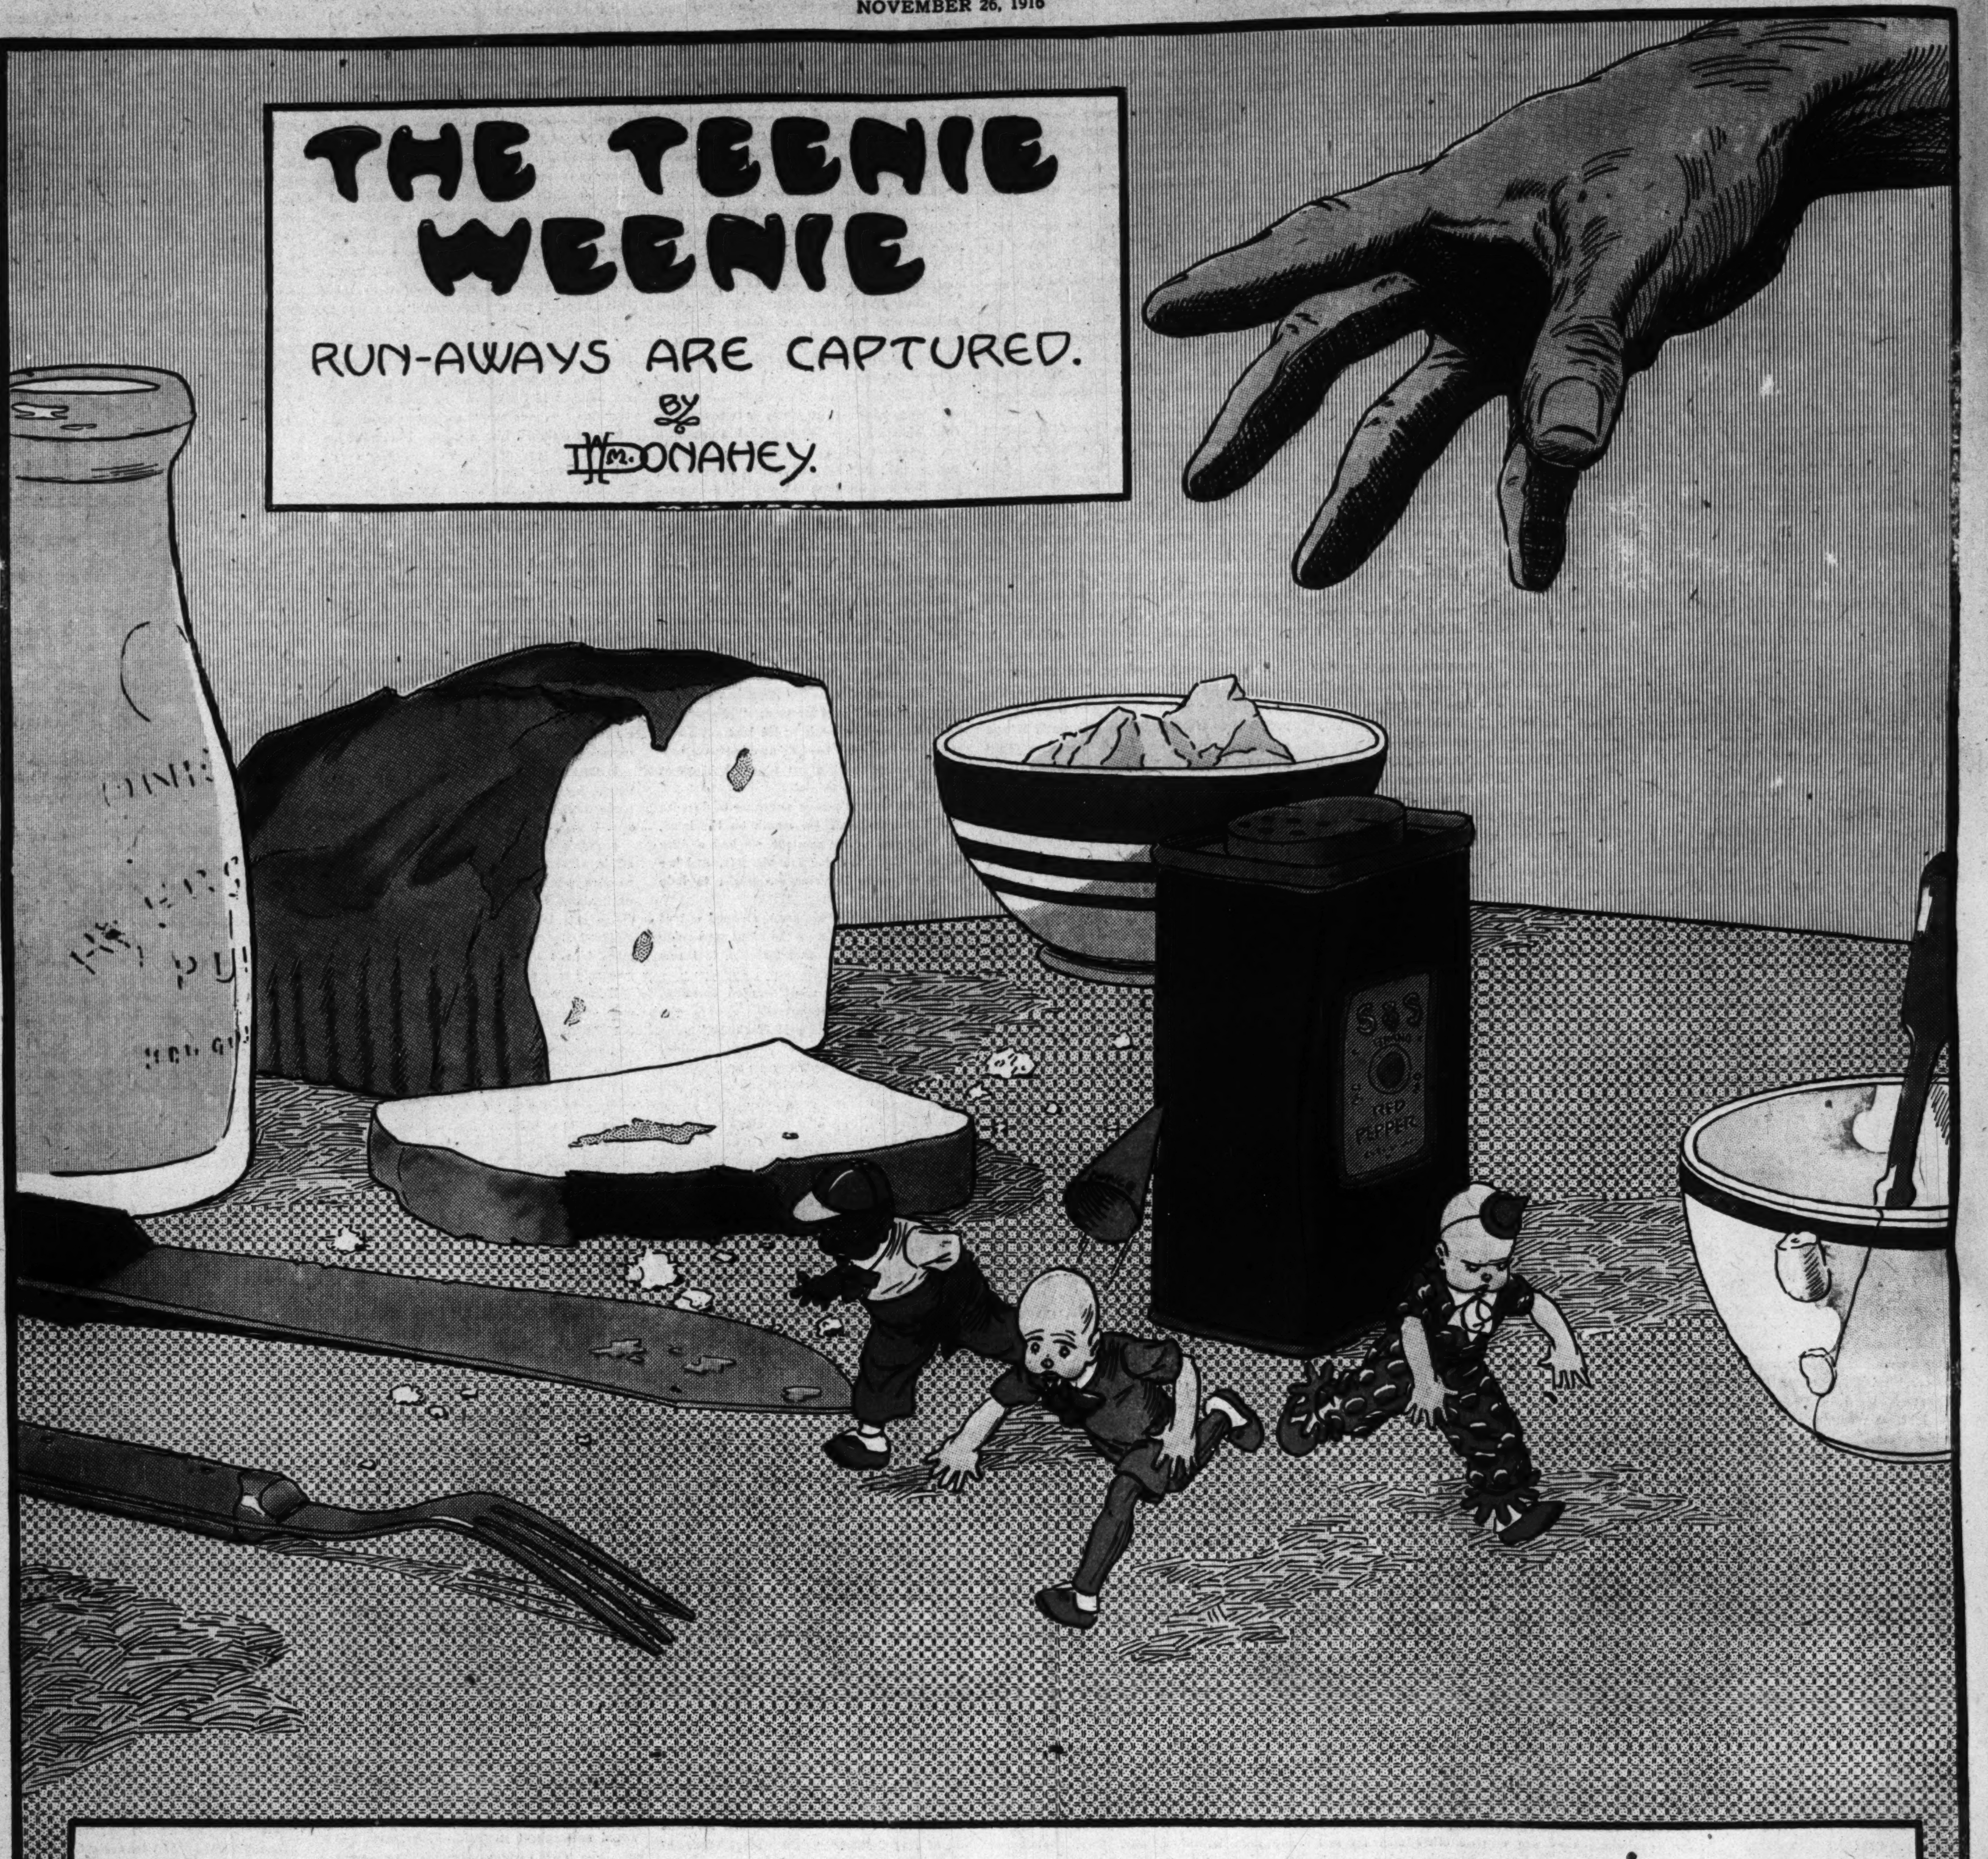
THE TEENIE WEENIE

RUN-AWAYS ARE CAPTURED.

BY
WM. DONAHEY.



GOGO, Dunce, and the Clown had run away. They had left a note telling the General they were going to leave, and now they were on their way to the home of the little boy who had written the Teenie Weenies, asking them to come and live with him. The three little fellows had left before daylight and by the time the General had found their note they were well on the way.

All day the three runaways hurried along under the cover of the tall grass and friendly weeds, for being such little people they had to be very careful for fear some one should step on them. At noon they stopped for a rest and lunched beside the nozzle of a garden hose, where they found cold fresh water to wash down their food.

"Well, we'll have enough grub for supper tonight," said the Dunce as he carefully tied what food remained after their lunch into a large handkerchief. "But we'll have to get out and find something for breakfast, if we want to eat."

"We all can pick some blackberries or strawberries, or somethin'," suggested Gogo, who was very fond of berries.

"Ho, ho, ho," roared the Clown. "Why, you foolish person, berries have been gone for months! If you find any this time of the year you'll have to pick 'em out of a tin can," and the Clown laughed so hard he tumbled off the clothes pin on which he had been sitting.

"Well, come on," shouted the Dunce, "we've got to be on our way if we ever expect to get there."

"Just how far do we have to go before we come to this boy's house?" asked Gogo as he pulled on his shoes, for he had been cooling his blistered feet in the water that trickled from the garden hose.

"We ought to get there by tomorrow night," answered the Dunce, and throwing the bag of food over his shoulder he moved away, followed by the other two Teenie Weenies.

Late in the afternoon the Teenie Weenies ate the last of the food that they had brought from the Shoe house, and making a soft bed of thistledown and dry leaves in an old sardine can the tired little fellows lay down to sleep.

"Hey, you fellows, get up!" shouted the Dunce next morning, sitting up and rubbing his sleepy eyes. "We've got to get something to eat and be on our way," and catching each of his snoring companions by the shoulder he shook them quite awake.

"Where are we all goin' t' get our breakfast?" asked Gogo, as he sat on the edge of the sardine can and looked mournfully around.

"There is nothing else for us to do but go over to that place yonder," suggested the Clown, pointing to a small house that stood near.

"We might be able to find a few crumbs there."

The little fellows hurried to the house and climbed up the steps.

"I beg your pardon," said a voice just as the three little chaps were about to crawl under the door. "You are going into a most dangerous place."

The Teenie Weenies looked in the direction from which the voice came and saw a fat cricket sitting on the edge of a bucket that stood on the step.

"Wh-wh-wh-why, what's the m-m-m-matter?" asked the startled Dunce.

"S-s-s-s-s-sh!" whispered the cricket, jumping onto the step and looking suspiciously about. "Don't go into this house, for the meanest man in the world lives here—he's a murderer."

"A wh-wh-what?" gasped the Dunce.

"A murderer," repeated the cricket in a low voice. "He poisoned my uncle and aunt and three cousins and, besides, four mice and many roaches have been killed in there in the last two weeks."

"But we are hungry, and we've got to have something to eat," said the Clown.

"I've got the finest rotten apple you ever tasted," cried the cricket. "And you're welcome to as much as you want."

"That's very kind of you," smiled the Dunce, "but I'd rather take a chance with the murderer."

"All right," said the cricket. "But remember, I warned you," and he stood shaking his head sadly as the three Teenie Weenies crawled under the door.

The little fellows found themselves in a small room which contained a table, a chair, and a small stove. On the table they could see the top of a loaf of bread, and after a hard climb they made their way up to it.

"Better be careful there ain't no poison on that there bread," warned Gogo, as the Dunce grabbed up a large crumb and stuffed it into his mouth.

"There's no poison on this bread," said the Dunce. "I can tell poison when I see it," and he went on eating, while Gogo and the Clown quickly followed his example.

Suddenly the Teenie Weenies heard footsteps coming toward the kitchen, and they just had time to hide behind a pepper box before some one came into the room.

"S-s-sh; it's the old m-m-m-man," whispered the Dunce, who had peered around the edge of the box. "He's going over to the other side of the room, and then we can sneak over behind that cup and slide down the table leg."

As the old man walked across the floor his footsteps shook the table with such violence that it caused a cloud of pepper to fall from the box behind which the Teenie Weenies were hiding. This caused Gogo to let out a loud sneeze.

"Run for your lives!" shouted the Dunce, breaking for the edge of the table, but before the little fellows had taken many steps the old man saw them, reached out his great hand, and caught them.

JEWELED EMBROIDERIES TRIM GOWNS of GOLD and SILVER

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

Gown of black velvet with girdle of jet and gold embroidery.

By Jean Seivwright.

(Drawings by H. E. Shepard.)

(Copyright: 1916: By The Chicago Tribune and the New York Globe.)

GORGEOUS brocades, magnificent velvets with myriad threads of sparkling silver and gold embroideries and shimmering jewels bespeak the luxurious dress of the hour. For prosperity reigns—and even if certain crops have fallen somewhat below their high water mark, yet other sources of revenue have yielded immense wealth to the people of this country. Today the demand for magnificent attire is voiced not only in the city where invitingly trimmed windows hint of the treasures within, but also in the country. The old song which declares that—

"Silks and satins are not for me,
Lace is for ladies of high degree,
The lads would laugh in our country town
If I came clad in a 'broidered gown."

is no longer true, for everywhere women are wearing beautiful dress that is characterized by extreme richness.

Some charming creations are depicted on this page, for now that the season has opened dress for the theater, the debutante's party, and other festivities, is the need of most women.

At the left is a fascinating evening gown developed in lustrous cloth of gold. A novel idea is introduced in this gown, for bands of turquoise velvet bridge the shoulders and disappear beneath the corsage, only to reappear again on the upper part of the skirt. There a magnificent embroidered motif is cleverly wrought upon the soft, lustrous folds of the skirt and some of these are slightly uplifted so that the ribbon loops extend a trifle below the hem of the gown. The corsage is exceptionally lovely, for the solitary motif that spreads across the cloth of gold is embroidered in heavy silk in turquoise blue, pale violet, and green. Similar motifs, but in miniature size, lend a decorative touch to the arms, while the sweeping train is also finished with embroidery.

Black chiffon velvet is chosen for the creation in the center of the page, for while many high colors are affected, this season black has many admirers not only among the matrons, but also the younger set. Voluminous draperies of black silk net fall like wings about the supple velvet and a dash of color is found in the girdle of jet sequins that sparkle gayly whenever the lights of evening shed their radiance on the gown.

But when milady passes from her limousine to the mansion where she dines, or to the opera house, the beauty of her gown is frequently eclipsed by the gorgeousness of her wrap. Shown in the picture is a wonderful creation of white and gold brocade. Fashioned on sumptuous lines, the rich folds of the brocade are finished with a deep band of beaver. The collar of the same soft pelt is folded snugly about the neck, while straps of the fur are crossed about the front and prove an interesting method for holding the wrap in place. The lining of this delightful origination reflects the Chinese blue and gold of the tassels that decorate the wrap. On its soft folds appear strange trees, fierce dragons, and weird looking birds, the storied emblems of the east.

For the young debutante many lovely gowns are created. A charming model in cloth of silver is designed on the favored straight lines that permit the beauty of the fabric to be revealed. This is veiled with billowy folds of tulle in mother o' pearl tones. Here and there, as if to add the necessary ballast to these flyaway draperies, are placed quaintly fashioned bead motifs, elaborated with many fascinating stitches. A quaint little train is attached at the shoulders, but should the wearer prefer it she may slip the folds of silver cloth about her arms and so appear to have one sleeve to her gown.

MEN AND WOMEN

THE remarkable aviation feat of Miss Ruth Bancroft Law forces the modest observation: "You just can't keep us women down."

* *

Scene: Taken from real life.

Time: One day last week.

Place: Photographic studio in Michigan avenue.

Enters expensive furcoated individual whose voice allows her photograph a place among the celebrities of the Chicago Opera company, but to whom the gods were much more generous in their dispensation of the song gift than the gift of beauty. She was really quite homely.

Why Photographers Go Insane.

She glances at the outspread photographs of the beautiful American songbird and immediately proceeds into a first class temperamental rage.

"Tell me why it is, I ask you, why do you make every other woman beautiful but me? I canna understand at all. You make Farrar beautiful in all her pictures, but I you make not beautiful in any—why it is I ask you?"

The camera diplomat: "I am sorry, madame, that you did not like your pictures, but I thought them very good, indeed. However, you come in again and bring with you an evening dress and we will try again."

"A miraculous evening dress 'twill be to Farrarize her vanity," thought I as I made a hasty exit for fear I would be caught laughing by the enraged person, who could boast not a grain of humor in her makeup.

* *

Too Much of a Good Thing.

Speaking of things grand-operatic, wouldn't tabloid opera be a fine idea for those of us to whom four solid hours of music, most of which is relieved by little action or good acting, is honestly too tiring to be enjoyable? Unless one has been brought up on a diety of heavy Bach, and Brahms, and Beethoven, and Wagner the endurance test of four hours' enjoyment of opera (outside of "Carmen" and "Faust," perhaps, "Rigoletta," the "Tales of Hoffman," and of those of more tuneful strain) is much like that of trying to eat the whole nine olives at one sitting in order to acquire a love for olives.

Two hours of music is, in my experience and opinon, enough to sate the appetite of the average music lover. The orchestra concerts and song and violin recitals are popular and delightful because they do not involve gorging. But it takes a musical gourmand almost to enjoy unremittingly four straight hours of heavy opera.

Think, too, how much less reluctantly friend husband would get into his "soup and fish" if he didn't feel he'd have to get in half of his night's sleep in it!"

Circumstantial Evidence.

To attempt to analyze the degree of misery of the father, mother, and sister of the Diemer girl of Pontiac, Ill., when suspicion was fastened upon them for the girl's supposed murder, is impossible.

The terrible apprehension of being brought to trial for murder of one's own flesh and blood on evidence purely circumstantial is something few of us would want to experience. Circumstantial evidence is such a damnable thing. It has created murderers out of harmless souls who would not kill a fly. Many innocent persons have been hanged on the strength of circumstantial evidence. Others have suffered life sentences.

Some Englishman has called circumstantial evidence the barrister's delight and the prisoner's dread. From the evidence reported through the press it seemed in this particular case there was no grounds for its assuming such distressing dimensions.

To paraphrase: Wouldn't it be better far for a dozen suspects to escape than that such humility and degradation as the Diemer family must have suffered should be enforced?

ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The Worst Slam I Ever Got.

Sometime, somewhere, somebody gave you a "slam" that nearly bowled you over. Tell the worst one you ever received. The stories must be original, written on one side of the paper, and confined to 300 words. Address them to Slam Editor, "The Sunday Tribune." For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. No letters can be returned.

John's Poor Taste.

A bride in a strange place is always conscious of unexpressed criticism. One portly in-law, however, voiced her disappointment quite clearly. Looking at my small, slight figure, she exclaimed: "And this is John's bride! Why, I always thought John would marry a tall, fine looking woman."

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are Jovial.

SAGITTARIUS are you if born during the week beginning today, and so the stars say you should be jovial, vivacious, and combative, though at times these qualities are rather offset by your caution and suspicion. If there's anything you detest it's secrecy and deception. Indeed, your outspoken frankness frequently gets you into difficulties and misunderstandings.

You are symbolized by the Archer and are great lovers of horses and outdoor sports. True to your symbol, you generally hit the mark. In games of skill, when a good aim is required, you excel; also in shooting and fencing. As for hitting the weakest spot with one of your sarcastic shots—well, you can't be beat at either! You ought to remember that your shots hurt far worse than you realize; you forget because being so well protected and so sure of yourself, you do not feel the shafts of others.

Follow your own impressions and you will seldom make business mistakes, for you have an almost prophetic intuition, watching all signs, symbols, and dreams with a view to interpreting them. This ability makes it possible for you to foretell storms and weather changes, or who rang the bell, etc. You have the power to take care of yourself and added to that the ability to care for others as well as an inherent faculty for amassing wealth.

Sometimes you are called the emergency people, for you seem to know by instinct what to do in cases of sudden danger and unexpected happenings. At such times, though, you may have always seemed timid, you will rise to remarkable heights of heroism.

Your motto could well be "Touch me not." Because you are busy tending to your own affairs you don't want other people interfering with yours. If your territory is too forcibly invaded there will be a word fight at least.

One thing at a time, that's you. You throw your whole force and strength into whatever you are doing, to the absolute exclusion of everything else, so more often than not you succeed. But this will wear you out, for you just won't drop a thing until it's finished. Neatness with you is a virtue and disorder of any kind will make you irritable and nervous. To be able to have a home of your own which you can beautify and make comfortable is the greatest desire of your heart. This same inclination to beautify is to be noticed in your clothes, which you like to have of the best materials and the latest cut.

It is easy for you to learn and likewise retain your information, so that you may well occupy a brilliant position if you don't get to worrying and wear yourself out in this way. Try to be a good loser and to admit that some one else might do your work equally well. Give your natural liking for inflexible justice full sway; let the other fellow have a square deal before you cross him from your list of friends.

Whether you decide to be a soldier, a surgeon, a lawyer, a teacher of music, a singer, an artist, or a florist, you will likely succeed, for your field is so broad.

As for your life partner he or she may well be chosen from Aries, March 22-April 20; Virgo, Aug. 24-Sept. 23, or Libra, Sept. 24-Oct. 23. Your colors are red, green, and gold; birthstone, turquoise and diamond.

You will be most fortunate during your own sign, but may have some misfortune during the week beginning June 27.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

The Muddle in the Mud.

One day while at a picnic a group of us, young men included, set out to explore. We came to a mud hole. Some one had placed stones in the water to cross over. Each young man started to help some lady near him. I was not satisfied with my friend so hurried ahead, scoffing at the idea of help. A few minutes later I discovered myself sitting in mud up to my waist, my hat over one eye, while on each side of the hole stood laughing people.

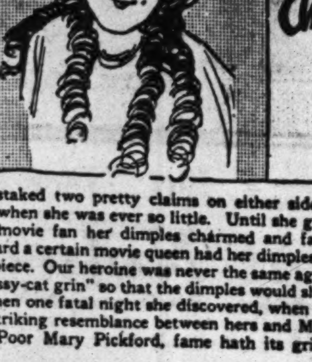
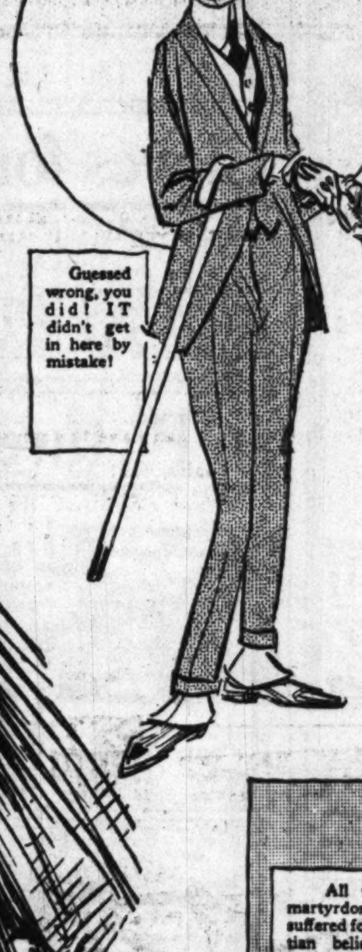
Perfectly Nice Girls but "Nobody Home"

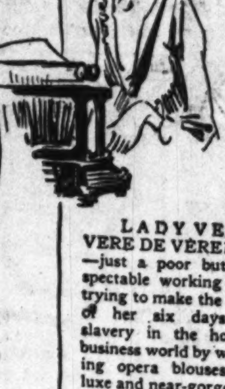
Says Antoinette Donnelly



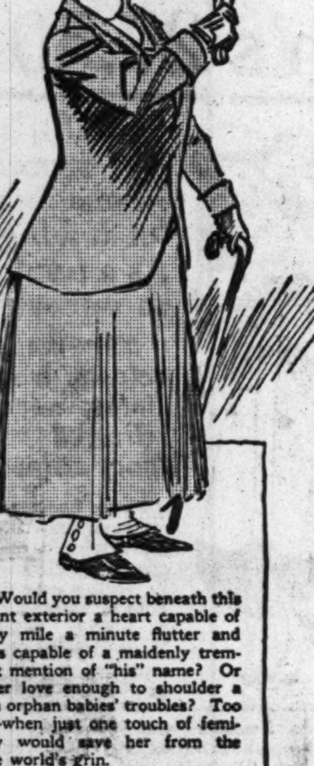
The angels staked two pretty claims on either side of "Dimple's" mouth when she was ever so little. Until she grew up and became a movie fan her dimples charmed and fascinated. Then she heard a certain movie queen had her dimples insured for $50,000 apiece. Our heroine was never the same again. She adopted a "chessy-cat grin" so that the dimples would show constantly. And then one fatal night she discovered, when her hair was down, a striking resemblance between hers and Mary Pickford's curls. Poor Mary Pickford, fame hath its griefs, hath it not, Mary?



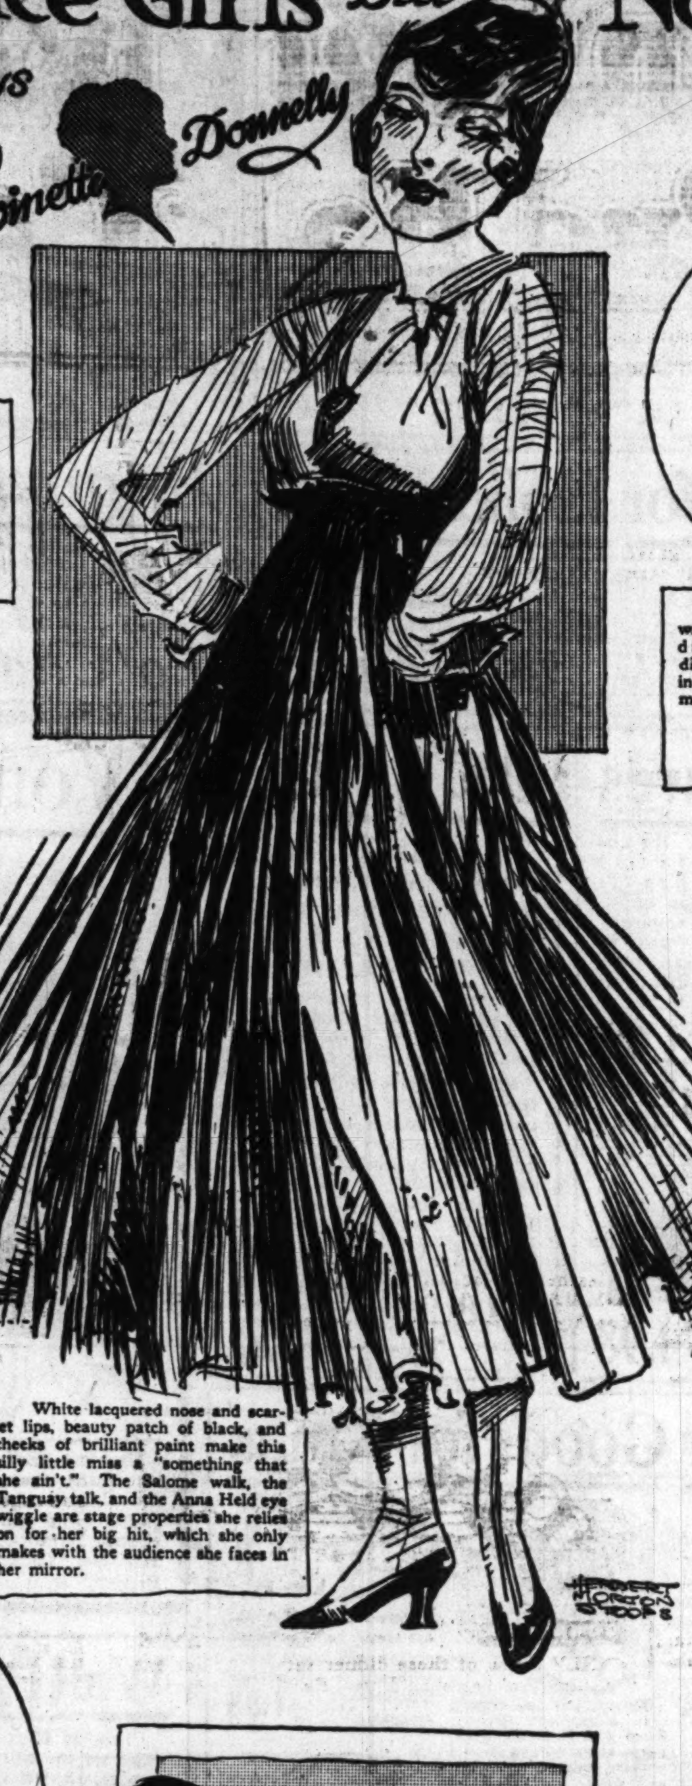
Guessed wrong, you did! IT didn't get in here by mistake!



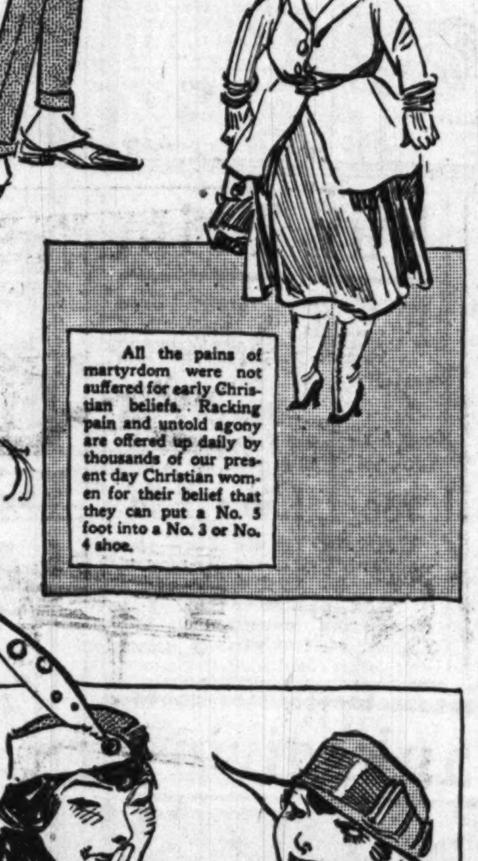
LADY VERA VERE DE VERE? No.—just a poor but respectable working girl trying to make the best of her six days of slavery in the horrid business world by wearing opera blouses de luxe and near-gorgeous gems to rid the atmosphere of its nasty sordid commercialism, you know.



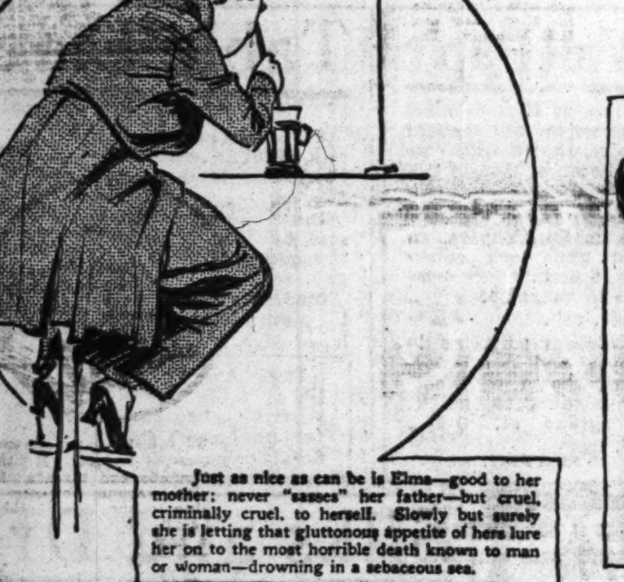
Would you suspect beneath this militant exterior a heart capable of a fifty mile a minute flutter and nerves capable of a maidenly tremble at mention of "his" name? Or mother love enough to shoulder a dozen orphan babies' troubles? Too bad—when just one touch of femininity would save her from the whole world's grin.



White lacquered nose and scarlet lips, beauty patch of black, and cheeks of brilliant paint make this silly little miss a "something that she ain't." The Salome walk, the Tanguay talk, and the Anna Held eye wiggle are stage properties she relies on for her big hit, which she only makes with the audience she faces in her mirror.

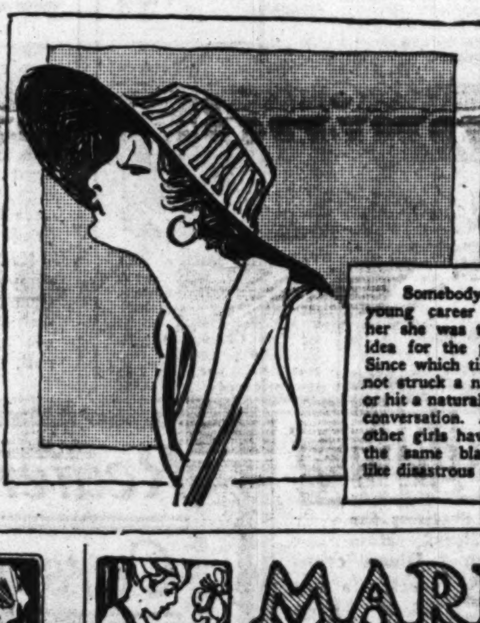


All the pains of martyrdom were not suffered for early Christian beliefs. Racking pain and untold agony are offered up daily by thousands of our present day Christian women for their belief that they can put a No. 5 foot into a No. 3 or No. 4 shoe.

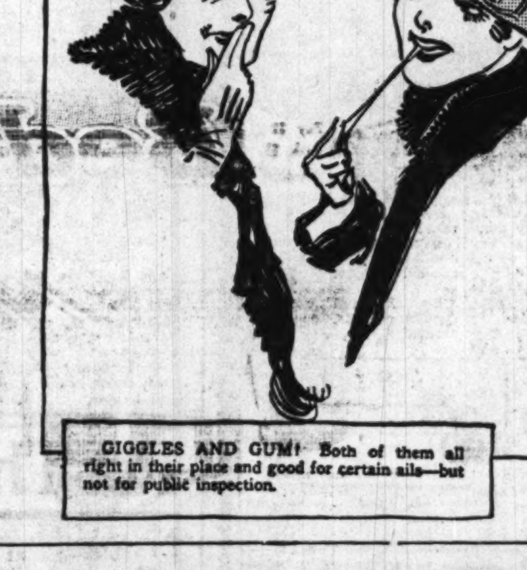


ICE CREAM SODA.

Just as nice as can be is Elma—good to her mother; never "sasses" her father—but cruel, criminally cruel, to herself. Slowly but surely she is letting that gluttonous appetite of hers lure her on to the most horrible death known to man or woman—drowning in a sebaceous sea.



Somebody ruined her young career by telling her she was the original idea for the poster girl. Since which time she has not struck a natural pose or hit a natural key in her conversation. A thousand other girls have been fed the same blarney with like disastrous results.



GIGGLES AND GUM! Both of them all right in their place and good for certain ails—but not for public inspection.

HAVING A SWELL TIME.

THE bits of conversation overheard in street cars to and from the downtown district might often serve as food for profitable reflection. I cannot help commenting on a remark I overheard one young woman make to another the other evening riding home from town in the elevated train.

The one who was evidently the older of the two girls greeted the other by asking, "How do you like your new job?" "Fine," said the other. "There are twelve men in the office and I'm the only girl. I have a swell time."

"I have a swell time." That seemed, as she said it, to be her whole aim and

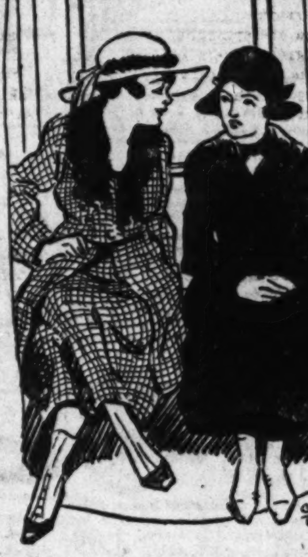
The two girls were sitting directly across the aisle. The older one was dressed rather inconspicuously and hadn't a great deal to say; in fact, she didn't have a chance to talk, as her companion chattered about herself and her numerous affairs constantly.

The costume of the younger girl couldn't possibly escape attention—it seemed deliberately designed to attract notice. The suit was of a black and white checked material and she wore a red fox scarf around her shoulders. Her hat, of purple velvet trimmed with some nondescript fur, was covered with a black lace veil which hung to her waist in the back.

The most noticeable points of the outfit, however, were her shoes and stockings, the latter being displayed almost to the knees, presumably for the benefit of the people across the aisle. Her shoes were of the two tone variety, the vamps of tan and the tops of white kid, which, by the way, were badly soiled; but as she chattered to her friend about the number of engagements she had for the coming week and gave her glowing accounts of her past pleasures I decided, as probably did the other amused passengers, that her popularity scarcely gave her time to attend to the details of her toilet, such as cleaning the white tops of her shoes.

It is not an unusual sight in these days to see the woman opposite you in the street car with her legs crossed and her short skirt hiked up so that her stockings are visible to the knees. For this reason I would hardly have been impressed with the position of this particular young woman had I not seen her carefully pull up her skirt as she was seating herself, and as her shoes were laced closely together, her legs bulged out at her shoe tops, making an unsightly exposé. Her entire makeup fitted in with her conversation and manner.

At one time when she stopped for a moment to take breath I heard her companion remark that she was feeling unusually happy, as her salary had been raised that day. The younger girl, without a word of sympathy or congratulation, asked her how much she was getting, and on being told pouted for a moment and said, "I wish I was making that much; clothes'n' everything costs like the dickens now." She regained her spirits, and with no other comment on her friend's good fortune she started to tell of an exciting affair she was having with one of the men in the office.



Thank goodness, this type is by no means representative of the business girl. It it were women would never have become the important factor they are today in the business world. But she might easily be the cause of injustice to other and more worthy workers, for as the girl in the car made the remark about the "swell" time she had in her new job a man sitting next to me nodded toward her as he said to his companion, "She's one of the reasons I employ men only in my office."

Two youngsters stood gazing in at the gayly colored cards, boxes, and usual gift suggestions of a "unique shop."

"What kind of a store is this, anyway?" inquired one little fellow.

"Don't you know?" answered the other, "it's the place to buy stuff you want to give other people." K. W.

Real Love Stories

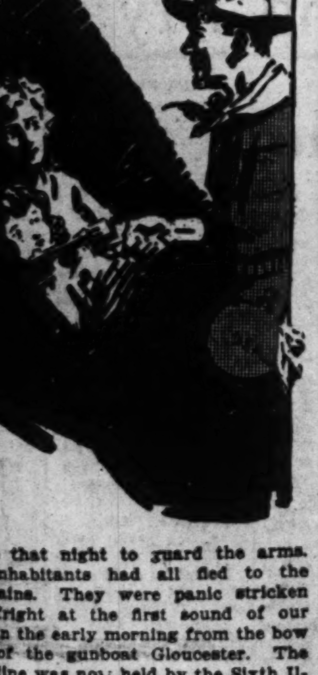
A SOLDIER IN CUBA.

IT was the night of July 25, 1898, at Guanica, Porto Rico. The first American troops to land were back on their ship, the Lampasas, for a meal and sleep, after a strenuous day of fighting. Their arms were stacked close to the water's edge.

Bob Sinclair was one of three left ashore that night to guard the arms. The inhabitants had all fled to the mountains. They were panic stricken with fright at the first sound of our shots in the early morning from the bow guns of the gunboat Gloucester. The firing line was now held by the Sixth Illinois, the Sixth Massachusetts, and battery B, Fifth artillery. The Spaniards had been driven back a mile. The line was about three miles long, and the rifle fire was intense, making a continuous rattling, loud, sharp, and cracking roar. The night was dark and full of uncertainty.



Bob had been relieved from first post and had stretched himself flat on the porch of a frame house to sleep. He was dead tired, but hungry and thirsty. Hunger knows no law. It occurred to him there should be something to eat and drink in some of the houses near him. All the windows and doors of this house were locked. He rapped on and pushed a back door, which finally opened. Revolver in hand, he entered. It was pitch dark and not a sound. The house seemed empty, not even a chair in sight.

He only had a few matches and had used two and, keenly disappointed, was about to leave, when a slight stir suggested a rat. Lighting another match, he pulled open the door of a closet. A thrilling sight met his gaze. A beautiful girl, not more than 17, was on her knees holding a crucifix in one hand and with the other clasping a little child about 3 years old.

Bob threw off his hat, put his gun on the floor, and made signs that he was thirsty. The girl passed into another room and was soon back with a lamp. Bob took the child on his knee and they were soon friends. He had given her a dime and a button—all he had to give. A tumbler of vino and a small loaf of white bread was Bob's reward.

All he learned was this beautiful girl's name was Angeles. Kissing the child good-by he bowed himself out, fully determined not to make known the hiding place. He never had another chance to get near the house again, and three days later was in Ponce.

Two years slipped by. Bob could not forget. He was in Chicago, working in a bank and decided to study Spanish. In 1901 he went to Porto Rico to look for her, but could find no trace. I knew he was in love and I felt sorry for him and imagined he would later find fate good to him by winning the love of another girl.

On Oct. 3, 1916, I met him in Washington park near the flag pole. His gaze wandered upward as he told me that grand old flag had made him the happiest man on earth, because it gave him his wife, Angeles. She had been living in Chicago three years when he met her at a dance.

They had loved each other ever since that night they met back of the firing line. Her sister, now a young woman, still treasures the dime and button. His boy, a handsome little fellow, says he is going to be an American soldier. His pretty little girl says she will be an army nurse when she grows up.

He's Making a Quilt.

"I AM an old soldier of 1861 to 1865 and have often wondered if I could ask a favor and have it granted. So here goes. I love my needle, and hope some kind hearted soul will be good enough to send me some quilt pieces. I do not care what they may be—silk, cotton, or anything that will help keep us comfortable. I am not able to buy, as my pension is small and house rent and living are so high that it takes about all we have to make the ends meet. I also love to read books and papers, but cannot afford them, but I do buy the paper containing the Corner. G. W. M."

I may be mistaken, but I think this is the first application the Corner has received from a man for sewing materials of any sort. Yet why not? I have never been able to understand why a man who is invalided or is unable from any cause to occupy himself with active work should not take to his needle and make himself not only useful but happy. Anything more forlorn than an idle old man I do not know. The old women can busy themselves with patchwork or darning stockings or knitting, but the men in advanced years who have lost their strength seldom have anything to busy their fingers with unless it may be whittling, and there is a limit to the usefulness of this employment. By all means let us send patchwork quilt pieces to G. W. M. and supply him with reading matter as well.

Words of Old Song.

"In reply to the inquiry by A. D., as to the words of an old song beginning 'Two babies were born in the self-same town,' etc., I wish to say that the name of the song is 'The Two Lives,' by James McGranahan, and it is printed with the music in the book entitled 'The Gospel Choir.' I. M. K."

I hope that A. D. may see this friendly reply to her inquiry and I am grateful to Mrs. I. M. K. for sending it.

Copies of Poems.

"I am going to ask you if you won't help me to secure two pieces of poetry I desire greatly. I recite at private and public receptions, and on this account the pieces would be especially welcome. I wish to recite one of them at our next entertainment. Long years ago, when I was small and mother was living, I used to hear her recite 'Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight,' and she composed or invented a beautiful tune to it. I recall the air well, but the words I have almost forgotten. Will you please help me to get them, and also the verses of 'When the Little One Calls for me, Teach It I Am Dead'? I shall be deeply indebted to any one who can help me with this, and in return I will send the words of 'The Face on the Barroom Floor' and 'The Tramp.' R. E. D."

The verses, "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight," are so generally known that I am sure this correspondent will have no difficulty in securing a copy of them. The second selection to which she refers I do not know, but it may be familiar to some of our readers.

ETIQUETTE

By ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

HOW TO SIGN YOUR NAME.

THERE is one point in which men far excel women in correctness and that is in the signing of their names. In all the correspondence which comes to my desk I cannot remember a single case of a letter signed by a man's name and prefixed by "Mr.," but there are daily examples of the letters signed by "Mrs." or "Miss" So-and-so.

There is no reason for a woman's doing this, because the prefix is no more a part of her name than in the case of a man, but somehow women seem afraid to sign their own names. In legal affairs the prefix makes the name practically worthless, and we all know that in the matter of charge accounts and bank accounts our prefixed names are merely given for the purpose of being used as addresses.

If in one day's mail I could receive every single letter signed correctly by women as well as men, I should indeed feel as if this column had done some good.

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

UNSIGNED: If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope, I shall be glad to send you a list of books on etiquette.

* *

MRS. A. M. M.: With evening clothes a young man should wear a dark overcoat, white muffler, and silk hat. Many men prefer a soft Fedora hat, but a silk hat is the correct thing to wear to a formal affair.

N. F. R.: The knife and fork, when not in use, should be placed on the plate at what we were taught to call "at twenty minutes past 4"; that means, with them placed in the position of the hands of a clock at that hour.

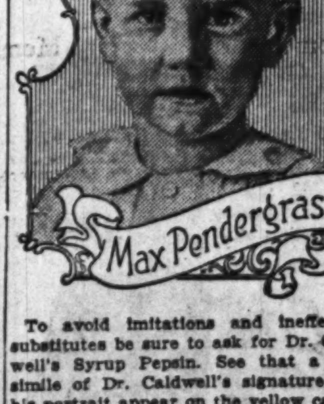
Will Never Be Without This Simple Laxative

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Relieved Her Baby When Nothing Else Would.

Little Max Pendergrast is now four years old, and a fine healthy boy. When but a tiny baby, in fact almost from birth, he suffered a great deal from constipation. His mother, Mrs. Carl W. Pendergrast, Red Key, Ind., heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, obtained a bottle of it from the drug store, and with it was able to quickly correct this condition.

Mrs. Pendergrast says Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has saved them from calling the doctor many times, and that she will never be without a bottle of it in the house to use when needed. She found it equally effective as a laxative for herself and other members of the family.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, pleasant to the taste, mild in action and positive in effect. It does not gripe or strain, and contains no opiate or narcotic drug. It is the ideal family laxative, mild and pleasant for baby, yet acting quickly on the strongest constitution.



Max Pendergrast

To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure to ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for whom this advertisement is published.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Nothing to Worry About.

He was an exceedingly thoughtful lover and always greatly concerned were I but slightly indisposed. If I had a cold or a headache he could not sleep at night for worrying. After we had been married three months I took a heavy cold and one morning when I was feeling particularly wretched my 200 pound husband turned from the mirror where he had been adjusting his tie and, apparently oblivious to my discomfort, said in all seriousness: "Now, my dear, I don't want you to worry about me at all today; I just feel fine." J. M. H.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

It Looked That Way.

I was engaged to one of the best girls in the world. One warm afternoon, while dictating to my stenographer, a few papers blew off my desk. I picked them up at once, but as one had blown under my stenographer's desk I was compelled to get on my knees to reach it. Just at that moment my girl came into the office, and, being on my knees, she thought I was proposing. She did not give me time to explain, but quickly left the office. In a conversation over the telephone the next day she told me: "You have proposed, and now you may marry her." A. M.

THANKSGIVING DINNER.

SIX years ago there was printed a "Modern Thanksgiving Dinner" of thirty-seven items, combined without rhyme or reason in a dietetic sense. The author said "abundance was essential." A ton or so of protein was topped off with a heavy pudding with a sugar suace, a parfait, and preserves (heavy sugars again), more sugar in the shape of cakes and bonbons, and yet again in raisins, and then another fat and protein bearer of high calories in the shape of nuts. Nuts may be ideal at the end of a light meal, but they have no place at the end of a heavy one. Fancy breads and crackers were served all through this meal when they should be almost totally cut out of a meal that is otherwise heavy.

Here is a menu of a different type:

Celery.
Vegetable oyster soup served in cups.
Roast turkey with Franconia potatoes.
Creamed onions. Mashed turnips.
Cranberry sherbet.
Squash or pumpkin custards, whipped cream top.
Fruit.
Black coffee.

As everybody knows, you can eat celery and reduce, since it has almost no caloric value, but does satisfy both the appetite and stomach to some extent. Fruit at the end of the meal satisfies thirst, and fine, juicy pear is what the greatest of epicures prescribes. It is both "good for your wholesome" and esthetic.

A cranberry sherbet may be made sweet enough to be a suitable end to a turkey dinner, and it is not a bad plan to have it sweet anyway, for then it takes away the appetite just at a time when good sense says stop.

A light and pretty Thanksgiving supper may be of stewed mushrooms on toast, a salad and some sweets, or a fruit compote, or some of the cakes that those who stick to tradition may think necessary to bake at Thanksgiving time.

Roast Turkey.

The choosing of a turkey is an art in itself, although so many people are content with Hobson's choice. Perhaps the finest turkey is the young and small male of about eight pounds weight, nowadays called squab and kept in cold storage all the year around for the service of expensive eating. Those who have to take the more mature turkey often prefer a ten pound hen, as being fatter and more delicate.

As I do not believe in stuffing the turkey, I put an onion or two and some celery in the bird, just for flavoring. Of course, there is more shrinkage, and a stuffing, well seasoned, may be used to prevent this and to perfect the seasoning, but, unfortunately, while the stuffing is seasoning the turkey, some of the good turkey flavor is going into the indigestible stuffing. We are not expert in "farci," or stuffing making, otherwise this question would not arise. Some great chefs, in order to perfect the seasoning, roast their turkey on a bed of vegetables—celery, turnips, onions, and garlic—or rub the turkey merely with a clove of the latter. These are constantly basted with the turkey.

To roast a turkey after the real spit finished bird, one may cook it in the broiling oven and in the stove dripping pan. The heat from this oven is not lost to the extent it is from the upper oven when the door is opened. The door of this oven need not be closed, and yet the oven be quite hot enough. If the turkey seems to be cooking too fast on the surface a buttered paper may be put over it, but if it is turned frequently it may be roasted so as to be quite equal to one cooked "a la broche."

Of course, it requires a great deal of attention to turn it and baste it every ten or twelve minutes for three hours, if a ten pound turkey, but things worth while do require attention. Many people prefer to rub the turkey with butter and to use butter for basting until its own juices are ready for this, but butter burns more quickly than dripping, and so is not what a careless or indifferent cook can use with profit. Many people think toothpick trussing is better than twine, since the toothpicks are easier to remove.

Remember that every bone in the turkey is worth saving for a delicious stock in which to cook vegetables. Cook it twelve hours. Economical people will add the cleaned legs to this, but one who buys a turkey with the legs on must know how to remove the tendons. A tendonless leg, basted often, makes fine eating, although this "drumstick" is so often dry. It is the dark meat of the second joint that is the finest, and do not forget the fine mouthful in the hollow of that side or thigh bone. This is sometimes mistakenly given the same name as that part which we call the pope's nose, the Italians the priest's morsel, and the French by a term which means "the part the fool leaves."

Vegetable Oyster Soup.

One bunch of salsify or six roots is enough for from four to six cups of soup, two bunches enough for a dozen cups. If the leaves are fresh I always save the inner ones for salad. Drop the roots into boiling water and blanch from five to ten minutes or until the skin rubs off easily. So prepared the root will not darken while it is being prepared in any reasonable time. A few drops of vinegar or some lemon skins in the blanching water is a more or less safe insurance of whiteness.

Salsify or oyster plant blackens quickly if cut up raw. Slice the roots thin and put to cook with a few dice of celery, one sliced carrot, and just as much boiling water as will cook away, which is little in the case of a careful cook, as the salsify should be tender in twenty minutes, but any remaining should be used in the soup.

When two bunches of salsify are used and economy is sought a cup of liquid will help out and the soup be little the poorer. A cup and a half of sliced salsify to two cups of milk is a good proportion, and some people use as much as two cups of water in the cooking of this amount. I do not. When tender put the salsify through a strainer, add hot milk and butter, and serve in cups with whipped cream on top.

Creamed Onions.

Silver skins sliced thin and cooked with a little water in the same way as the turnip, then finished with cream, give us all the minerals they mined from the earth in growing and are as sweet and unstrong as any onion ever cooked.

Franconia Potatoes.

Pare potatoes of equal size, enough for company; parboil them ten minutes, drain, and place in the pan with the turkey about forty minutes before it is done. Baste with the meat. Either white or sweet potatoes may be used. If the sweet potatoes, do not peel but rub off the skins after they are parboiled. Serve around the turkey or separately, as you choose.

Mashed Turnip.

Turnip may be quickly cooked if cut in dice, put in flat bottomed kettle with cover, and cooked over a small fire after the small amount of water, enough only to start steam, boils. A little sugar improves a turnip that is not well bred. A generous amount of butter in the mashing perfects it, but it is an unhappy thing to waste butter on poor turnip. Better save that for hash. A little poor turnip is good flavor for hash.

Cranberry Sherbet.

The following is a recipe for a sweet sherbet, perhaps too sweet, but by dividing the sirup in half and leaving out the juice of one lemon a tart one may be made. However, cranberries differ in tartness, so in some cases one with as much sirup as here given would not be too sweet. It is my opinion that any ice is much finer if the sugar is first cooked.

Pick over one pound of cranberries, wash, and put to cook with one cup of boiling water. They should be completely cooked in from six to eight minutes; then put through a strainer. There should be two cups of the pulp. In the meantime soak one heaping teaspoon of vegetable gelatin in a cup of boiling water fifteen minutes and then cook until clear in one cup of water. Add to this two cups of sugar and a cup of glucose and stir until thoroughly dissolved over the fire and cook until a sirup, or to 220 degrees. When cool, add the cranberry pulp the juice of two lemons. When cold freeze as you would an ice cream and pack for three hours. This amount will serve ten or twelve people if small glasses two-thirds filled are used.

How I Won My Mate.

How did you win the love of your mate? What measures, if any, did you adopt? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Won My Mate." Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

A Fitting Finish.

He was the most popular man in our set and, as I was not an especially attractive girl, he did not notice me much. One day he was requested to escort me to a dinner dance and, needless to say, I was delighted.

On our return home he put an arm across my shoulder and laughingly said: "Well, little girl, don't you think that a kiss would be a fitting finish for such an enjoyable evening?"

As he said this I knew I was to face the same problem that hundreds of nice and refined girls face every day. Should I give in and perhaps by that be able to hold his interest or should I be true to my real self?

My natural reserve came to my rescue, and I gently but firmly drew myself away from his encircling arm and spoke of "some things being held sacred" and that "that privilege was to be bestowed on one man only, and that man must be my affianced husband."

He did not propose that night, but he did a few months later, and today I am his happy wife, simply because I made him understand that I would not let myself be handled by any man that happened to be in a loving mood. G. F.

Curls and Waves

Moisten hair with atalpa water if you want curls and waves to last and look natural.

Girls! Try this! Before curling or waving your hair with pins, papers or a heated iron, just moisten each strand with atalpa water and you will be delighted how natural the curls and waves appear and how long they last in spite of wind, dampness or perspiration. A few ounces of atalpa water will cost very little at any drug store and there is nothing better to help retain the curls and waves or to soften, gloss or fluff the hair and to make it look thick and abundant.—Advertisement.

Mother! Look at Your Child's Tongue

Give "California Syrup of Figs" if Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Constipated—They Love It

Watch Children Now! Guard Against Colds, Grippe, Sore Throat and Sickness by Keeping Liver and Bowels Free from Poisons

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has the grippe or a sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. See that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't merely ask for Syrup of Figs, but ask for "California Syrup of Figs." Remember, "California."—Advertisement.

ECZEMA ON HEAD ITCHING INTENSE

Broke Out in Pimples. Was Scaly. Caused Disfigurement. Hair Came Out in Handfuls.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had eczema which broke out in pimples on my head and my head was scaly. The itching was so intense that I would scratch until I had big eruptions that caused disfigurement for the time being. My hair came out in handfuls and was thin, lifeless and dry and I could hardly comb it. I was bald on one side a year.

"A friend told me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I did and when I had used three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and three cakes of Cuticura Soap I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Nettie McCabe, 327 Blake St., Indianapolis, Ind., January 9, 1916.

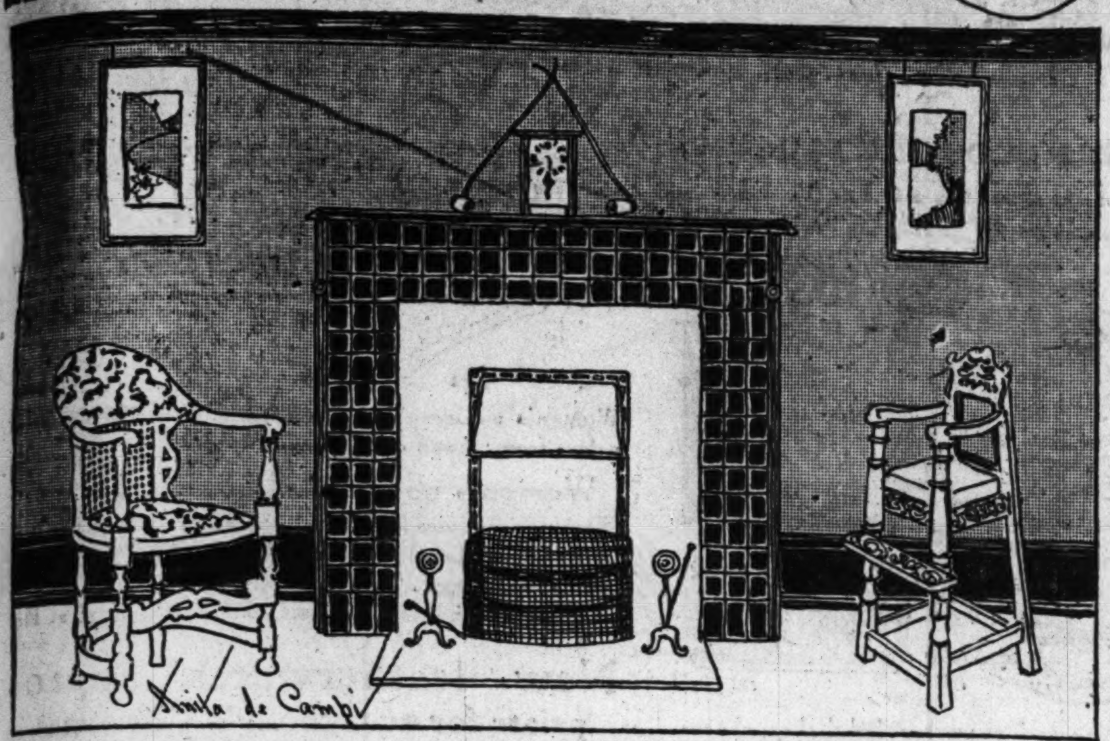
The Home Harmonious

"Furnished to Suit"

Anita de Campi



Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

It takes only the most cursory glance through the sketches of interiors recently planned by decorators to formulate a conclusion on one point, and that is that this is a season in which personal preference will dominate. While period furnishings are strenuously urged by the best decorative artists, and while when properly carried out they have undoubted charm, it must be admitted that they have an air of formality incongruous to the needs of the workaday world in which the large majority of home dwellers live.

Personal preference undoubtedly makes for personal comfort. Though the esthetic sense may not be gratified by the sight of a big overstuffed sofa in place of a prim little Adam or Chippendale, yet every muscle of the body luxuriates in the relaxation that the rather clumsy overstuffed affords.

The newest schemes allow of the informal combining of some pieces selected purely for their artistic merit and others that are essentially ease giving. It seems to be the most practical plan for all living quarters that are not used as rooms of ceremony.

Within the last few years there has been a general awakening to the consciousness of beauty in furniture. In the libraries and book stores books on the subject that were formerly in demand by professional decorators only are now called for by the general reading public. Those who inform themselves rise to a ready appreciation of the marvels of good cabinet work, and many articles of this splendid craft are bought, just as pictures would be, because of the recognition of their beauty.

I know a bachelor who has in his quarters an exquisite high chair. His visitors are always mystified—have the thrill of being mildly shocked—and maintain a discreet silence, until he disarms them with the innocent candor of his enthusiasm in showing the carving at the tray and sides. "A marvel of delicate workmanship. I have never seen more brilliantly executed work! A really matchless piece! I picked it up at an auction in New Orleans."

One no longer hesitates to buy a superb bit of furniture because it will make everything else in the room look commonplace. The tendency to mix good, bad, and indifferent is a tendency in the right direction—it means the ultimate elimination of the bad and indifferent.

Shall I give you verbal pictures of a few new rooms? In a library paneled in brown oak, with brown oak beamed ceilings and brown carpeted floor, the upper third is papered in sage green verdure paper. Glimpses of red show in the binding of the books. At one side is an oaken chess table, with a huge winged arm chair at either side of it. One of these chairs is in the most brilliant Chinese red velvet and the other in deep emerald green. The legs are the only part of the frames that show and they are squat looking cabriole legs of walnut.

In front of the fireplace is an oak bench, large enough to lie on full length, and this is covered with a fitted cushion, boxed at the edges, and upholstered in dull green silk brocade. A bench of this sort on casters is a favorite piece of furniture this year. In certain forms it is called a day bed.

In the room just described there are no curtains, but the mullioned windows are set with amber glass.

A combined living room and dining room, with a substantial old oak table and six different kinds of chairs, is pleasant. There is a wing chair, a chair with turned legs, and a cane back, inset into a carved frame. Next to this is a mahogany chair with square seat, cabriole legs, and round back, the type known as a corner chair. Then there is a chair with a stuffed seat, covered with hand embroidery, and an extremely tall narrow back, down the center of which a padded strip is also covered with embroidery. The woodwork of this chair is black and the embroidery is done in colored silks on heavy black satin. A small low backed chair made of dark oak with a loose cushion on the seat completes the list.

These chairs are lovely singly and collectively. The room is done in deep Pompeian red with a deep red carpet. Touches of dark blue are allowed to be seen in the china of a corner cabinet.

In another living-dining room the oblong table is drawn sidewise to a long narrow sofa. This has an old fashioned mahogany frame and is oddly upholstered in black velvet. The wallpaper is unevenly striped in gray and dull green. The pictures, formally arranged on the wall, have black frames. Facing the sofa across the table are two matched Sheraton chairs with mahogany frames and bright orange yellow seats. A burnt orange rug makes a little island of that corner of the room where the table is set. The table cover of heavy white linen boldly embroidered in peasant work of red and yellow flowers and black leaves done in silk is striking. A mahogany small grand, in another corner, has trimmings of ebony. The woodwork is white enamel, the floor is polished oak, the ceiling is light gray, and the curtains are old ivory puffed Austrian cloth.

A bright rose red velvet carpet is the decorative note in a grayed oak living room. The color is repeated in the tiles in the mantel of the bedroom adjoining. In the bedroom the lower walls are gray blue and the upper third white, with a blue leaf stripe. The woodwork is white enamel, the rug is rose and gray. Near the fireplace is a round backed, low, overstuffed chair, in spotted blue and fawn, with a walnut frame. Beside this is a small mahogany table. The curtains are white and there is a chest of drawers of satin wood, above which hangs a family portrait in an oval frame. The curtains in the living room are Dutch blue.

Peacock blue, amber color and amethyst are the colors schemed in a stunning room. The purplish tones are found in an oriental rug that almost covers the carpet of a rosier amethyst Wilton. The ceiling and casement curtains are old ivory, with inside hangings of an almost orange amber. The side lights and center lights are palest brass, trimmed with a fringe of round crystal beads. The portieres are figured with peacock blue in a design the shape of coral sprays, having little amber ground showing between them, and interspersions of dull red disks encircled in gray. The fabric is of silk and wool. Some of the furniture is upholstered in peacock blue and gray verdure tapestry, and some is of the straight line type in unstained mahogany.

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Get a 25 Cent Bottle! Freshen Your Scalp! Stop Falling Hair! Remove Dandruff! Grow Lots of Wavy, Glossy, Beautiful Hair—You Can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Advertisement.

News and Comment of the Theaters

By Percy Hammond.

SIR HERBERT TREE'S approach has been noiseless and dignified as befits that of an artist and a knight, and he will reach the Illinois tomorrow evening unheralded by the gaudy clamor of the press agent. Out of the silence he will, no doubt, pick a welcome, for the splendor of his pageant of "King Henry VIII." is an episode in the history of the Shakespearean theater. One of his English critics, I believe, reviewed the production in the manner of a furniture catalogue. Since there is little poetry and less play in "King Henry VIII." it is well that tomorrow night we shall have acting and upholstery. This generation of Chicagoans knows Sir Herbert's playing only by hearsay, but it is acquainted with the quality of Mr. Lyn Harding, who will be the King, and with that of Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, who will act Queen Katherine.

Sir Herbert's dispassionate advocacy of a scenic Shakespeare finds utterance in his needless defense of the sumptuous environment of his "King Henry VIII." He maintains that it is so obviously a pageant play that it would be better not to produce it at all, than without the adjuncts by which alone its action can be illustrated. So he strives by means of scene, costumes, and crowds to convey an impression "of Henry in his habit as he lived, of the architecture, and of the manners and customs of that great age." Though he plays the Cardinal it is in the King that he seems most interested. Of him he writes in an entertaining brochure:

"Masterful, cruel, crafty, merciless, courageous, sensual, through-seeing, humorous, mean, matter-of-fact, worldly wise and of indomitable will, Henry the Eighth is the most outstanding figure in English history. The reason is not far to seek. The genial adventurer with sporting proclivities and large-hearted tendencies is always popular with the mob, and Bluff King Hal was of the eternal type adored by the people. He had a certain affinity with Nero. Like Nero he was corpulent; like Nero he was red-haired; like Nero he sang and poetized; like Nero he was a lover of horsemanship, a master of the arts and a slave of his passions. If his private vices were great his public virtues were no less considerable. He had the ineffable quality called charm and the appearance of good nature which captivated all who came within the orbit of his radiant personality. He was every inch a man, but he was no gentleman. He chucked even Justice under the chin and Justice winked her blind eye."

THE Catholic Theater Movement's "White List" of the new plays that contain no immorality reveals a perturbing forbearance in its recommendations. While denouncing with severity a score of the dramas now being acted in New York, among them Mr. Shaw's "Getting Married," the committee sanctions as being without peril many performances involving abrasion of the holy laws.

"Bunker Bean," for instance, is ratified as sinless, though in it a young woman visits a young man's apartments at night, unchaperoned, and he weds her at the end, while drunk. "Pollyanna" is deemed chaste despite the fact that it includes some vicious examples of malice and cruelty and that the heroine's father was a bad man who eloped with her mother. At least two of the ten commandments are broken in each of these plays.

"Turn to the Right," the doubtful sensation of this season in New York City, is branded fit. It is about a troupe of noble crooks and jailbirds who pursue their depredations with fascinating insouciance and who are happy, prosperous, and married at the finish. "Cheating Cheaters" also receives the badge of immunity, being about yeggmen, con women, adventuresses, dips, pickpockets, safe blowers, and second story workers. Only two of its people are upright. Miss Ruth Chatterton's "Come Out of the Kitchen" is on the schedule of things which cheer but do not contaminate, and I am told that its leading character engages herself in a shocking series of falsehoods and deceptions for the sole purpose of gain. Among the titles in "Mister Antonio" is that of Pearl, a girl of loose character and habits; in Mr. Hodge's "Fixing Sister" there are a number of dishonest rascals operating in full view of the audience, and in "Major Pendennis" Capt. Costigan, a thoroughly untrustworthy individual, is permitted to be seen and heard as freely as if he were a decent person. All of these and others like them are on the index of the unforbidden.

EVERY now and then solicitous parents communicate to this department the apprehension that their offspring may, by going to the theater, come into contact with the unseemly; and they ask to be guided to plays that are lofty and polite. I suspect that there is no night in the theatrical season that all of Sinai's laws are not broken on the stages of the Union Loop; yet the passion to be an oracle occasionally overcomes me, and I indulge in the folly of counsel and admonition. This evening a friendly lady telephoned to ask me what play she might safely attend with a party of boys and girls, and I said "The Boomerang." "'The Boomerang!'" she replied with horror in her voice. "Why, don't you know that 'The Boomerang' is the play where a young doctor puts his hand on a girl's ankle?" With apologies I withdrew my approval of "The Boomerang" and said that I could think of no other. "Well," she answered, as she rang off, "I suppose we'll have to go to see 'Fair and Warmer' again!"

News.

Eager emissaries of the movies are said to be imploring Miss Elsie Ferguson to appear in a film drama, but she will not. Says the announcement of these temptations: "Her winning personality, her art of expression, and her artfulness of gesture have been duly appreciated by the scouts of the cinema."

Miss Ferguson's managers have selected the Hudson theater in New York as the Metropolitan headquarters of "Shirley Kaye." The excursion thither will occur in a fortnight or two.

Miss Florens Patricia Burke-Ziegfeld permits it to be announced that her mother, Billie Burke, will return to the stage Feb. 1 in a new play by Edward Sheldon. The period of this drama will be the present and the place New York. Miss Burke's plans for Mr. Sheldon's play have caused her to decline an offer of $250,000 for a six months' engagement in the movies.

Mr. Sothern's contribution to the British Red Cross for the first two weeks of his tour in "If I Were King" amounted to $4,500—that sum representing the actor's net profits. He will reach the Blackstone late in December.

"Mother Carey's Chickens," a tale by Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, has been put into theatrical form by Miss Rachel Crothers.

Mr. O. Morosco in deep thought:

"It is rather peculiar, and to me very amusing, that most critics will call the suggestive in drama 'art,' when it is treated seriously, but the minute it is treated as comedy it is denounced as 'vulgar.' Which strikes me as most provincial."

In the pictures:

Miss Maple is one of the younger and newer American prima donnas, and she reappeared in several of the enterprises of the Messrs. Shubert—last season with "Tonight's the Night" and "Her Soldier Boy." Miss Wellman played as the leading woman for Louis Mann in a number of his plays, and last year was the emotional lady of "On Trial" at the Grand.

Mr. Tyler is soon to revise "The Ohio Lady" by Messrs. Booth Tarkington and Julian Street, under a new headline, "The Country Cousin." He plans also a production of Miss Fanny Hurst's "Tomorrow's Child," rearranged for the theater by Miss Harriet Ford.

Miss Maude Allan, the dancer, abandons her tour to go into vaudeville. She finds the details of independent management too complex for an artist.

"In For the Night," a farce, is soon to be produced. It is by James Savery, who learned to write plays at Harvard.

Mr. Faversham has sent an ambassador to London to try to persuade George Bernard Shaw to come to America for a lecturing expedition. To make the proposition less resistible, the Drama league supports it with a round robin, signed by its leading members.

Henry B. Warner, now of the cameras, is to be starred before long by George C. Tylor in "Among Those Present," a dramatization of a story by Larry Evans. It is about a full-dress crook, a diamond necklace, etc.

After a long period of inactivity, Digby Bell will return to the theater in a vaudeville sketch by Winchell Smith and John L. Golden.

"The Basker" has been found by Cyril Maude to be insufficiently interesting to the public, so he will revive "Grumpy" for a tour of the continent from coast to coast.

Mrs. Effie Ellsler, once an eminent American actress, celebrated her ninety-third birthday Tuesday at her home in Nutley, N. J. Her last performance was with Edwin Booth's company in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Hatton have ready for sale another new comedy. It is about an Italian and may be "The Song-Bird" revised.

"The Amber Empress," a pretentious light opera visible in New York for a period this fall, will be revived at Christmas time for a Chicago run.

Eugene Walter has written another drama for his wife, Miss Charlotte Walker. It is named "Pussyfoot Patricia" and will be produced late in December.

Alan Mudie, the young English song-and-dancer who was reported as fallen in France, is said now to be alive and fighting.

This Week's New Plays

Illinois—Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in a spectacular presentation of "King Henry VIII," with Miss Edith Wynne Matthison and Lyn Harding in the cast.

Olympic—"Her Market Value," a new melodrama by Willard Mack. It calls with the aid of much scenery and a numerous cast, the tale of an erring woman and her regeneration. The time is the present and the place New York. Broadway restaurants and Bowery dives are a part of the play's geography. Miss Emily Ann Wellman, Mrs. Stuart Robson, Suzanne Willa, Byron Beasley, Ben Johnson, and others are in it, and the producer is A. H. Woods. First time tonight.

Cort—"The House of Glass," a melodrama by Max Marcin, dealing with a woman with a past, who, though innocent, is persecuted by the police. The time is the present and the place New York. Miss Mary Ryan is the hunted lady and there is a large cast.

Galli-Curci as Gilda in "Rigoletto"

Mail About Music: Galli-Curci a Draw

By Frederick Donaghey.

DEPUTIZING, while he was absent on his lawful occasions, for Mr. Hammond, it was my privilege to go into those items of his mail which were addressed to him in his capacity as the scrutineer of drama in its myriad aspects. Suave, literate, approving, adulatory: these are among the adjectives descriptive of the communications. I had long believed and he, perhaps, had suspected that he was the First Critic; but here, in every pouch from the postoffice, was confirmation.

He was asked for advice in the selection of drama for the young, the aged, the boarding-school'd, the reformed, the unregenerate, and the bored. His efficient ministrations were sought as a reader of plays in manuscript, as a revisor of scenarios for the films, as one whose taste would guide a groping architect in the design of a new playhouse or a pecunious aspirant in the correct location of one. It was for him to say when, where, and with whom he would take tea, golf, ride, shoot, yacht, and convive.

Envy was not in me; for, should not I, too, have my mail come in a special sack? A simple calculation seemed to show that by so much as Music is more nearly than Drama of the humanities should I be able to overcome the handicap imposed by Mr. Hammond's flawless flair for a task which he has made into an art. I knew that I might expect none of the consideration from Bach and Beethoven which is his from pretty nearly all playwrights save Shakspere; that Mr. Cohan, perhaps, would be more appreciative of a good notice than Mr. Caruso; that fifty plays are written, realized, and retired in the time required to orchestrate an overture. The vista still allured.

THE mail of two days brought letters which may be epitomized thus:

One seeking information as to the size of the subsidy to the Chicago press for praising Galli-Curci. The inquirer expressed sincere belief that he should go to law to obtain the return of the five dollars spent to hear her in "Lucia," and paid to THE TRIBUNE the dubious compliment of having until now been his chief guide in matters of art.

One asking if writers for the Chicago press are bound by a blood-oath to write nothing save praise of Mr. Stock. She, a confessed aspirant with the violin, lamented for the cost of a Saturday-night seat to hear the conductor's concerto. "I will miss two dollars' worth of your editions," she adds, "until I am repaid."

One urging that this newspaper withhold its space from the Opera until such time as the director of that enterprise drops Sunday performances from his schedule.

One urging that the programs of the Orchestra be printed on a day other than Sunday, because he is not a believer in Sunday newspapers.

One insisting that THE TRIBUNE shall presently enter upon a campaign to compel the subscribers to the Orchestra's Friday schedule to surrender their seats at the end of each season, "that thousands of others may get a chance."

AN earnest gentleman, sending his by special delivery, explains that, doubtless, the "Bis! Bis!" mentioned in Friday's report of Muratore's "Pagliacci" appearance was in reality the "Hiss! Hiss!" of himself and "equally-enraged friends at having been made victims of first-class press-work in behalf of a third-class tenor." He is certain, moreover, that opera in Chicago "will continue to be a deficit for its foolish backers until they realize that honesty in the performances will pay better than dishonesty in the press."

A suite of four letters is, in as many variants, expressive of the belief that my disgusting deference to Mr. Campanini is an injustice to TRIBUNE readers, who otherwise have no cause to complain, but it is offset by a partita of six communications whose authors display a moving and worthy gift of condemnation for my heartless denial of what one of them describes as a "decent and well-bred credit" to the identical Mr. Campanini.

GALLI-CURCI'S unlooked-for emergence and Mr. Muratore's Canio put into a period of six days more excitement than the Opera had known in the preceding six years. That the public is already reacting to the Italian diva is an unmistakable indication at the box-office. That Muratore has not long ere this been of capacity allure is among the phenomena of merchandising entertainment. Caruso has for at least six years been regarded by the Metropolitan Opera as the ultimate bargain in singers; he receives, I believe, between two thousand and twenty-five hundred dollars whenever he is in the cast, and is held to be worth it because his being in means the sale of every seat. He is not the equal in art or, perhaps, utility of the French singer—a judgment which would seem to require no argument after Thursday night's performance. Muratore therein stepped for the first time into what is, doubtless, Caruso's "best part"—not only that wherein he is most effective, but also most popular—and definitely moved the Italian singer into second place.

Plays That Stay

Miss Audrey Maple in Katinka at the Garrick

Miss Emily Ann Wellman in "Her Market Value" at the Olympic

Powers'—"The Boomerang," with Arthur Byron and Miss Martha Hedman. Nothing of the kind is quite so good.

Garrick—"Katinka," a pretty comic opera played by T. Roy Barnes, Miss Audrey Maple, Miss Renee Noel, Miss Ada Meade, and others.

Chicago—"The Blue Paradise," another pretty comic opera, played by Cecil Lean and others. Fourth month.

Cort—"Fair and Warmer," a spicy farce well played.

Blackstone—Miss Elsie Ferguson in "Shirley Kaye,' a drama of New York city life at the present time—the leading character being a shrewd heroine, who outwits and marries the man who tries to ruin her father.

Little—The Wisconsin Players in "Miss Griggs of Japan," "Romance," and "The Mask." Beginning Wednesday evening Maurice Browne and his company in "Mrs. Warren's Profession."

Imperial—Thurston, the magician.

Majestic—Nat C. Goodwin is the week's star. Others are Miss Edna Munsey and Anna Wheaton and Harry Carroll.

Palace—George Nash in "The Unexpected." Belle Baker, Violet Dale, and Herbert's Leaping Canines are among the diversions.

McVicker's—Pauline, the hypnotist, is the headliner.

National—Joe Welch in "The Peddler."

Columbia—Rose Sydell's "London Belles" in burlesque performances.

MR. NEWMAN.

Orchestra hall—E. M. Newman will continue to recount and illustrate his last summer's travels in China, with particular attention to the city of Peking.

MATTERS of MUSIC

The Orchestra.

MR. STOCK'S eighth program, Friday afternoon and Saturday night, will have Alexander Raab, pianist, as soloist. He will play the familiar Weber Concertstuck and Liszt's Hungarian fantasy. The symphony will be Richard Strauss' "Alpine," as yet unknown in Chicago. Delius' Dance-Rhapsody, made known in the fourth concert, will be repeated.

The third Pop will be given Thursday night in Orchestra hall, with this program: Overture to "The Secret of Suzanne," Schumann's first symphony (played in the season's second regular program), Enesco's first Roumanian rhapsody (a novelty in the second program), Titl's serenade for flute and horn by the Messrs. Quesnel and De Maré, Saint-Saëns'. "The Spinning-Wheel of Omphale," Mr. Stock's arrangement of Beethoven's minuet, and Schubert's "The Bee," and Johann Strauss' "Wine, Woman, and Song" waltz.

Theodore Spiering, violinist, will be next week's soloist, and Mme. Olga Samaroff, pianist, the soloist of the tenth program, Dec. 15-16.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Not where the tungstens burn brightest and the advertising signs are luminous is the most interesting dramatic bill in New York's theaters to be found this week. But in what I am sure, after making the journey, is an obscure corner of Manhattan island—a place of shadows rather than light, far over on the east side in Grand street.

And what do you suppose this bill includes! Nothing less important than the first American showing of a brand new Bernard Shaw satire with the German kaiser as a subject and the present war as a theme! At the Neighborhood Playhouse, if you please, a tiny theater run in connection with the other good work of the Henry street settlement, Gertrude Kingston and a company of English players are presenting a sketch called "The Inca of Perusalem" and though this is programed as the work of one no more important than "A Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature," it is one of the most open of secrets that G. B. S. is the author. And after sitting through it we know he must be. No other living human being could have used so many words or marshalled them so eloquently. And though many playwrights could have talked more, few of them could have said so much. "The Inca of Perusalem" is a bit tediously wordy, but it is also most sanely pointed. And for all its length is well worth the trip it takes to listen to it.

The Inca himself appears in military uniform wearing the exaggerated mustache of a German warlord. He is, by his own confession, somewhat the victim of his own excessive magnetism. The immediate excuse for his excessive flow of Shaw talk is a meeting arranged for him, traveling incognito, with a princess who has been mentioned as a likely bride for one of his fighting sons. The Inca meets the lady in the parlor of a continental hotel, and to her he, the great egotist, relates his deepest secrets. He is long suffering, for he is surrounded by fools; he is far seeing, because even in the midst of a world war into which his fools have pushed him, he can see the end. He fairly pines for another St. Helena and banishment because of the opportunity it would offer for one such as he to prove his marvelous resourcefulness. Napoelon failed to attract the attention of the world to his exile because Napoelon was a little man and lacked versatility; it would be different with the Inca, for the Inca is a great artist, a great sculptor, a great architect, a great composer. Within a year at most, with a man of his stature exiled there, the eyes of the world would be on St. Helena; within ten years he would be returned from exile and made the superpresident of all the republics of Europe, for within that time he agrees there will be no more monarchies.

As for the war and his part in it, this is how the kaiser speaks through Shaw, via the Inca: "Why the devil do they fight if they don't want to? I am only one man and they are millions. Do you suppose they would really kill each other if they didn't want to, merely for the sake of my beautiful eyes? Do not be deceived by newspaper claptrap, madam. I was swept away by a passion, not my own, which imposed itself on me. By myself I am nothing. . . . You talk of death as an unpopular thing. You are wrong. For years I gave them art, literature, science, prosperity, that they might live more abundantly, and they hated me, ridiculed me, caricatured me.

Now that I give them death in its frightfullest forms they are devoted to me. If you doubt me, ask those who for years have begged our taxpayers in vain for a few paltry thousands to spend on life, on the bodies and minds of the nation's children, on the beauty and healthfulness of its cities, on the honor and comfort of its worn out workers. They refused, and because they refused death is let loose on them. They grudged a few hundreds a year for their salvation; they now pay millions a day for their own destruction and damnation. And this, they say, is my doing. Let them say it, if they dare, before the judgment seat at which they and I shall answer equally for what we have left undone, no less than for what we have done."

That one speech, according to the experts, would stamp the play as Shaw's even were there no further evidence to substantiate the authorship. And immediately after comes the comedy twist. She is not, the lady tells him, the princess he thinks her. No, he replies, she is the princess' lady in waiting. He knew that. Did she think, after having met and known and lived with ladies of royal blood all his life, he could ever mistake one so intelligent and so charming as she for a princess? Never! This is "The Inca's" first American production.

"Great Catherine," an amusing bit of fooling with the Russian queen's penchant for commandeering the likeable males of her court as its basis, is better known, having been previously published in an American magazine. It is a lively bit of burlesque with a delicious tag in, which a characteristically thick headed English gentleman undertakes to give Catherine a bit of wholesome advice as to her waywardness. "Ach, that I could keep him here!" ejaculates the queen, forced to admiration for the stupendousness of the fellow's nerve. "For your court, madam?" demands her horrified prime minister. "No; for my museum!" replies Catherine.

Sandwiched between these two satirical shafts of Shaw's is a new one act play by another gifted Irishman, Lord Dunsany. "The Queen's Enemies," it is called. The scene is a temple far under ground built by the ancients to the god of the Nile. To a banquet in this temple a queen of Egypt invites all her enemies that she may hear their grievances, right what wrongs she has done them and make them her friends. For many nights she has not slept because of her thoughts of them, and she is unhappy. They come, the feast is spread, and when they are full of wine and forgiveness she bolts the door on them and lets in the waters of the river to drown them. "I shall sleep tonight," she says, sweetly, as she ascends the steep stairs. From the temple of the Nile come the last gurgles of the dying men. The queen has not an enemy in the world.

The new Hopwood comedy is called "Our Little Wife," and if we had a Palais Royal theater in New York there is where it would belong. In "Fair and Warmer" Mr. Hopwood, who is a perfectly good bachelor, undertook to prove, and did most amusingly succeed in proving, what might happen if the slow wife of a fast husband and a slow husband married to a sort of fast wife should ever decide to enter the social circles of their respective spouses. These two, being left to their own devices, seek innocently to compromise each other that they may be considered "sporty" enough to be regarded as "regular fellows." As a result they become amusingly alcoholic and the worst is believed of them until the last act.

In "Our Little Wife" Mr. Hopwood, again as a bachelor observer, takes up the study of the flirtatious wife who considers the possibilities of an amorous adventure with every man she meets. This one is willing to flirt with doctors, lawyers, poets, waiters, chauffeurs, milkmen, and policemen. Her husband grows anxious. He believes her a versatile but virtuous charmer, but he would like to be sure. To test her he induces his best friend to invite her to a midnight supper in his [the friend's] apartments. The friend is then to make love to her and later to report progress to the husband.

◆

The assignation is, of course comic rather than shocking. Wife and friend are suspected by all the other members of the cast, including the usual French waiter, who hums "vive l'amour" as he lays the table, the fiancée of the man who has been made to stand for the test; the wife of the flirtatious lady's doctor, who is jealous; the doctor, who is a nerve specialist though "he acts more like an osteopath," and finally by the husband himself, even though he concocted the scheme. The petit souper is interrupted by each of these and there you are. It is the usual farce formula.

Mae Marsh and Robert Harron in "Intolerance" •Colonial•

By Mae Tinee.

THERE are a lot of people who will be interested to know that Harry Benham, for so long affiliated with Thanhouser, has gone to Fox. Mr. Benham is one of those men of the screen who is just a regular fellow when not on duty. He is happily married to Ethel Cook Benham and has two adorable children. Good fortune has not turned his head in the least—he had to work too hard to win it. He has been a newsboy, bootblack, and one time a basket boy in a dry goods store. Then he was salesman for a wholesale paper house. He always was wild about music and sang in a choir one time. When an opportunity offered him to go with the "Peggy From Paris" company he took a position for $12 a week. Musical comedy next and then the movies. We'll be interested to see him in his first picture under the new management. It will, I understand, be called "The Mischief Maker."

◆

It is said that already more than 150,000 people have seen "The Unborn."

◆

Tuesday night will start our opportunity to see D. W. Griffith's latest production, "Intolerance."

Did you know that Carlyle Blackwell has led the grand march in more movie balls this year tnan any other human of the male sex?

◆

Puzzle: Find an Ince production in which Howard Hickman does not appear in the cast.

◆

On Dec. 3 "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" leaves the Studebaker to make room for "War Brides."

◆

In order that she might understand the part she is supposed to delineate in a coming picture, Nell Craig took lessons from the Chicago police department on "how to be a detective."

◆

"War on Three Fronts," presenting pictures taken by Capt. Klein Schmidt, will be shown under the auspices of the German and Austro-Hungarian Relief association for its benefit at the Playhouse, beginning tomorrow.

◆

Here you are with a regular camp cook recipe, via Helen Holmes: Take a big pot with a cover that fits tightly. Throw in the breasts of two mud hens, a chunk of cold pork, the saddles of a few squirrels, a slice or two of venison, a few bay leaves, a half dozen cloves, just a pinch of cinnamon, salt, and pepper. Put it on the fire and let it come to a boil. Then have some handy man dig a hole two feet deep and shovel the fire into the hole. When the pot boils put it in the hole on the fire and then shovel dirt in on top. Stamp it down. Go hunting then and stay as long as you like. When you come back, there's your dinner, providing you found those mud hens.

◆

Victor N. Miller, Cincinnati moving picture writer, has filed suit against the Universal Film Manufacturing company, charging that two scenarios which he wrote were used by that company without his consent and without payments. He asks $5,000.

On Thanksgiving afternoon the Sweden of today will be shown in pictures at Orchestra hall at 3:30 o'clock. The pictures were taken under the personal direction of M. Enderstedt, membe of the Swedish parliament, and Axel Palmgren, editor of the Stockholm Dagblad.

◆

Hobart Bosworth was rather seriously injured last week. He was kicked by a horse at the Lasky studio.

◆

Now we're to have "The Easiest Way" in pictures. Lewis Selznick has bought the picture rights for Clara Kimball Young. This is the drama by Eugene Walter which was originally produced by David Belasco with Frances Starr.

NEW AIR QUEEN.

The world has a new air queen. Her name is Ruth Law. The other day she landed in New York, having covered the distance from Chicago, making a new point to point record of 832 miles in nine hours and one minute. And she did it in a little old last year's machine, too!

ASK ME! ASK ME!

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

M. A. R.: I wish I coud make you understand just how much happiness your letter brought to me. I do assure you that with all my heart I appreciate your thoughtfulness in writing. I have no objection in the least to telling you that my gender is feminine. Thank you again, and please accept my best wishes for yourself and husband.

◆

B. B.: I shall be delighted to send you the printed material I have on scenario writing, and a list of firms that accept scenarios, if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope.

◆

REAL FRIEND: I'd be exceedingly glad to hear some of those "technical aspects of studio life" that you write about. Please do let me hear from you again. Thomas Chatterton is with the American Film company, Santa Barbara, Cal. Charles Chaplin is with Mutual, Los Angeles. Did you receive the article I have on how to become a photoplayer? I mailed it to you.

◆

H. S. K.: No, Mary Pickford has no children. The three children playing in "Hulda From Holland" were not her little ones. You are entirely welcome.

◆

M. R. H. T.: Apply to the studio manager for a position. I'll mail you the printed material I have on the subject if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

◆

◆

ANNA P.. I'd love to put joy in your life, but I don't place people in pictures. If you will send a stamped, addressed envelope, I'll be glad, however, to mail you the article I have on how to become a photoplayer.

◆

L. H.: If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I'll be mighty glad to send you the article I have on copyrights and the doubling process.

Chicagoan Goes East with Scenery for Allied Ball.

By Mme. X.

WHEN New York wants anything out of the ordinary accomplished it is not from the ranks of home talent that it seeks its organizers and leaders. Chicago supplies much of its bone and sinew. George W. Perkins, T. P. Shonts, Frank A. Vanderlip, Elbert H. Gary, and a host of others are all drawn from the ranks of Chicago capables. And now one more proof that the great metropolis is dependent on us, not alone in the realms of finance and big business, but in the domain of art and adornment is the departure of Mrs. John A. Carpenter last Tuesday for New York and the much heralded Allied ball, which takes place next Tuesday in the Madison Square Gardens.

Mrs. Carpenter was escorted by huge rolls of scenery for the East Indian background and setting for the ball, which had been painted here from her designs and under her direction. She is developing a genius for this sort of artistic expression, which is making her name famous on both sides of the Atlantic.

When she was in London three years ago she gave, in her little house in Chelsea, a wonderful costume dinner, also of East Indian effect, which gathered together the elite of London's art and great world. It was the talk of the town at that time, and is remembered there to this day as a unique and brilliant affair.

Her two especial Gotham friends, Mrs. Benjamin Guinness and Miss Katherine Wiborg, are largely instrumental in getting up the coming ball, and it was their endeavors that enlisted her active cooperation. It is to be rather a stupendous affair, a costume ball, with remarkable stunts, and its proceeds are to go to the same cause as the big New York allied bazaar last spring and ours of this coming January.

* *

Getting Features for Allied Bazaar

Mrs. Carpenter in her flights out into the world is apt to be followed sooner or later by her Chicago "pal" and boon companion, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank. So, on Wednesday last, the latter also took an east bound train and will be at the ball on Tuesday.

Mrs. Fairbank is not going, however, merely for pleasure. She hopes to secure from the New York ball committee the use of Mrs. Carpenter's oriental scenery as a background for the vaudeville and cabaret features at the Allied bazaar, of which features Mrs. Fairbank has active charge. She is also planning to interview all the famous New York theatrical managers to find out what shows are booked for Chicago in January and what specialties these same managers will contribute to her department.

This is a big contract for her to undertake and she and Mrs. "Joe" Winterbotham are laboring enthusiastically to make their restaurant and entertainment program the most striking department of the bazaar. With their thoroughly demonstrated capabilities in this direction they'll probably succeed.

Mrs. James B. Waller and her daughter, Mrs. John Borden, are organizing a flower booth and a band of wandering flower maidens, which will be one of the most picturesque features of the bazaar. Mrs. Waller and Mrs. Borden are working with especial zeal for this booth, because its profits are to be devoted to Mrs. Mary Borden-Turner's "flying field hospital," an enterprise which is one of the most extraordinary byproducts of the war.

* *

May Join Lincoln Park Colony.

Apropos of the Borden-Turner field hospital, a little collection of vivid, pungent, bitter hospital sketches called, "A Backwash of War," by Ellen N. La Motte, is well worth your reading. Miss La Motte was one of the nurses in this hospital and all of the character studies in the book are taken from the human wastage that drifted through the hospital. Some of the sketches have already appeared in the Atlantic Monthly.

Miss La Motte was in Chicago last spring with Mrs. Emily Crane Chadbourne, when the two were on their way to China.

Mrs. Chadbourne is meditating removing her beautiful furniture and "objects d'arts" from her Paris apartment and domiciling them in Chicago. She is even thinking of joining the little flock headed by Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, which is hovering over those Georgian nests on Lake View avenue, opposite the northern end of Lincoln park. When they have all finally settled down the colony will include, besides the Ryersons, the Harry Danglers, the young Ambrose Cramers, and Abram Poole.

George Porter maintains an inscrutable and disturbing silence as to when he will build on the final bit of ground which completes the compound. The David Adlers are making plans for their house on the piece originally allotted to the Frederic Bartletts, who are now shaking themselves down into New York's most artistic beau monde.

Illness Spoils Unique Celebration.

If war is one long series of tragedies and heroic endurance, peace is not without its sorrowful moments. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coleman planned to celebrate their silver wedding last Sunday with a dinner of twenty-four, composed almost entirely of members of their original wedding cortège or of guests at that function. It was to be the occasion of the winter in their especial coterie. Mrs. Coleman, always one of Chicago's most successful hostesses, was planning to outdo herself. The table was to be garlanded with white roses. There were to be silver frosted little trees for each guest, silver place cards, and a menu of the finest products of land and sea. The guests, too, not unmindful of the honor done them, had planned poems, speeches, toasts, humorous telegrams, and other amusing and enlivening features. A pair of handsome silver candelabra selected by Howard Gillette was their more enduring offering to the celebration.

Ancient Greeks were never more helpless in the hands of Nemesis than modern Chicagoans. On the Saturday preceding the fateful Sunday, like a bolt from the blue, the grip in its most violent, prostrating form, seized Mrs. Coleman and one of the most popular social leaders in Chicago spent the day of her twenty-fifth wedding anniversary—and several succeeding days—in bed, with a nurse and a doctor in close attendance, while the Howard Gillettes, William Odells, E. W. Cramers, Bertram Winstons, Morris Johnstons, Charles Strobels, Harry Howards, and others dined at home that sad Sunday evening.

"O, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?"

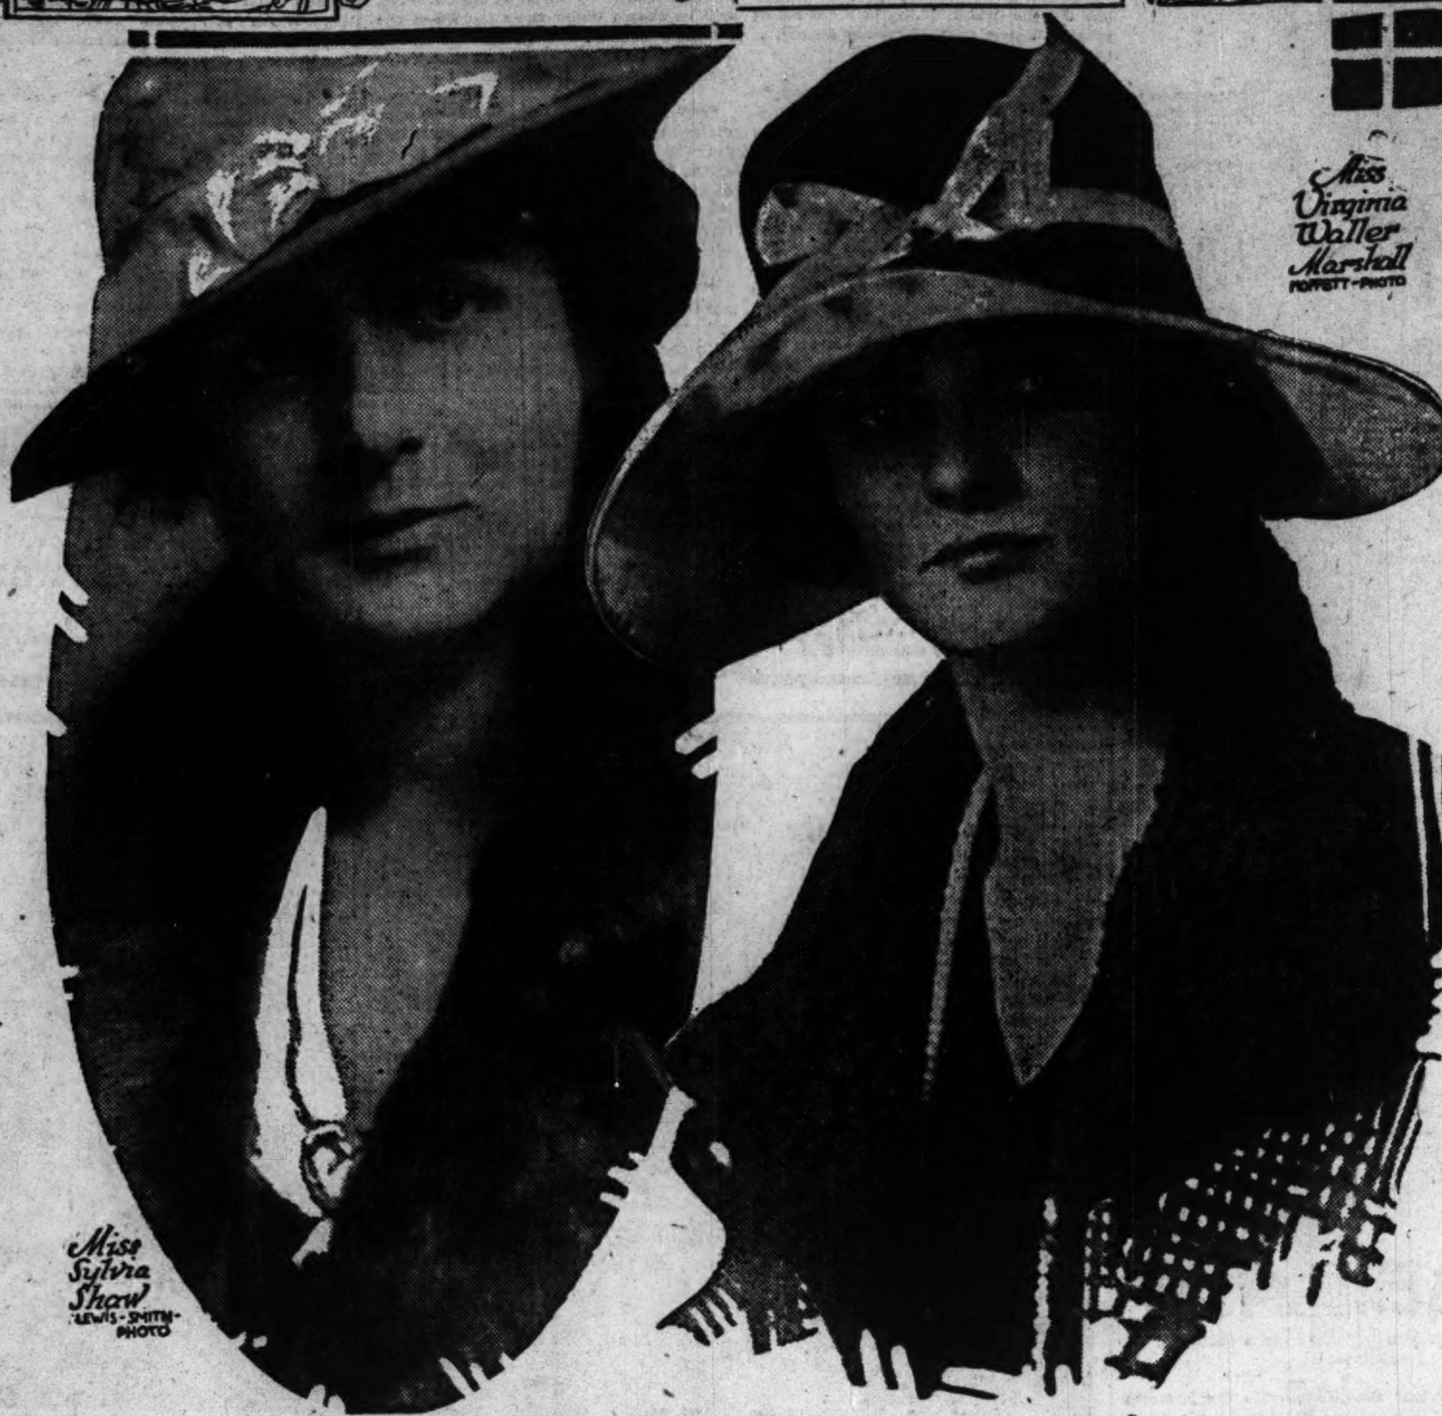
Lecture Course for Women.

The town is full of lecture courses and classes. The Chicago Equal Suffrage association gives you your choice of a particularly interesting course of lectures—gotten up by Mrs. Tiffany Blake and Mrs. Robert Lovett—and a course on oratory by Bertram G. Nelson of the Chicago university, who will teach you to deliver your own lectures.

The first mentioned offering consists of six lectures, beginning next Tuesday at the residence of Mrs. George A. Carpenter, 945 North Dearborn street, when William Chenery will discourse on "Our Next Task," a topic whose title admits a wide scope of conjecture. Among other later lecturers billed are Henry Waite, Medill McCormick, Mrs. Elsie Clews Parsons, and William Wirt.

The roster of Mr. Nelson's public speaking class, which is to meet on Mondays at Mrs. James W. Morrison's, is already full, and a second class is being booked. This passion for public speaking on the part of the commonwealth's newest citizens augurs well for the active participation in local politics of the recently enfranchised women. The bad political bosses would better watch out or the gobelins will get them.

Two Prominent Buds Who Made Their Bows to Society Last Week.



Two of the prominent debutantes introduced to society the last week are Miss Sylvia Shaw and Miss Virginia Waller Marshall. Miss Shaw made her bow at a dance given on Friday evening by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw, and Mr. and Mrs. John Buckingham, who introduced their daughter, Miss Harriet Buckingham at the same time. Miss Marshall was introduced yesterday at a tea given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fielding Lewis Marshall of 73 East Elm street, at the family residence.

News of Chicago Society

One of the most notable recent events is the discovery in our Chicago opera troupe of the most remarkable coloratura soprano of this generation. Not since Adelina Patti opened the Auditorium's first opera season in 1889 has such an exquisite, pure, flutelike voice floated about that haven of opera and ravished the souls of opera fans. Unheralded and unexpected, Mme. Galli-Curci sprang into fame a week ago Saturday in the rôle of Gilda in "Rigoletto." Furthermore, to her beautiful voice is united a rare personality.

She is most interesting to look at, with a type of features not unlike Pavlowa, the Russian dancer. She is thin, fragile in build, with a sensitive, rather sad, face. She is half Spanish, half Italian.

She started in life as a pianist, and then discovered that she had a voice. This she trained herself, and for six years now has been singing, first in Italy, then in South America, and for the last two years in Havana. She promises to share honors this season with Muratore. These two artists, together with the high quality of the rest of the troupe, give us the best opera in the world—yes, even better than New York's Metropolitan.

By mistake the first of the Ogontz dances was announced for last Monday, when its correct date is tomorrow evening. The second one will be on Monday, Dec. 18. Both dances will be in the Blackstone. There are no alumnæ more loyal to their alma mater than the former Ogontz girls and the work done by the day nursery they support is excellent.

WEDDINGS

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Teall to Robert Graves Warfield took place on Tuesday evening at the Kenwood Evangelical church at 8:30 o'clock and was followed by a reception at the Kenwood club, given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Wiley. The bride was attended by Mrs. William S. Warfield III. as matron of honor. Her bridesmaids were Miss Helen Clarke of Omaha, Neb., Miss Helen Warren, Miss Margaret Moore, and Miss Katherine Warfield, sister of the bridegroom.

Cards are out announcing the coming marriage of Miss Kathleen Mary Bergen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd M. Bergen of Highland Park, to Charles Isham Mansur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mansur of St. Louis, Mo. The ceremony will take place on Dec. 9 at Trinity Episcopal church, Highland Park.

The marriage is announced of Miss Maude Martin, 154 North Menard avenue, Austin, to Lester Connell at Petoskey, Mich.

Mrs. Madeline D. Scott of 4135 Kenmore avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Adelaide, to Warren S. Hillis of Chicago, a son of Mrs. Susan S. Hillis of Omaha. The marriage will take place in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Fenchel of 2207 West Walton street announce the engagement of their daughter, Birdie, to Dr. B. J. Broder.

FUTURE EVENTS

Perhaps the leading feature of all the many features of the new musical comedy, "The Pirate Prince," that is to be given by the Service club on Friday and Saturday at the Strand theater for charity, will be the ballet from "La Bal Poudre," the opera that was given last year with such marked success by the club. The following young women will take part:

Primiere danseuse—Miss Evelyn Isom, assisted by William Burrows Jr.

Pas Deux—Miss Doris Russell and Miss Lila Leonard.

Coup de ballet—Miss Helen Hoyne, Miss Elizabeth Hoyt, Miss Louise Garaghty, Miss Erminie Mathews, Miss Harriet Stuart, Mrs. Mildred Swigart Burrows, Miss Katherine Schmidt, Miss Katherine Blossom, Miss Rosalie Wacker, Miss Mary Pierce, Miss Ruth Orton, Miss Florence Harris, Miss Ruth Hopkins, Miss Jean Hopkins, Miss Marcella Spry, and Miss Eleanor Gann.

Valtz fantasie—Miss Anita Blair and Joseph Kelleher.

Horn pipe dance—Miss Lillian Young.

Miss Louise Garaghty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hunter Garaghty of 999 Lake Shore drive, is giving a dinner party in honor of Miss Violette Selfridge and Miss Emma Louise Stone on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5, before the debut ball of Miss Emma Blair Fitz-Hugh.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Austin Woman's Club Has Busy Month Ahead.

By Hazel Whitaker.

THE coming weeks hold many events for the Woman's Club of Austin, which has been one of the most active clubs on the west side ever since its organization over twenty years ago. Tomorrow afternoon the department of art and literature meets at the regular club headquarters in the Austin Masonic temple, Central avenue and Fulton street. A play under the directorship of Mrs. A. S. Goble, given by the players' class, and a stereopticon lecture, "The Message of the Painter Prophet," by Wilson S. Naylor, professor of literature at Laurence college, will be features of the afternoon's entertainment. Miss Dorothy Lynch and Miss Elizabeth Burton will furnish the music.

Dec. 4 is another important day in the club calendar, for at that time the presidents of the twenty-seven clubs in the Sixth congressional district will be the club's guests of honor, and Mrs. W. J. Benson, the newly elected president of this district, will speak. To carry out the idea of an "international year," the club has obtained for this day the services of a native Penobscot Indian girl, Watahwaso, from a reservation in Maine, and she will give legends, songs, and native dances.

On the 11th of the month there will be a regular club meeting at which the state federation delegates will give reports. On the 18th, Miss Carolyn Wilson of THE TRIBUNE will talk on "A Woman's Experience in War Ridden Europe" and "The Melting Pot," a tableau in charge of Mrs. E. R. Wright, will be repeated by request. Last but not least in December is the children's party on the 29th.

The club, which now numbers almost 600 members, has always been an active factor in civic betterment; the library committee last year collected and distributed over 7,000 magazines and 400 books; the conservation committee has been working for the beautifying of highways, the preserving of wild flowers, and the planting of shrubs, etc., while hundreds of dollars are expended annually by the philanthropy department.

Not only do they take care of a great deal of local charity, but regular contributions are made to the following: The Municipal Art league, the Juvenile Protective league, the Drama league, the Juvenile Protective association, the Illinois Congress of Mothers, the League of Cook County Clubs, the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging house, Bethesda Day nursery, Park Ridge School for Girls, Gads Hill center, Chicago Woman's Shelter, Community Y. M. C. A., and the Eli Bates settlement. The annual pound party for the blind is another of the club's regular donations and a program is given by the members.

The officers are: Mrs. Howard R. Maxwell, president; Mrs. Julius Floto and Mrs. Earl H. Brownell, vice presidents; Mrs. Frank F. Kenworthy, recording secretary; Mrs. Vinton E. Sisson, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Calvin A. Lichty, treasurer. The directors are Mesdames Robert E. Perrego, E. V. Compton, W. I. Cable, H. N. Rose, C. J. Gibson, G. A. Kreis, F. H. Blayney, Haynie R. Pearson, and Charles B. Ayres.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

There will be a meeting of the Chicago Woman's club French study class on Tuesday at 3 p. m. The subject is "Pendant le Renaissance, 1500-1600, Sous les Valois-Orléans et Angoulême." Mme. Isabelle Archinard will speak and Miss Madelaine Archinard will give poetic illustrations. The music study class will meet on Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. The day will be in charge of Miss Helen Bagg and the subject will be "The Creative Side of Music," illustrated by Theodora Sturkow-Ryder, Lulu Jones Downing, and Amy Neill. The regular club meeting will be held in Recital hall on Wednesday at 2 p. m. The subject will be, "New Ideals in the Education of Girls." Mrs. Margaret J. Stannard will speak. The forestry class will meet on Friday at 10:30 a. m. The subject will be "The Influence of the Forest on the People of Greece, Rome, and Britain," by Dr. Zella Allen Dixon. On Saturday the education department will give a luncheon and business meeting in the clubrooms at noon. The class in first aid to the injured will meet at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. There will be a business meeting of the reform department on Wednesday at 12:30 in the clubrooms. An illustrated lecture on "American Architecture," by Fred Vernon Murphy of the Catholic university, and an address on "The Index," by the Rev. Frederick M. Lynck, editor of the Christian Family, will constitute the program for the meeting of the Catholic Woman's league Saturday afternoon in the assembly hall of the Fine Arts building. Miss Sallie Gaynor will be chairman.

The annual charity ball of the Catholic Woman's league will be held on Dec. 29 in the gold room of the Congress hotel.

"Feminism in Germany and Scandinavia" is the subject of a talk which will be given by Miss Katharine Anthony tomorrow at the meeting of the Woman's City club at the Auditorium hotel. Luncheon will be at 1 p. m. and the program at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Eleanore Capps Hostler and Mrs. Charles D. Waterbury will be hostesses to the student department of the Chicago Woman's Musical club today at 3 o'clock in Recital hall, Grant Park building, 624 Michigan avenue. Mrs. David Allen Campbell will speak.

There will be a special luncheon for Oberlin women in the College club rooms, 16 North Wabash avenue, on Friday at 12:30 p. m.

The next regular literary meeting of the Tuesday Art and Travel club will be held in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman at 5 p. m. Tuesday. An illustrated lecture, "Glories and Stories of Oxford," will be given by Dr. Arthur Francis. The study class will meet at 10:30 a. m. in the gray room of the Hotel Sherman.

Mrs. Dora Earle will be in charge of a group of six girls who will sell flowers at the benefit concert to be given by the Woman's Association of Commerce on Friday evening, Dec. 8, at Central Music hall. The proceeds of the concert will go to increasing the educational fund of the association, from which scholarships are provided for young women at the university.

"Conference day" will be observed by the conference of Jewish women's organizations tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Congress hotel. Woods Dual-Power

Gasoline and Electric Car Combined!

For twenty years we have made the best known and most popular electric in the electric vehicle industry—a car that has had first call with every discriminating purchaser. We have stopped its manufacture, at the high tide of prosperity, and are devoting all our energies and resources to the production of the great new DUAL-POWER.

This fact alone is conclusive evidence of our faith in the Dual-Power—our conviction that this Revolutionary Car is the final triumph of automobile design—the logical evolution that produces 100 per cent efficiency.

If you are buying a new car; if you are considering your first car; if you want the pleasure and prestige of owning the sensation of motordom, arrange for a demonstration.

Ready for Delivery

For now we are prepared to deliver our new Dual-Power—the car that presages the revolution of the automobile industry.

A car that is an electric in simplicity, elegance, easy driving and reliability—

—A gas car in adequate speed and unlimited mileage—

—The combination a triumphant car that completely eclipses all previous motor achievements.

If You Have Preferred An Electric

Here is an electric that charges its own battery, eliminating the expense and inconvenience of charging—an electric with unlimited mileage—

—An electric with adequate speed.

If a Gas Car Has Been Your Choice

Here is one without gears, levers or clutch pedal; with a steady, continuous stream of power transmitted direct to the wheels. A car controlled with two finger levers on the steering wheel—

—A car that gets 50 per cent more mileage from one gallon of gasoline—

—A reliable car that will always give you a steady stream of unfailing power.

Dual-Power Achievements

These almost miraculous achievements are accomplished by a small gasoline motor, an electric motor-generator and a battery only half the size required by a straight electric.

This gasoline motor increases speed 40 per cent and keeps the battery charged within the safety zone, assuring much longer battery life.

You can run on gasoline power alone; you can run on electric power alone; you can use both together. You can creep safely through traffic—and at a touch of the finger speed up to the limit of the car. Acceleration is instantaneous; the number of speeds is unlimited; stalling is impossible; magnetic braking practically eliminates skidding.

The Economical Car

With charging expense eliminated and gasoline consumption reduced to the minimum, the Dual-Power sets new records for economy. Cost of upkeep need hardly be considered. All mechanism is operated under the most favorable conditions, thus minimizing the wearing of working parts.

Altogether, in the Dual-Power you are offered an irresistible car—one that has no rival in beauty, elegance and luxurious equipment; a car beyond competition from the mechanical standpoint.

Illustrated literature gladly sent on request. Demonstration by appointment.

These Instruments play ALL makes records

A manufacturer whose name you would instantly recognize built these machines. He is noted for cabinet work of top-most quality. These instruments were made for an eastern concern, who for financial reasons was unable to take them.

Bankers forced liquidation. We bought them at a tremendous sacrifice. We offer them to you at less than the cost of manufacture. All told, there are just 412 phonographs in this lot. Four hundred and twelve homes will get phonographs at never-before-never-again prices. First come, first served. If you want one of these joy-makers in your home, come quickly.

This full-sized $250 Phonograph for $65.00 cash

$69.00 on easy payments

This full-sized $250 beautiful phonograph stands 49 inches high and is 30 inches wide. The design as you can readily see is entirely new and distinctive. As long as they last you have your choice of quarter-sawed oak or solid mahogany. If you want oak be an early comer, as there are only 100 oak cabinets. This machine has a wonderful double spring motor. Plays three to five records with one winding. Accommodates over 150 records without the need of albums. The tone qualities of this instrument are wonderful. Remember, there are just two hundred and ninety six If you are one of the fortunate two hundred and ninety six you can get this $250 value for $65 cash—or $69 on liberal time payments.

And here is a smaller model of the same rare-toned, beautifully-built phonograph. It stands 43 inches high and is 19 inches wide. The workmanship is of the same high character. The tone capacity is practically the same as that of the larger model. Compared with any $110 machine, this instrument will get your preference. It has very ingenious devices for stopping and starting, and for controlling tone There are only 46 of these machines; 25 are mahogany, 21 are oak. The price at which they will be cleared is $42.50 cash—or $45 on favorable terms.

You are probably familiar with the $50 table models of the best-known concerns. This machine is of the same size as these $50 machines. It's just as well made and just as good looking. Quite a sensation was created a short time ago when a machine of this character was sold at $31.60. But the 70 table models that we have will be sold at $15.

So far as mechanism is concerned, this smaller model is almost on a par with the larger machines. It has a wonderfully large tone chamber for a table machine—double-spring motor. Remember, there are only 70 of these instruments and the price is $15—$18.50 on terms to suit.

Announcement Of
The Winner Of
THE $10,000.00 SEQUEL
TO
THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY

The Sequel to the famous motion picture play—"The Diamond From the Sky" is now ready. Millions have been waiting to see it. This sensational Sequel will be shown for the first time in theatres everywhere November 27th. A prize of $10,000.00 was offered for the film story. Are YOU the lucky winner? The pictures will give you the answer. Only upon the screen will the winner's name and identity be disclosed.

A Sensational Masterpiece

"The Diamond From the Sky"—itself a $10,000.00 prize story—was acclaimed the most wonderful serial story ever shown upon the screen. It met with such tremendous popularity that another $10,000.00 prize was offered for a fitting sequel. Months were necessary to read the thousands of suggestions sent in. Then the films were made. Now everything is completed and the marvelous $10,000.00 Sequel is ready to be shown.

William Russell—the Star

While the Sequel is a distinctly NEW story all the old favorities of the original production are again in the cast. Blair Stanley—Vivian Marston—Quabba, the hunchback and Smythe, the quaint English solicitor, are all again to be shown upon the screen. Popular William Russell—beautiful Charlotte Burton—talented William Tedmarsh—funny Orral Humphrey are all in the cast again, together with many new players.

Four Big Chapters

Four big, sensational chapters complete the Sequel—a new feature chapter is shown each week. The Sequel to "The Diamond From the Sky" is tremendously thrilling, powerfully dramatic from beginning to end. See this wonderful picture at your favorite theatre. Learn the identity of the person that earned the $10,000.00 prize. Ask the manager when the Sequel to "The Diamond From the Sky" will be shown and arrange to go.

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. X

Fashion Out in Gorgeous Array for Gay Season.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The approaching season give signs of brilliance. I do not mean that more entertainments are under way that usual nor more costly ones. In these respects it is about as usual, but society has evidently got it into its head that to be neutral does not mean to be sad. For two seasons past the smart set has been decidedly gloomy over the European war. This year it is gay. The diamond headdresses and necklaces, long relegated to cold storage, are called out.

The opera in its opening week looked like the opera of old, whereas for two years past the costuming has been so simple as not to make a visit to the house of song any experience at all. Even the horse show, which suffered an eclipse before hostilities sprang up abroad, revived and in its last evenings was like the horse show of the good old days out in Chicago when we had one there, and the smart set turned out in scores and everybody craned his neck (or would rhetoric waive its rules in this instance and allow me to say "her" neck?) to see what the young, dimpled Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt was wearing. She does not look nearly so young and is scarcely at all dimpled now, and she does not go to the New York horse show because Reginald does.

* *

Wears Gorgeous Headdress.

But I am wandering from my subject, which is that society is gay. On the opening night of the opera I could pay no attention to the stage on account of Mrs. Arthur Iselin's headdress. She was in Mrs. Ogden Goelet's box. Mrs. Iselin wore a narrow fillet of diamonds around her dark hair. It held in place two tall paradise fronds at the back of her head and waving fully a foot above it. She carried a big fan of eagle's feathers and wore a black velvet rose crushed in her corsage. The background for all of this sensationalism, I believe, was a gown of white.

Mrs. George Gould is another of those helping to proclaim that the season will be gay. She is devoted to cloth of gold and cloth of silver for her costuming, and this year she chose the less precious of the metals for her background. Somebody sugested that perhaps it was platinum, and she used it as a fashionable setting for her diamonds. She was ablaze with them. They were her shoulder straps and they hung in long ropes.

Mrs. Leonard Thomas, the beautiful suffragist leader of the four hundred, stuck to the simple costuming of the two years past. She looked like a village maiden or a debutante in her simplicity among so much gorgeousness. She wore a dress of plain white satin, with a yellow flower crushed at her waist. Never has she looked lovelier than in that costume. The suffragists insist that she chose a flower of yellow because it is their color and she wished even in times of emotional excitement (like the opera for the smart set—excuse me for explaining, but who could be expected to get that—society taking opera emotionally!) to remind them of the great cause. If she did, she failed, for nobody ever thought of a cause that evening.

* *

Debutantes Don Diamonds.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who shared the box with her, was stunning looking indeed in taupe colored velvet and an oriental belt, with her hair in a psyche knot.

Mrs. August Belmont was lovely in the blue, which she wore, as usual, with pink roses. Her white hair looked as lovely against this background as Mrs. Thomas' black hair looked with hers.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt was regal in pink chiffon and gold embroidered net.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, who shows decided symptoms of becoming our next national social leader, looked as unfledged as her debutante sister, Miss Alice Huntington, who sat beside her. Mrs. Astor was in white lace with a black tulle scarf. Nearly every woman present had a touch of gold or silver somewhere in her costume.

To close with a word about our new prospective society leader. Mrs. Vincent Astor, now she and her husband are back in the old Astor stronghold on the avenue, is "playing" for the rôle. They say that the Astors breathed a long, long sigh of relief when the young widow of the late colonel relinquished the name and—more particularly—the house where the colonel's mother held away, making and unmaking members of the four hundred.

Mrs. Astor is, of course, entertaining extensively for her sister, the debutante, and besides this she is going in for the sort of thing that is supposed to count for something today. It is not enough, you know, nowadays, if you [illegible] a matron, merely to give balls and bestow nods and withhold nods here and there. You must back certain movements, and bring leaders together at your house.

Well, the old house in Fifth avenue (we might really call it the royal palace of American society) has been thrown open to leaders of a movement now. Its young mistress was the hostess the other evening for eighty-seven members of the immigration committee of the United States chamber of commerce.

Do not worry. This does not mean that society is becoming socialized. There will be more parties for that debutante sister and for the elder set of the four hundred who never listened to the propaganda of a movement in their lives. And if signs carry there will be a mistress who is a worthy successor to the grande dame of other years in the White House of the four hundred.

Mrs. Joseph Field of 936 Lake Shore drive, has invitations out for a dinner-dance at her apartment on Monday evening, Dec. 4, in honor of Miss Nancy Keen Perkins of Richmond, Va., who is to be the bride of Henry Field. Among the other affairs arranged in honor of the young couple will be a dinner-dance to be given Dec. 18 by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field at the Blackstone.

While there will be 450 guests at the Bachelors and Benedicts' ball in the gold ballroom of the Congress hotel on next Wednesday evening but fourteen debutantes have been included in the invitation list. They are Miss Lolita Armour, Miss Sylvia Shaw, Miss Isabelle Baker, Miss Ermina Carry, Miss Elizabeth Folds, Miss Elizabeth Adsit, Miss Harriet Buckingham, Miss Elizabeth Goodrich, Miss Betty Hoyt, Miss Emma Blair Fitz-Hugh, Miss Violette Selfridge, Miss Rosalie Wacker, Miss Helen Hoyne, and Miss Lucy Jewett. The ball will open promptly at 10 o'clock and there will be a number of brilliant and effective figures to the cotillon, which will later be led by members of the committee. The midnight supper is to be served in the Elizabethan room.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Lerin C. Collins, formerly of Chicago but now of Santa Fé, N. M., is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Robb Collins of 322 Sheridan road.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dickinson and Miss Rose Dickinson have taken an apartment at 1210 Astor street.

The date has been canceled for the dance to have been given by Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury and Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth on Wednesday evening, Dec. 27, at the Virginia hotel for their sons, Kimball Salisbury and Hunt Wentworth, because of illness in both families.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Scriven of 4 Bellevue place, who have rented their house to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blatchford of Oak Park, are boarding at 14 Bellevue place.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick will arrive from Wichita, Kas., on Dec. 28 for the holidays.

Mrs. George S. Isham and her daughter, Miss Helen, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, and Mrs. Julian Mason are among a group of Chicagoans who went east to attend the Yale-Harvard football game.

Have a Clear Complexion and Clean Skin

There is one sure, safe way to avoid a blotchy, pimply skin. A good or bad complexion comes from within. If you want a clear complexion, a clean skin—rosy cheeks and good health, your blood must be pure and the poisonous matter must be carried off.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets assist nature to remove all poisonous waste matter in the system. They act on the liver and bowels like calomel yet have no dangerous after-effects. They are reliable—safe and cannot harm—are used by women folks everywhere.

Constipation is nearly always the cause of all ailments of women. The intestines must be made to do their work as nature intended—in a normal way.

Have color in your cheeks. Take one or two tablets nightly and note the pleasing results. All druggists—10c and 25c.

Churches Unite in Thanksgiving Services Thursday

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THANKSGIVING will be the theme in the churches today and on Thanksgiving day, next Thursday. The proclamation of President Wilson asking for contributions for the most needy of the countries which have suffered on account of the war will be recognized in the offerings.

In some churches the custom long established of taking an offering for the United Charities will be continued. In one group of churches envelopes have been given out for the Thanksgiving day offering, in which money intended for Armenian relief is to be placed and the loose collection is to be equally divided between the Midnight church and the United Charities.

At the Norwood Park Methodist Episcopal church a choral Thanksgiving service will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Walter M. Briggs.

The Lake View churches will meet in the Wellington Avenue Congregational church, Wellington avenue near Broadway. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Henry S. Brown, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lake View. Services at 10:30. Ministers participating are the Rev. Van Ogden Vogt, the Rev. Charles A. Nyman, the Rev. Fred V. Hawley, Rabbi Abraham Hirschberg, and Rabbi Felix A. Levy.

The Oakland congregations will meet in the South Congregational church, Drexel boulevard and Fortieth street. The Rev. Dr. R. R. Bigger of the Sixth Presbyterian church will preach.

The Hyde Park group will meet in the Hyde Park Presbyterian church, Blackstone avenue and Fifty-third street. The Rev. Dr. Ozora S. Davis, president of the Chicago Congregational seminary, will preach.

A group of eighteen churches will meet in the Church of the Redeemer, Universalist, Robey street and Warren avenue. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. J. H. O. Smith of the Metropolitan Church of Christ.

A group of twelve churches will meet in the Belden Avenue Baptist church, Belden avenue and North Halsted street. The sermon will be by the Rev. Dr. James G. K. McClure, president McCormick Theological seminary.

The Rev. Dr. M. G. Moyer, who recently celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as a minister in the Lutheran church, last week celebrated also the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding. The wedding anniversary, at which Mrs. Boyer was present, was held at the home of his son, C. H. Boyer, manager of the casualty department of the National Life Insurance company.

The Humboldt Park Gospel Tabernacle

The Humboldt Park Gospel tabernacle, a spacious brick church edifice costing $60,000, of which the Rev. J. O. Wester is pastor, will be dedicated today. The church is located at North Homan and Pierce avenues.

Special services in connection with the dedication have been in progress all week, beginning last Sunday. The culminating ceremony of dedication will be held today, beginning at 2 o'clock. The dedicatory sermon will be preached at 3 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. A. B. Simpson of New York. The pastor will lead in the dedication ceremony. Dr. Simpson will also preach this morning at 10:45 o'clock. The evening service will begin at 7:30, followed by a sermon by Evangelist Edwin R. Dow.

The organization of the Humboldt Park Gospel tabernacle church began about twelve years ago. For ten years the Rev. J. O. Wester has been the pastor. Mr. Wester has also been in charge of meetings held in the summer in a large tent.

Meetings during the last week have been held afternoon and evening and have been participated in by neighboring pastors and by the representatives of the Moody and other churches.

Archbishop Mundelein has appointed the Rev. William J. Kinsella, pastor of St. Philip Neri church, as spiritual director of the Catholic Total Abstinence society of the archdiocese. In a letter announcing the appointment Arbishop Mundelein said: "The work of the Catholic Total Abstinence union of Illinois has my approval, my good wishes, and my blessing. Many a home would be intact today and the family happy had the father been a member of your organization."

"The Value of an Empty Purse" is the subject of the address to be given by the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean of the Yale School of Religion, at the Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, tonight. Dr. Brown was pastor for fifteen years of the First Congregational church of Oakland, Cal., and was active in California's civic affairs. When Francis J. Heney was making the San Francisco graft exposures Dr. Brown supported his efforts. He opened his church to the prosecutor when few other platforms were available. Dr. Brown was also a member of the local Central Labor union.

Dr. Brown has been moderator of the national council of Congregational churches. He is an officer of the Congregational Education society.

E. J. Buffington, president of the Illinois Steel company and a trustee of the Sunday Evening club, will take part in the program. Foote's "Mount Carmel" will be sung by the women's chorus. Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon will sing the offertory.

◆

The Western Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Western avenue and West Monroe street, will celebrate its golden anniversary next Sunday and Monday. Delegations from twenty-five other churches, composed of those who formerly were connected with the Western Avenue church, are expected to be present. Each delegation will express through its chairman its good will to the mother church. Former members of the choir will reinforce the present choir in furnishing the music. The special reunion service will be held at 2:30. Bishop Thomas Nicholson will speak. At the morning service the pastor, the Rev. Berton Harris Fleming, will preach a jubilee sermon. On Monday evening a banquet will be given, at which the Rev. Dr. A. W. Patten and the Rev. Dr. M. E. Cady, former pastors, and J. Richie Patterson, teacher of the Epworth Bible class, will speak.

◆

A course of instruction in the doctrines of religion as held by the Roman Catholic church, which is to cover a period of five years and is to progress simultaneously over the entire archdiocese, has been provided by Archbishop Mundelein. The first instructions are to begin next Sunday, which is the first Sunday in Advent. The instructions are to be given at low mass. By the simultaneous instruction in every church a priest or a member of the congregation will assist or hear the instructions in order, no matter where he may chance to be.

◆

The Rev. F. D. Butchart of Cleveland will be the speaker at the quarterly rally of the Chicago Christian Missionary society under the auspices of the Disciples of Christ. The meeting will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Clark and Washington streets, at 3 o'clock.

◆

Sunrise prayer meetings will be held Thanksgiving morning in the Jackson Boulevard Christian church, the Rev. Austin Hunter, pastor, and in the Englewood Christian church, the Rev. Charles G. Kindred, pastor.

The Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, Ridgeland avenue and Erie street, Oak Park, will be dedicated with services today and every evening this week, concluding on Thanksgiving day. At 10 o'clock a farewell service will be held in the old church building. It will be conducted by the Rev. E. T. Lamm of Christ church, Oak Park. The congregation will immediately march to the new church, where the dedication services will be held. The Rev. E. F. Haertel of Christ church, Chicago, who organized the Trinity church ten years ago, will preach the dedicatory sermon. At 3 o'clock the Rev. George A. Gullixon of the North Avenue Norwegian church, Chicago, will preach and at 7:45 p. m. the Rev. J. Adam Detzer of Detroit will preach the sermon. There will be special music at all services. The Rev. Arthur H. Kaub and the Rev. Carl G. Schleff will be other speakers. On Thanksgiving evening Dr. Francis Hemington will give an organ recital. The Rev. J. M. Bailey is the pastor of the church.

◆

Benjamin Scovell, a former actor, will give a dramatic reading of "The Sign of the Cross" today at 3:45 at the West Side Young Men's Christian association, 1550 Monroe street, and this evening at the Grace Protestant Episcopal church of Oak Park.

◆

The choir of the Buena Memorial Presbyterian church, Sheridan road and Broadway, will sing this evening Gaul's "Holy City."

Hair on the Underarm Removed with El Rado

El Rado, the Sanitary Liquid

Removes hair in the same simple way that water removes dirt. Pour the liquid on absorbent cotton and apply it to the hair, which dissolves in a few moments.

El Rado is absolutely harmless, and does not increase or coarsen later hair growth.

Home life atmosphere with quiet Elegance

There's a wonderful difference between refined splendor and vulgar display. The men who own and operate the new Evanston Hotel, appreciating this fact, have seen to it that nothing garish, nothing savoring of tawdriness, has been allowed to creep in. Because of its refined, homelike atmosphere, its superior appointments, unexcelled service, convenience to business Chicago, and its ideal location, close to Lake Michigan, in Evanston's most beautiful residential district, the new Evanston Hotel is —the preference of particular people

Far removed from the hurry and worry of the noisy city, yet within a ride of twenty minutes by train or thirty-five minutes by elevated to theaters, shops, and the business part of Chicago. Up where the air is free of smoke and unpleasant odors. This exclusive hotel offers to discriminating people a home life which eliminates the work and worries of housekeeping at about one half the cost.

We are particularly proud of our Cuisine—club breakfasts, club luncheons, table d'hote dinners and a la carte service. DINNER DANCES Thursday evenings. Musical entertainment Sunday evenings. Choice rooms, beautifully furnished, with private bath, $1.50 to $5.00 per day; $10 to $30 per week. You should inspect the advantage we offer before going elsewhere.

A Special Thanksgiving Dinner will be served Thursday, Nov. 30, from 1 to 8 o'clock. There will be special music and dancing Thanksgiving night. Reservations should be made at once to insure against disappointment.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY by MME. Z.

Official Society Away for the Football Game.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.]—On the eve of the Army and Navy game Washington is, as usual, one deserted village. All the official world and his wife go up to New York or to Philadelphia, as the case may be, for that. Every member of the cabinet who is within reach has gone up, each one taking a party along. And the president and Mrs. Wilson have gone, taking their party along.

It will be remembered that one of the most notable ante-nuptial appearances of the president and his fiancee was at the service game a year ago. He took her to the first of the world's series baseball games and to the Army and Navy football game, and showed her to the admiring populace.

This year it has been suggested that she is taking him. It may be so. If it is, why, more power to her, that's all. It is certain that some humanizing influence is at work. For instance, the Wilsons have been back at the White House for two weeks, and they have not yet showed up at church at all, though they have been to the theater twice. Which is something of a record for a Presbyterian elder.

* *

Get Enthusiastic Reception.

Last Sunday the weather was perfect, and they spent the morning at home, and in the afternoon they motored up to the new Columbia Road apartment, where Mrs. Bolling, Mrs. Wilson's mother, and her son and daughter are installed for the winter, and picked up the elder lady, and took her for a spin. They were enthusiastically greeted on almost every street they turned into, and as they whirled around the Army and Navy club corner a sightseeing automobile slowed up to allow them to pass. The guide recognized the president at once, and announced it to the passengers, who rose in a body and cheered long and loud. The president bowed and Mrs. Wilson gave the enthusiasts her brightest smiles.

All down the speedway the White House car was followed by a procession of other cars, driving as close as they dared, and it was really a triumphal progress, the president continually lifting his hat, and Mrs. Wilson smiling and bowing graciously to right and left.

Monday night they went to see Montgomery and Stone in "Chin Chin," and their appearance in their box upset Washington's customary calm, and elicited cheer after cheer from the audience that packed the theater. It was their first appearance at a big public gathering since their return to Washington. Later in the week they went to see the Russian ballet, and were greeted by a like demonstration. The real point of it is that this sort of thing does not seem to annoy the president as it used. He does not dodge it, as he formerly did, which is ascribed to the aforementioned "humanizing influence."

If that same influence restores to Washington the inaugural ball, which was until the last inguration one of the most glorious of the traditional glories surrounding the installation of a president, the city will be duly grateful.

* *

General Reception Difficult.

Another place where the humanizing influence might get in some fine work would be in the restoration of the great popular New Year's reception at the White House, which has always been regarded as a splendidly and characteristically democratic function, but which it remained for a professionally democratic president to do away with.

If it should come to pass, the president will be greeted by the most interesting lot of newcomers in the diplomatic corps that have been in line at the White House for many a long day. But the European situation would make a general reception a bit difficult, as Washington society realized on Monday and Tuesday of this week when Mrs. Lansing opened the season with two receptions for such members of the diplomatic corps as cared to call on the wife of the secretary of state, cards being sent to the representatives of the entente nations and to half of the neutrals for the first and to the representatives of the central powers and the other half of the neutrals for the second.

Which reminds me that the German embassy has been rather annoyed by the generally published statement that with the return of the Countess von Bernstorff and the enlargement of the German embassy by annexing an adjoining building, a brilliant social campaign would be inaugurated at the embassy. The statement as originally made was said to have emanated from the embassy itself. But there must have been some mistake, for within the week I have had personal assurance from the embassy that there would be no entertaining there, nothing but the most informal social life, until after the war.

There is to be a big bazaar here in the middle of the winter for the benefit of the Red Cross work of the central powers, which no doubt the Von Bernstorffs will open and at which the members of the diplomatic staffs of both Germany and Austria will appear frequently; just as there are various reliefs planned in which the allies are the beneficiaries and which their diplomats will patronize. As, for instance, the bazaar for the allies to be held in Chicago in January, which, I understand, Madame Bakhmeteff, wife of the Russian ambassador, will open.

Madame Bakhmeteff, though she is American born, daughter of the late Edward Fitzgerald Beale, is almost more Russian than the czar and is the official head of the Russian Red Cross in America. She is about the most decorated woman in Washington, but the only ones that she pretends to take any stock in are those that have been bestowed on her for Red Cross service, so that she must have been particularly pleased at the new one recently granted her in that line by the king of Montenegro, an order "pour le merite" in recognition of her efforts in relief work.

New Arrival at Leiter Home.

There is so much news in the diplomatic circle just now that most of it must wait until next week. But there is one new arrival, entirely undiplomatic, of whom Chicago will be glad to hear, and that is the little new daughter of the Joseph Leiters, born last week. They have two little sons—Joe Jr. and Tommy—and were especially pleased to welcome a little daughter, whom they plan to name Nancy, after Mrs. Colin Campbell, who was Nancy Leiter.

The Leiters, by the way, are occupying the big Du Pont circle residence this winter, having opened it for the first time since the death of Mrs. Levi Leiter some three or four years ago. For the past few seasons they have preferred to use their country home on the Potomac Palisades, rather than the town house, and have done some delightful entertaining there, but still people are glad to have the big house open again.

Santa Claus Is Here—and His Wild Sea Lions Are Here!

'Course they're not dangerous—won't bite or hurt you—but we call 'em wild 'cause they're wild to see you and 'cause they haven't learned to balance a ball on their nose and 'cause they like to indulge their natural liking for cold water plunges. And swim—say, 'jever see anything to beat 'em—and when they wicki, wacki, waddle out of the water, their fur shines like sixty. And when you look at 'em, they just naturally talk to each other and tell funny jokes. Do they have a language? Sure—especially when they're being fed. What do they eat? Oh, come up and find out—they love company—'specially good little boys and girls—and—who said there are any bad ones? Sometimes, maybe—but not at Christmas.

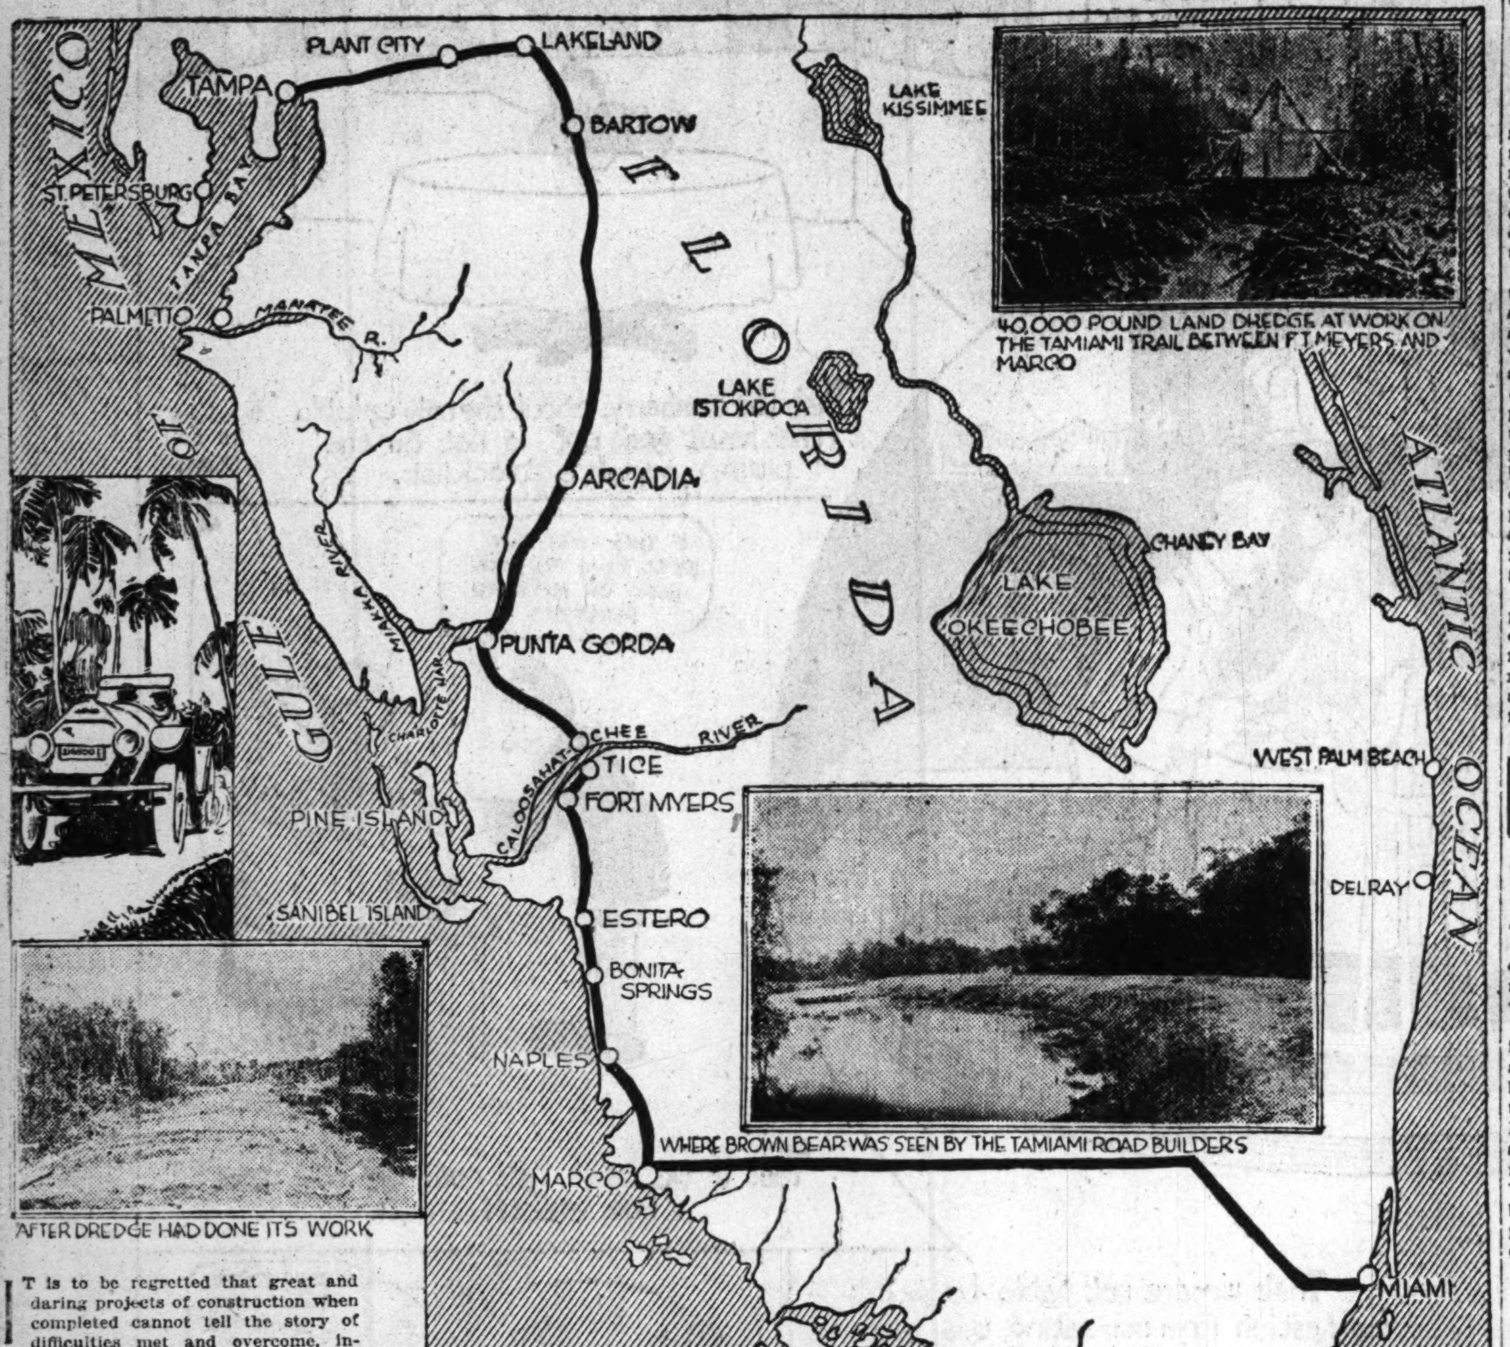
Building a Motor Road Through the Everglades



40,000 POUND LAND DREDGE AT WORK ON THE TAMIAMI TRAIL BETWEEN FT MEYERS AND MARCO

AFTER DREDGE HAD DONE ITS WORK

It is to be regretted that great and daring projects of construction when completed cannot tell the story of difficulties met and overcome, instead of presenting the smooth finished appearance too often taken as a matter of course by the casual observer, without a thought as to how it was all brought about.

This is going to be the case of the Tamiami trail, a greater part of which is over the Dixie highway, now being constructed through the Everglades of Florida. The road will extend from Tampa on the west coast to Miami on the east, and when completed in 1918 will represent a total outlay in excess of $1,000,000. Approximately $750,000 has been appropriated and work is under way, so that its ultimate completion is absolutely assured.

Large bridge projects have been provided for at the crossing of the Manatee river at Bradentown and across Charlotte harbor at Punta Gorda. Of the total of 276.9 miles, the stretch from Punta Gorda to Miami, representing a mileage of 188.9, has been incorporated as a part of the Dixie highway. This is the most difficult part of the construction, as a greater part of it is through the Everglades.

With the exception of the completion of the bridges at Bradentown and Punta Gorda, a well graded road, with a large part of the mileage surfaced, will be provided from Tampa to Marco early in 1917. Some additional funds are needed to surface the road in Lee county. The highway from Marco to Miami, a distance of eighty-three miles, will probably require the greater part of the year to complete on account of the tremendous difficulties to be overcome in building through Bg Cypress swamp.

An interesting fact connected with the construction of this extreme southern cross state highway is that on the entire distance from Marco to Miami there are less than twenty-five inhabitants, and these are mostly Seminole Indians. Leading out of Miami, the Tamiami trail will extend for twenty-four miles due west without a curve or an angle.

◆

The contractors are now obliterating traces of the story of months spent in battling against terrific odds in the muck and water of the Everglades as they go, by sowing grass seed along the embankment of the highway. Property owners are dotting the roadside with palms and other tropical trees and foliage, so that by the time tourists can travel this great highway across the state only canals, small lakes, and fertile fields will be in the foreground, where once existed an impenetrable jungle.

Some idea of the bigness of the task of building a road through the Everglades may be obtained from a graphic account of his struggles on Big Bend, furnished by Capt. K. B. Harvey, who has the contract for fifty-five miles of the trail from Fort Myers to Marco.

"There are no rules in the book," says Capt. Harvey, "to fit the proposition offered by Big Bend. It was a case of 'It's up to you, fight it out.' It was scrub mangrove and grass muck. Think of the leaves on the trees shaking and trembling and the whole mass of muck and mud for hundreds of feet in each direction quivering and shaking like a mass of jelly with each vibration of the dredge engine. Then think of putting a 40,000 pound engine across. It takes every nerve one has with muck and mud underneath twelve feet deep, and enchancing the slightest mistake or error of judgment would make a buried and tangled wreck of 40,000 pounds of steel and machinery. Try it and see what sleepless nights are."

◆

In answer to the question of how he did it, Capt. Harvey said that he tried plank and log cribbing, but this was too uncertain and treacherous. Then brush mats were made and piled up four feet high, the track laid on them, and the machine forced over the brush mats. "These mats," said Capt. Harvey, "were often washed down in the muck until the track layers would have to fish to their shoulders in the mud to get out the rails and cross ties."

The tourist who travels this road, as he will be able to do as far as Marco in 1917, will miss the thrills of the battle with the Everglades. The first travelers may see the brown bears, wildcats, and other denizens of the jungles, which frequently come within 200 yards of the workmen to satisfy their curiosity as to what new creatures have come to disturb their solitude.

Aside from catering to the desires of the motorists to explore the much talked of Everglades, view the wonderful scenery, and provide a vast hunting preserve accessible to seekers of big game, the counties involved had a big commercial idea in view in planning and carrying through the construction of the Tamiami trail. Lack of drainage as well as inaccessibility makes dormant and worthless hundreds of thousands of acres in the Everglades, which experts claim contains the most fertile soil to be found in the world. The construction of the Tamiami trail removes both of these obstacles.

The methods employed in excavating for the canal and throwing up the rock marl and other material for the roadbed and depositing the unsuitable material, such as decayed vegetable matter and muck, on the other side, is best described in Capt. Harvey's own words:

Every conceivable condition of road building is found in the first ten miles north from Marco. Cypress strands underlaid with bowlder and bed rock; pine ridges of bowldre and ridges of the hardest of hardpan, sandbanks of clay of several different colors, rock ridges outcropping on the surface, cabbage palmetto land, scrub buttonwood, prairie land flooded in the rainy season, flat woods land, saw grass land, marsh grass land, soft blue marl and shell land, all varieties of mangrove land, swamp land, tide flats, tide lands one to two feet under water at high tide, bog lands, mud holes, muck ponds, creeks, rivers, bayous, and channels—more combinations than any spot on earth to give a contractor a run for his money.

Hand labor was out of the question and impracticable, so it became a serious problem as to how to handle the proposition with the varying conditions intermingled. A land dredge machine was decided upon and although it is a long ways from perfect, it has answered the general purpose fairly well. It is of steel beam construction, weighing some 40,000 pounds. It has a cubic yard dipper and straddles the canal and runs on its own tracks by its own power. The steel rails are in four foot sections and pinned at the ends with a flexible steel coupling on three inch thick 3x12 oak cross ties, enabling it to run over uneven ground. The tracks are twenty-nine feet apart. Thus a canal source twenty-four feet wide and twelve feet deep can be dug if desired. In this instance the width of the canal in most places depends on the amount of material desired for the roadbed. An even depth was carried with an idea of drainage.

We began cutting through the swamp, dumping the mass of marl, sand, etc., to one side. This dump is leveled down to grade and surfaced by hand with big heavy hoes and shovels. Through Williams island jungle, which was truly a jungle in every sense of the word, a mass of trees of all kinds and sizes; thousands of switches, poles, brush, ferns, all woven together with bamboo, rattan, and other vines. Perhaps several hundred would be chopped off at the ground before the mass would fall, so that it could be chopped apart with brush axes. When it is understood that the clearing had to be done at the contract price of $44 an acre, it can be seen that the contractor had to run for his money. Some stretches could not be cleared for three times the price.

The finished road bed is eighteen feet wide. It is 1½ to 1 slope, with six inch crown and three feet berm. The contract for the island part and part of the mainland was 24 cents per cubic yard. A contractor bidding at these prices and under such conditions is skating on thin ice.

In removing the big rock ledges and rock strata wherever encountered explosives are used. As the major portion of the material to be taken out is soft the big bucket on the dredge is able to do all of the excavating down to bed rock. When the rock bed as thrown up by the dredge has stood for thirty days and thoroughly dried and settled, the contractor's forces go over it with pick and shovel, leveling down a little above grade to allow for rolling.

The subgrade will be rolled with a roller weighing seven tons or more, and any depressions are brought to an even surface. After the subgrade has been completed a rock surface to the depth of twelve inches is put on and rolled. The rock is then scarified, graded, and rolled. Twenty-four inch culverts are to be placed about every 600 feet. In Dade county at every mile station a twenty foot spur road as a turn out will be provided.

Foreign Shipments of Motor Cars During 1916 Shatter All Records

Figures just issued by the department of commerce show that 80,658 motor vehicles, valued at $100,258,220, were shipped from the United States during the twelve months ended June 30, 1916. This represents one-fifteenth of all the motor vehicles produced in this country in the last fiscal year and one-tenth of their gross value, according to estimates of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

There were shipped to foreign countries (not including American possessions) 21,265 commercial vehicles, valued at $56,805,548, and 56,234 passenger cars, valued at $40,680,253. England, France, and Russia took nearly all of the trucks (19,028) and nearly one-quarter of the passenger cars (13,848), or, in all, two-thirds of the total value of the exports. Great Britain and her colonies bought 48 per cent and France and her colonies about 20 per cent. The Philippine islands and the American possessions (Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico) received 4,488 motor vehicles, worth $3,740,145.

Crowning the biggest and most prosperous year the motoring industry has ever known it is now certain that the forthcoming show season will outrank in magnitude and importance any show season of the many that have gone before. Both of the two yearly national shows held in New York and Chicago under the auspices of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce will have a larger number of exhibitors than ever before. The New York show will be held in the Grand Central palace, Jan. 6 to 13, and the Chicago exhibition will be held in the Coliseum and Armory, Jan. 27 to Feb. 3.

Every inch of available exhibition space in the Grand Central palace, a total of 112,000 square feet, occupying four floors, has been allotted exhibitors and there is a big waiting list of concerns who would like to show their products. Manager S. A. Miles is doing his utmost to provide space for late applicants and has had engineers in the palace trying to arrange for additional space.

For the first time in the history of the national shows all the space allotted to car exhibitors has been filled, and at the first drawing. More than this, it has been found necessary to take space on the fourth floor, usually given over to accessory displays, in order to accommodate ten makes of cars. When the allotment and drawing took place several weeks ago, ninety-eight makes of cars were assigned space. Of this number seventeen will make their first appearance at the national shows, being cars that have come upon the market during the last year.

Proving the High Cost of Mud

Increases of land values ranging from 25 to 194 per cent and reduction of hauling costs from 23⅓ cents per ton mile to 15.7 cents, due directly to road improvement in eight counties, prove conclusively that dirt is not cheap, when that dirt is on the highways.

These and a number of other interesting and important facts are presented in a bulletin of about 150 pages just issued by the department of agriculture under the title, "Economic Surveys of County Highway Improvement." The work is an analysis of results obtained from road improvement in four counties in Virginia and one each in New York, Alabama, Florida, and Mississippi during a period of five years.

Following improvement of the main market roads, the selling price of tillable lands served by the roads increased from one to three times the total cost of the improvements. The gross annual saving in hauling costs due to the good roads amounts to $627,409 for a traffic of about 3,500,000 ton miles, while the net saving after deducting the cost of interest and principal for road work averages 11.6 cents per ton mile for hauling.

Before the roads were improved the average school attendance was sixty-six pupils in each 100 enrolled, as compared with seventy-six after improvement. Thus ten more children in every 100 are enabled to secure an education as a result of better roads.

WHAT WE MEAN BY "LONGER LIFE" IN BATTERIES

Nine-tenths of all battery trouble is due to "short-circuits" in the battery itself.

Eliminate the short-circuit and you will lengthen the life of your starting and lighting battery two to three times over.

Short-circuits are caused by the deterioration of the wooden separators, used in ordinary batteries to keep the negative and positive plates apart. The strong acid in the battery soon turns these into a soft pulp. They fall apart allowing the plates to touch.

The instant this happens your battery gives out—usually beyond repair.

Vesta Indestructible Isolator
This apparently simple device adds an extra life to every Vesta Storage Battery.

The Vesta Battery does not rely on any such makeshift. The plates of the Vesta are locked apart with the famous patented Vesta Indestructible Isolators. These are made of material not affected by battery acid.

Because of these isolators, which eliminate short circuits Vesta Batteries last twice as long as other makes. The Vesta Indestructible Isolator construction is patented and is found in Vesta Batteries only.

This is the insurance Vesta owners carry on lives of their batteries, and at no extra expense, for Vesta batteries cost the same as ordinary storage batteries. Investigate the Vesta.

How the Fighting Is Done

The following letter was written by the editor of The Tribune to Philip H. Patchin, his London correspondent, last August:

• • • • •

"When infantry advance, are they shoulder to shoulder? If not, how much of an interval separates them? How many lines of infantry make an attack, and at what distance do the lines separate? Are the machine guns taken in the attack? Are local flanking movements organized?

"I have heard comment made that all the battle stories sent over here on all the fronts, by all the writers, read exactly alike and would apply as well to the capture of a crowd of thugs by the Chicago police. All these recent articles are nothing but bunches of words. They are not even pictures of things that did not happen.

"What we want is the detail of what happened. No one cares about a real or an imaginary hero who went down into a dugout and brought back from five to five hundred prisoners. What we would like to know is how they got those five hundred prisoners in the dugout, the detail of the maneuver."

• • • • •

In reply to this letter The Tribune has received a series of five thrilling articles, the first on infantry advance; the second on trench raids; others on artillery works, aeroplanes, and care of the wounded.

The first of these will appear in

Questions and Answers

By High Speed

I am planning a tour to southern Florida, but as I hear the roads of Tennessee are poor, am wondering if it would not be a good idea to ship my car through that state. What would the charges be for shipment from Nashville to Chattanooga? If I decide to drive the entire distance, what route would you advise in going from Chicago to St. Petersburg, Fla.? V. R., Chicago.

You are right about the Tennessee roads, which average poor to fair with few good sections. However, people are driving over them all the time, and if you are game there is no reason why you should not do the same. Go to Indianapolis via Crown Point, Rensselaer and Lafayette and take the Dixie highway, which, while none too good, is the only route to Florida. From Indianapolis go through Louisville and Nashville to Chattanooga. If the weather is dry you can drive across the mountains to Chattanooga, but in case of rain you should detour via Huntsville, 100 miles out of your way. From Chattanooga go through Atlanta, Macon, Americus, Albany, Thomasville, and Live Oak to Gainesville. Then go through McIntosh, Hernando, Floral City, Tarpon Springs and Clearwater to St. Petersburg. The charge for shipping a 3,000 pound car from Nashville to Chattanooga is $33.

Will you kindly inform me through the medium of your department of questions and answers what the regulations of the city of Chicago are regarding headlights on automobiles; also what rules are in force regarding passing of street cars that have come to a stop?
ERWIN KEMPTON, Chicago.

The following ordinance regulating headlights on automobiles, motorcycles, or other vehicles was passed by the city council on March 30, 1914:

"It shall be unlawful for any person operating any automobile, motorcycle, or other vehicle, while operating the same upon the public streets and highways within the city, to use acetylene, electric, or other bright headlight, or any headlight the rays from which shall be intensified by any parabolic or condensing reflector, unless such headlight shall be properly shaded so as not to blind, dazzle, or confuse other users of the highway or make it difficult or unsafe for them to ride, drive, or walk thereon.

['It shall be unlawful for any person driving or having charge, possession, or control of any vehicle being driven or propelled or operated upon the streets of the city of Chicago, upon overtaking any street car which is stopped for the purpose of discharging or taking on a passenger or passengers, to permit or cause said vehicle to pass or approach within ten feet of said car as long as the said car is so stopped or remains standing for the purpose of discharging or taking on a passenger or passengers."

I intend to drive from Chicago to Mammoth Cave, Ky., and am familiar with the route as far as Louisville, Ky. Will you please publish the best route from that city to the cave, naming the distance and the places passed, through? I do not mind going out of my way as long as the roads and scenery are good. You have helped me out several times this season and I have alwyas found your advice good.
B. B. L., Oak Park, Ill.

You may take your choice of two routes, either of which will be found all right. The Dixie highway is shorter by about twelve or thirteen miles, but is not quite as good as the other way, which is over the Jackson highway. If you are looking for places of interest perhaps the latter route would be the better, for you would pass through Buffalo, near which is located Lincoln farm, the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln. The scenery also will be found fine. For that matter, the Dixie highway offers many scenic attractions, as it passes through some of the best sections of the blue grass state. The Dixie way passes through Shively, Orel, Meadowlawn, West Point, Elizabethtown, Upton, Munfordville, Rowletts, Horse Cave, and Cave City to Mammoth Cave, 99.3 miles. The route via the Jac[illegible] Beuchel, Fern Creek, Ashville, Mount Washington, High Grove, Bardstown, New Haven, Buffalo, Canmer, Hardyville, Uno, Bear Wallow, and Cave City to Mammoth Cave, 112.7 miles.

How did the time made in the recent Vanderbilt race compare with the record set in the first contest for the cup? Who were the winners up to this year?
J. A. L., Chicago.

In 1904 Heath, in a Panhard, won the first race in 5:26:45. Resta's time in the race of Nov. 16 was 3:22:48. After Heath, the winners were: Hemery, 1905; Wagmer, 1906; Robertson, 1908; Grant, 1909; Grant, 1910; Mulford, 1911; De Palma, 1912; De Palma, 1914; Resta, 1915; Resta, 1916. There were no races for the cup in 1907 and 1912. The recent race was the last Vanderbilt that will ever take place, as Mr. Vanderbilt will retire the cup from competition.

What is a planetary gear, and how did it get its name?
EDWARD STEPHENS, Milford, Ia.

The planetary gear is so named because the change speed gears revolve around a center gear attached to the main shaft, the motion of the gearing resembling that of the planets around the sun. The main gear, which is attached to the central shaft, is termed the "sun" gear, while the assembly members are called "planet" gears.

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Smith Form-a-Truck

Hauling Costs Placed on Definite Economy Basis

Smith Form-a-Truck has accomplished in a few months what hundreds of manufacturers have been trying to do for ten years.

It has placed hauling on a definite economy basis—established the lowest ton-mile hauling cost ever obtained by any form of service.

It has been found equally adaptable to every line of hauling and delivery work, ranging from the service demanded by the smallest users to that demanded by the biggest contractors, manufacturers and stores in the country.

The Smith Form-a-Truck Attachment combines with any Ford to make a one-ton truck. Big, new manufacturing developments now adapt it equally well to the power plants of the Buick, Dodge, Maxwell, Overland and Chevrolet cars.

Attachments adjustable to an even greater list of power plants will follow.

Smith Form-a-Truck is being bought by thousands of users whose requirements call for but one or a few units, and by big business concerns whose orders include entire fleets.

Smith Form-a-Trucks are in the service of Cudahy, Armour, Standard Oil, Indian Refining Co., Montgomery Ward, Schlitz Brewing, Morris & Co., Fleishmann Yeast, U. S. Mail contractors, and many other nationally known concerns demanding maximum service and proved economy.

For local contractors, department stores, grocers, provision stores, dairymen, and the farmer, single Smith Form-a-Truck units are performing their work in from one-third to one-quarter of the time required by horses and at a cost of about one-third as much.

The first Smith Form-a-Truck ever sold has already covered 18,000 miles at a total cost of $8.00 repairs, and is still hauling an average load of 2200 pounds in daily service, totaling from forty to fifty miles.

The demand for Smith Form-a-Truck has exceeded that for any other form of motor delivery vehicles. Sales have always exceeded production capacity, despite tremendous factory facilities and every convenience of modern manufacturing methods.

The Smith Form-a-Truck Company now ranks as one of the biggest and best motor truck manufacturers in the world.

Arrangements have been completed for doubling our present big factory.

30,000 Smith Form-a-Trucks will be the production limit for next year, and even this tremendous production will be even too small.

Exhaust Echoes

In announcing an increase of Kissel Kar prices, to take effect on Friday, the Kissel Motor Car company makes it plain that a further advance in the near future is probable. "The cost of material and labor has not only risen," says Harry Branstetter, local distributor, "but is still going up, and it cannot now be foretold how much higher it will eventually drive retail prices."

The growth of the Smith Form-a-Truck company, manufacturer of the attachment which combines with a Ford power plant to make a one ton truck, reads like one of the romances of the automobile industry in the tremendous achievements which have taken place in the short space of fifteen months. From a manufacturing idea only fifteen months ago the Smith Form-a-Truck has risen to the position of being one of the biggest single producers of motor driven hauling vehicles in the country and the sales demands have already called for a minimum production of 80,000 attachments within the next twelve months. The Smith Form-a-Truck attachment uses the Ford and several other small cars, including the Buick, Dodge, Chevrolet, and Maxwell, to make a one ton truck.

As a leader in adopting the double cowl body and the slanting windshield, the Stearns-Knight again leads the motor car field in the closed car type by adopting the principle of having the spare seats face backward. It was the great popularity of the chummy four passenger roadster, in which the passengers enjoyed greater ease of conversation, that lead the Stearns-Knight designers to adopt this feature of the folding spare seats to face backward, in their town car.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

Judging by the number who daily are asking for demonstration of the Truckmobile, this new truck unit for Ford chassis has a big appeal for those interested in an economical and durable one ton truck. The Truckmobile frame is constructed of 4 inch heavy rolled channel steel with heavy angles reinforcing corners, gussets, top, and bottom. All parts are hot riveted. The frame is 41½ inches wide, designed so springs are carried directly beneath it, thereby preventing a cantilever effect on load and insuring an equal distribution on axle and bearings, at the same time preventing the tremendous buckling strain to frame and springs. This extra wide frame permits using a large body, minimizing top heaviness and side swaying. The Truckmobile is on exhibition at the Chicago salesroom, 1606 Michigan avenue.

Hudson super-six owners are jubilant over the showings made by their favorite car in the Vanderbilt and Grand prize races at Santa Monica. The smooth running and speedy super sixes in the hands of Roads, Vail, and Patterson continued their season long winning streak by getting in the money in both of these motoring classics and even adding a world's record to their string. In the Vanderbilt three Hudsons started and three finished. Nineteen starters in this terrific drive dwindled to six at the finish. Roads got fourth money and Vail and Patterson were still running strong in fifth and sixth place when given the flag. In the Grand prize Patterson took third place and at the same time set up a new world's record for consistent driving. He covered the entire distance of 403.248 miles without a stop.

Six seasons of use reduces some cars to next to scrap material, but not so of the 1910 Marmon 32 belonging to Dr. F. D. Brewster of Scranton, Pa. Dr. Brewster says the "old car never failed me," and in trading for a model 41 last season said: "I have owned the 1910 Marmon for six seasons and turned it in perfect mechanical condition and 'smart' on the road as it ever was. this new one gives me anything near the service and confidence in its stability and reliability as the old one I shall be abundantly satisfied."

The Mitchell Motors company has just declared a dividend of $1.50 a share. This is a striking example of the progress of the Mitchell company. "Our business has never been in such a flourishing condition," says President Friend, "and the outlook exceeds anything that I have ever known in my long connection with the industry at this time of the year. Our October business was, the largest October business the Mitchell company has ever experienced, the increase in production and shipments being nearly 100 per cent, yet we close the month literally deluged with business from territory that in former years were entirely dormant at this time of the year."

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF OF FRENCH WAR ORPHANS

(INCORPORATED 1916)

PRINCIPAL OFFICE: EQUITABLE BUILDING
120 Broadway (Rooms 1435-6), New York City

Appeal for Orphan Children of French Soldiers who have died in defense of France

It is reported that the number of French orphans who will ultimately need aid will be in excess of 400,000, and that there are at the present time 200,000 in ACTUAL WANT. The stupendous and crushing burden of the war will not permit the French Government to pay more than 10 francs ($2) per month per orphan, and it is NECESSARY FOR PRIVATE CHARITY TO CONTRIBUTE AT LEAST 15 FRANCS ($3) PER MONTH ADDITIONAL FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF EACH CHILD.

The AMERICAN SOCIETY has pledged itself to help several thousand orphans during the six months commencing November 1, and it desires to increase the number as speedily as possible and to extend the period of assistance. It will be doubly helpful to those in need if they can be assured at the outset of this winter, which will be exceptionally hard upon France, that fixed aid from Americans can be relied upon to prevent actual suffering among orphans.

The needs of the WAR ORPHANS OF FRANCE peculiarly call for American sympathy and help, and it would be fitting if, at this period of NATIONAL THANKSGIVING, Americans contributed, each according to his means, to the now being raised by the American Society and thereby joined in extending a helping hand to France in a way most helpful to her and most likely to touch the hearts of her people, who are so heroically and self-sacrificingly facing unparalleled calamities in a spirit of lofty patriotism which has thrilled the whole world. Americans should avail themselves of this opportunity to relieve, so far as lies in their power, the orphaned and suffering children of French soldiers, and in that manner make some return for the SERVICES and SACRIFICES of the FRANCE of LAFAYETTE and ROCHAMBEAU at the time of the American Revolution WHEN AMERICA NEEDED HELP. EVERY contribution, however small, will tend to increase the number of orphans the American Society can undertake to succor, and will help discharge the debt America has long owed to the French people, and for which Washington pledged our "most unalterable gratitude."

The AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF OF FRENCH WAR ORPHANS has been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York for the purpose of

(1) Raising funds by voluntary contributions to be used for the aid and relief of needy French children whose fathers have lost their lives as the result of the present war in Europe, and

(2) Systematizing and centralizing the collection of funds in the United States for that purpose and their effective distribution in France.

Its membership is divided into (1) "Founders," who contribute $500 or more per annum; (2) "Benefactors," who contribute $250 per annum; (3) "Sustaining Members," who contribute $100 per annum, and (4) "Contributing Members," who contribute less than $100 per annum.

The American Society undertakes, by means of its membership dues and a guaranty fund, to defray ALL the EXPENSES of management, collection and distribution of contributions for FRENCH WAR ORPHANS in order that the ENTIRE AMOUNT contributed for the aid and relief of these HELPLESS CHILDREN may be applied to their needs without any deduction for expenses of any kind, here or abroad.

The AMERICAN SOCIETY solicits contributions to its WAR ORPHANS' FUND in order to be able to pledge fixed monthly aid towards the support of as large a number of FRENCH WAR ORPHANS as possible at the rate of three dollars a month for each child.

DONATIONS to the FRENCH WAR ORPHANS' FUND should be sent by checks or postoffice money orders to the order of THE AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF OF FRENCH WAR ORPHANS enclosed with a subscription, in the form of the blank at the foot of this announcement, to "THE AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF OF FRENCH WAR ORPHANS, 120 Broadway, New York City," where all communications should be addressed.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with oreign nations may she always be in the ght; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

THE WORLD WE LIVE IN.

The iron grip of the German armies is closing ith swift relentlessness upon the Roumanian pital. In Athens a French admiral gives the w. Serbia and Montenegro are memories, or at st despairing hopes. Belgium today is a German ovince, Poland a puppet state, whose reviving the sword has bestowed, as the sword may morrow take away. Turkey is a compliant vas- l of the central powers, and tiny Portugal pays wn upon the hard counter of Fate her mite of ood and treasure at the behest of her great tector.

This is and must be the bitter fate of peoples the margin of greater systems. The smaller tions are in Europe, but not of its main ornization. They are caught in the grinding of vast mechanism of which they are only passive rts. Sovereignty with them is a showy but aningless decoration, the pathetic but futile sture borrowed from a cherished past or turned ward an impossible future.

Yet these little nations are perhaps hardly less lpless victims than the great masses crushing m. All are part of a mighty process which we y call the integration of the world. Externally larger and more vigorous nations are forming ater units in the guise of alliances, ententes, or erations. No nation in Europe can remain tside of this process. France has no real indendence, nor Germany. Even England on her ated island had to give up her ideal of "splen- id isolation," and mighty Russia makes her nxious alliances with powers small beside her ulk. We in America are still formally outside of is mechanism, so far as it is political. But we re afloat on the same deep resistless current and el its power in our financial and economic life. Ve cannot stay out. It will not be long before e are definitely within.

In the southeast of Europe the process is arest now. A few years ago there were five ll states nursing the illusion of independence. ey had torn themselves from the dying grasp a power once so great as to threaten Europe. At first it seemed possible that ese vital new units might integrate so as to rm one large enough to stand alone in the rld. But they felt a power within them workg against this, the centripetal force of nationlity, and they did not combine in time to meet he forces of integration at work now in he great alliances. They were drawn one by ne into the current as pieces of metal are rawn by a magnet, Bulgaria one way, Roumania ther. Serbia crumbled. Greece is going the e way. None of these states will be left out of system when the new integration is comte.

But while this tremendous process of imperial mbination and fusion is going on, an equally sistless process of internal integration is at work. Each nation is undergoing an intensive organization, by which all its resources are eing drawn within the direct influence and control of the state. We have seen this process at work for a generation in Germany. Now we see t even in England. The railways, the mines, the hops, even agriculture are ordered for the pubic ends. It is true this is a war organization, ut it is leaving its stamp upon the character of very nation in Europe, and peace will find each rganized for an intensive national life, which will continue. Even the individualism of the ritish will not withstand this. Their institutions will never be the same.

Americans, above all, must realize this by force of intelligence. European nations with which we must combine or contend are carried into this new condition by forces they could not resist if they would. These forces are only vaguely felt with us, yet we cannot safely enter a world of concentrated power with our own forces loosely gathered.

America can neither keep herself out of the rld system nor can she afford to enter it witht a national organization as compact, as well dered and directed, as fully within the command its collective will, as the other units of the eat system. If she does she will meet in due time no better fate than Turkey or China.

The great task before the American genius today is the intensive organization of the nation's power. This is a problem of material organization, and even more a problem of moral stimulation and social integration. We are now an inefficient aggregation of fairly efficient individuals. We are passing into a world of the highest organization. We are not ready to take an effective place in it. We are wasteful in a day of Spartan economy. We are relaxed and undecided in a day of heroic discipline and determination. We are luxuous and self-indulgent, vague, sentimental, and llusioned, while other peoples are at grips with he naked realities which rule the destiny of mankind.

AFTER TWENTY-FIVE.

If there were not other ways of finding out, the reader of American fiction would scarcely know that any one in this country lives after marriage. When the heroine falls into the hero's arms the book closes like a grave with the two pasteboard covers as the tombstones. Of course, a few couples are saved out for the gripping novel of divorce and there are a few adult unmarried aunts prinkled here and there. But the tyrannical faer disappeared long ago. There is, according the novelist, no American life after marriage.

And the question arises whether the novelist after all so absurd as this sounds. Is there any American life after marriage? Isn't it, at any rate, too drab for fictional treatment? Is the American adult, with the romance subtracted, anyng but an optimistic, colorless drudge?

Father sends the family north for the summer ometimes he sends the family south for the winr. And living at the club, his digestion suffers d he is only relieved from boredom by the prese that he is a tired business man devoted to rivolous shows.

But his function is to provide enough money to keep the children going. His wife's ideal is little more than to be correct and attractive socially so that the children may have their romances.

American adults scarcely pretend to enjoy themselves. They do not develop any habitual sense pleasures. They can neither exult in a roast goose nor grow enthusiastic over a new automobile. Their acquaintances are partly proximity and partly inheritance. They are never half so sophisticated as their children, and the man who suggested that "Mrs. Warren's Profession" was not a play a girl could take her mother to is woefully accurate.

The organized, thought out fun in America is for the children. The process begins in the nursery. A glance through a toy department is enough to prove that. The field for the child and the youth is extraordinarily rich and wide even without the denatured adult things which our society offers him today.

But, except for golf and uplift (even the book stores have come to mean little more than a center for culture germs), no adult in America seems capable of reveling in anything.

GOOSE FOR TURKEY.

Dinner table conventions, concerning diet as well as manners, are a part of the traditions of a nation. Our conventions are costly as they relate to food, and just now economy and conventions are struggling against each other.

American habit demands a turkey on Thanksgiving, and that custom is as firmly fixed as anything that American tradition encourages. The bird not only furnishes noble baked meats, but it comes to the table out of pictures the American holds in warm affection, pictures of John Aldens and Priscillas, of resolute men carrying bell mouthed firearms, pictures of deep forests, snow bound villages, of hearths and great fireplaces.

On Thanksgiving the American family not only roasts a turkey but also makes it an offering to national sentiment—but in the produce markets turkey is offered the retailer at 30 to 32 cents a pound, and the retailer gets what he can for it. In the same produce markets the retailer is offered geese at 19 to 20 cents a pound.

The goose represents a German, and to a less extent an English, idea of joviality. As any fortunate lover of the flesh pots will agree, it is an extremely good bird. It has as many points in its favor as the turkey, and economy suggests that it be substituted for the turkey. It is not a difficult fowl to raise. The turkey is a risk. There is tremendous pressure upon the market for turkeys. The goose market is easy.

It is a fine thing to conserve American traditions, even traditions of eating. We have few that are solid and enduring, but a tradition which runs up meat and grocery bills and bleeds the family pocketbook needs examination for its real value.

For the sake of tradition, for the sake of the pictures which are in the mind of the American household, even economy might yield a point on Thanksgiving, but why make the turkey the essential fowl for Christmas or other memorable days?

Then, at least, the goose stands temptingly to appetite as the bird of greater traditions. It is connected with many of the cheerful festivals of Europe. It is a thing of gustatory excellence. And in American markets its price recommends it. Its savor is something to make trenchermen of dyspeptics.

TO RESCUE CHINA?

England's enthusiasm over Chicago's five million dollar loan to China is not explicable except in terms of Japanese ambition. If that is considered the riddle is easy.

Japan is closing the open door to China. It is almost closed. She has reached some sort of agreement with Russia about China and England is under deep obligation to her for the expulsion of the Germans from their naval base at Tsing Tao. They cannot or will not interfere.

Chicago's millions represent to England a hope that the door will not be closed. Chicago has inserted a toe between the closing door and the door jamb.

"America's presence," argues the London Daily News, "will be strength to China against influences of which she may have reason to be apprehensive."

That is putting it mildly. Japan is squeezing the English merchants so hard that they are crying in anguish. The Germans are out. The Russians are bought off. All that remains between China sovereign and China dependent is American investment.

The United States saved China once from partition on highly moral grounds. The Hay doctrine of the open door had primarily to do with trade, but it was easily translated by our citizens into an act of chivalry.

It will not be so easy to gain large moral support for Chicago's loan or to make the government exert itself for the safety of Chicago dollars as it was to put a moral twist into the Hay doctrine. It will be called exploitation of China and the financiers will be accused of trying to make money out of the weak and ignorant heathen. Besides there is just now a strong feeling among pacifist Americans that foreign investment is morally evil because it is predicated on the armed support of the United States.

China is just as emphatically in need of rescue now as it was when Hay saved it years ago. If America liked it could both save Chinese independence and make money out of it. But it is not a work for a timorously moralistic and trouble fearing country.

Editorial of the Day

BRITISH FOOD CARRIERS.

[From the New York Evening Mail.]

The official reports of Lloyd's Register show interesting data regarding the shipbuilding industry in Great Britain. On March 31, 1916, there were under actual construction in British yards 1,423,335 gross tons of shipping. It looks like a large amount.

But what helps Great Britain in her need for more ship room is not the tonnage building, but the tonnage launched and completed. In the first three months of this year 80,561 gross tons of shipping were launched.

The dates of launch and completion in British yards are uncertain so long as the yards are employed fully on naval construction and turning out munitions for the allies.

The total of 80,561 gross tons launched in three months does not replace the normal wastage from wreck, fire, or old age; today that wastage is greatly increased by the perils of war.

It is a strange and significant coincidence that addition to the British merchant marine in the first three months of 1916—that is, 80,000 tons—is precisely the amount of British shipping that German submarines were destroying every week in this same period.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1916: By the Brentwood Co.]

WHEN Michael Grace arrived in New York the other day from London it was announced that he had recently sold Battle abbey, which had been his home in England for so many years. This statement is one which Mr. Grace, whose brother William served two terms as Democratic mayor of New York, is anxious to correct. He has not sold Battle abbey for the good reason that he never really owned it, but has lately terminated the long lease under which he held the property, and it has reverted to its owner, Sir Augustus Webster, eighth baronet of his line and a lieutenant colonel of the Grenadier guards.

Battle abbey, in Sussex, was built by William the Conqueror, on the spot where King Harold fell and was buried, and was richly endowed by him in order that the monks should perpetually pray for the souls of these Norman knights who died fighting for him at the battle of Hastings.

It remained in the possession of the monks from the eleventh century until the reign of Henry VIII., who expelled the reverend fathers and presented the edifice and its lands to his favorite courtier, Sir Anthony Browne, Master of the Horse and Knight of the Garter.

The story goes that Sir Anthony was celebrating his house warming in the abbey's hall, when a monk suddenly appeared, no one knew whence, and pronounced a solemn malediction upon the spoliator of the church. He warned Sir Anthony that the curse would cling to his most remote posterity and foretold the special doom that was to be their temporal punishment.

"By fire and water," he cried, "your line shall come to an end and perish out of the land."

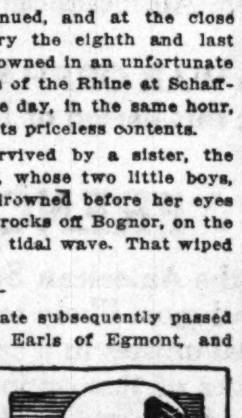
Sir Anthony also acquired Cowdray park from his half brother, William FitzWilliam, Earl of Southampton.

Sir Anthony's son was raised to the peerage as Viscount Montagu, and from that time forth the misfortunes of the Brownes of Battle abbey were so continuous that, frightened thereby, the sixth Viscount Montagu sold Battle abbey and the estate to Sir Thomas Webster, who had been created a baronet by Queen Anne, and who had amassed a fortune as a cloth merchant in London. Lord Montagu removed to Cowdray park, but his abandonment of Battle abbey did not prove effective in preserving his family from the malediction laid on his house.

The misfortunes continued, and at the close of the eighteenth century the eighth and last Viscount Montagu was drowned in an unfortunate attempt to shoot the falls of the Rhine at Schaffhausen, while on the same day, in the same hour, Cowdray castle, with all its priceless contents.

Lord Montagu was survived by a sister, the Hon. Mrs. George Poyntz, whose two little boys, her only children, were drowned before her eyes while playing among the rocks off Bognor, on the Sussex coast, by a sudden tidal wave. That wiped out the Browne family.

The Cowdray castle estate subsequently passed through purchase to the Earls of Egmont, and from them to the great contractor and oil magnate, Sir Weetman Pearson, who on being raised to the peerage selected as his title that of Lord Cowdray.

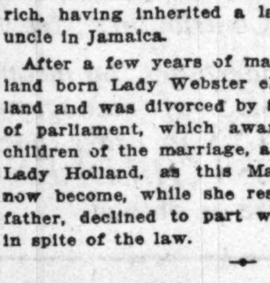


Sir Thomas Webster, the purchaser of Battle abbey, and who was also the original owner of Boodle's club in London, was succeeded by a ne'er do well son named Sir Whistler Webster, who squandered his inheritance and neglected Battle abbey to such an extent that it excited the indignation of his contemporaries.

Sir Whistler's grandnephew, Sir Godfrey Webster, did his best to repair the damage, selling the timber of the abbey grounds for half a million dollars in order to raise at least a portion of the funds needed for the restoration. He married Miss Elizabeth Vassall, a native of Massachusetts, born in the house which afterwards became the home of the poet Longfellow. She was rich, having inherited a large fortune from an uncle in Jamaica.

After a few years of marriage the New England born Lady Webster eloped with Lord Holland and was divorced by Sir Godfrey by an act of parliament, which awarded to him the two children of the marriage, a boy and a girl. But Lady Holland, as this Massachusetts girl had now become, while she restored the boy to his father, declined to part with the girl, Harriet, in spite of the law.

Lady Holland became one of the greatest social powers in London and Holland house the center of political, diplomatic, and literary life for more than half a century. Yet, in spite of her unrivaled position and the influence exercised in her behalf by all sorts of great personages, she remained barred from the court of St. James, as a divorcée, to the end of her days. Her son by Sir Godfrey Webster squandered his wealth and was obliged to sell Battle abbey to Lord Harry Vane, afterwards fourth and last Duke of Cleveland, who married the widow of Lord Dalmeny, mother of the present Lord Rosebery.



The Duchess of Cleveland, who survived the duke for many years, bequeathed Battle abbey at her death not to her son, Lord Rosebery, but to her husband's kinsman and nephew, Col. Francis Forester, who in 1901 sold it for a little over a million dollars to the present Sir Augustus Webster, lineal descendant and eighth holder of the baronetcy of the Sir Thomas Webster who had purchased it from the Browne Viscounts Montagu in 1719.

Sir Augustus was enabled to make the purchase thanks to his marriage seventeen years ago to the only daughter of the late Henry Crossley, one of the millionaire carpet manufacturers of that name of Halifax, in Yorkshire. Inasmuch as Lady Webster possesses, independently of the amount spent by her husband in the purchase of Battle abbey, an income of $200,000 a year, she has plenty of money with which to maintain Battle abbey with all its one-time splendor.

Michael Grace had secured the lease of the place from Col. Forester towards the close of the last century, that is to say, before Sir Augustus had obtained through his marriage enough money to acquire the abbey, and has had, consequently, to wait until Michael Grace's lease ran out in order to assume possession of the place.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

FARM SANITATION.

IN 1915 the Indiana state board of health made a sanitary survey of four counties in that state. The first of these counties, Blackford, is a little northeast of the center of the state. It is an agricultural county, with but few towns and none with as many as 4,000 inhabitants. Union county, bordering on Ohio, lies south of east of the center of the state. It is even more of a farming community than is Blackford. Ohio county, lying across the river from Kentucky and a few miles below Cincinnati, is also a farming community. Scott county, also in the southeastern corner of the state, the second county north of Louisville, is also a farming community.

The people in these counties are just as good as are to be found anywhere. They have been here for generations—just good, sturdy stock, reasonably thrifty, reasonably progressive.

In 1905 the population of these four counties was 39,881. Ten years later, in 1915, there had been a decrease of 4,450 in the population. More significant still was the decrease in the number of school children. The number of school children in 1905 was 10,918. In 1915 the number had decreased 1,408. The decrease in school population indicates that the drop in total population in the next ten years will be greater than that in the last.

A farmer using improved machinery can farm more land than in olden times. By using milking machines a milker can milk more cows than in olden times. But there is a limit beyond which such increase cannot go. A decrease in population of 11 per cent in ten years, with the prospect of a decrease of 15 per cent in the next ten years, means that some land now cultivated will go out of cultivation. This, in time, means less price for land, less farm produce, and higher prices for meat and bread.

The state board of health set out to find the conditions of life and living of these people. The birth rates of the counties were: Blackford, 22.9; Ohio, 15.6; Scott, 21.5; Union, 19.3, or an average of the four rates of 19.8, as compared with a birth rate for the state of 20.3. These are rather low birth rates but, except in Ohio county, the birth rate was not alarmingly low.

The death rates of the counties were: Blackford, 11; Ohio, 13.3; Scott, 12.3; Union, 13.6, or an average for the four of 12.3, as compared with 13.1 for the state. The death rate, then, was quite low, even for a farming community composed of people of about average age. As the birth rate was 19.3 and the death rate was 12.3, the decrease in population was not due to excess of deaths over births. It could only be due to excess of emigration over immigration. The people have been leaving the farms.

What was the reason? Unquestionably there were several reasons. Perhaps one of them was the lack of sanitation in the homes. At any rate, the state board would find out. They sent surveyors into these four counties to make an investigation. The investigators visited every farm house in the four counties. Each farm house and house site was scored on a score card. On this score card there were ten items. A perfect score on any point would have a value of 10. A house, therefore, which was perfect in hygiene, sanitation, and the health of its occupants would get a score of 100. It was decided to hold that any home which scored less than 75 would be held to be insanitary.

The ten points decided upon were:

1—Site.
2—Sanitary conditions.
3—House.
4—Cellar.
5—Ventilation.
6—Water supply.
7—Sewage disposal.
8—Barn, barn yard, pig pen, coops.
9—Disposal of manure.
10—Health of inhabitants.

INSTRUCTIONS.

1. Site—To score 10, the site must be really good, rather high, good natural drainage or else tile drained or ditched. At least a few trees, pleasant, attractive.

2. Sanitary condition of premises—To score 10, premises must be reasonably clean, not littered, no trash of any amount. Order. No sodden or muddy places. Cleanliness. Garbage disposed of decently.

3. House—To score 10, the house must not be dilapidated. It must be in passable repair. First floor must be at least two feet above the ground, and there must be ventilation of the ground beneath the house. Interior must be clean. There must not be smells or odors. Halls and ceilings in good condition; carpets, furniture, and beds clean. There must be a general air of cleanliness and comfort.

4. Cellar—To score 10, cellar must be dry, clean, well lighted and ventilated. No decayed vegetables, no trash, no musty or other smells.

5. Ventilation—To score 10, windows must be in condition to easily open and close. In cool and cold weather the house must be aired at least once daily and bedroom windows must be opened wide at night. If the house be not aired and the windows of the bedrooms be not opened wide at night, the score is to be 0; except, where heating is with grates and fireplaces, there may be a score of 5 if the windows and doors fit loosely.

6. Water supply—If dug well, score 0. If driven, drilled, or bored, not less than twenty feet deep, good well curb (either of wood, cement, stone, or brick), passable wash trough or drain, the whole located at least 100 feet distant from privy, the score shall be 10, unless analysis shows the water to be bad.

7. Sewage disposal—If by privy, with or without pit, when filthy, if old, dilapidated, not screened, or markedly odorous, score 0. If by septic tank or underground disposal, and if the method is working satisfactorily, score 10. If privy has a pit, is in good repair, properly screened, pit not over three-fourths full, score 10.

8. Barn, barnyard, pig pens, coops—To score 10, barn must be in reasonable repair and reasonably clean. Barnyard must be reasonably well drained, clean, and free from trash and litter. Pig pens and chicken coops must be at least fifty feet from house and not filthy or malodorous.

9. Disposal of manure—To score 10 the manure must be removed every day during spring, summer, and autumn, and spread upon the ground, or it must be kept in fly tight, covered pits or bins. Accumulations of unprotected manure is to cause a score of 0.

10. Health—To score 10, the health of the family must have been good for the preceding two years. One or more cases of typhoid, consumption, dysentery, influenza, severe rheumatism, apoplexy, paralysis, or dyspepsia is to cause a score of 0. If infectious diseases have existed within two years, each disease (not each case) is to cause two points to be taken from the score.

There is nothing highbrow about this score card. It is not technical nor scientific. The points covered are ordinary, every day items, such as any man can see and value. Any person who reads this article can score his own home.

Now let us see how the different counties came out when scored on this score card:

Blackford county—206 farmhouses scored 75 or over and, therefore, were classed as sanitary. The highest score was 99; 1,068 scored less than 75 and were, therefore, classed as insanitary. The lowest score was 10 per cent. One-seventh of the farmhouses in this county were sanitary and six-sevenths were insanitary. The average score of all the farmhouses of the county was 53.

"It is the awful privy, the polluted well, and the heaps of manure contiguous to the farmhouse which threaten with sickness and which drag down the average score."

Ohio county—Sixty-six homes scored 75 or over and were rated as sanitary. The highest score was 97; 375 scored under 75 and were rated as insanitary. The lowest score was 19. The average score of the county was 54; 14 per cent of the homes were rated as sanitary and 86 per cent as insanitary.

The average score for sewage disposal was 32 per cent and the average water supply score was 15. Evidently in this county most of the wells are dug wells and shallow. The privies are improper in construction, poorly kept, and too close to the wells and houses.

Scott county—Twenty-three homes scored 75 or over and were rated as sanitary; one was scored 100; 922 scored less than 75 and were rated as insanitary; 2.4 per cent of the homes were sanitary and 97.6 per cent insanitary. The average score of the county was 43.

The average score of the county for sewage disposal was 17; for water supply, 29; and for manure disposal, 11.

Union county—Twenty-one homes scored 75 per cent and over and were rated as sanitary. This was 2.3 per cent of the whole number surveyed. The highest score was 90; 887 scored less than 75 and were rated as insanitary; the lowest score was 5. The percentage of homes found insanitary was 97.7. The average score for the county was 52.

The average for sewage disposal for the county was 3.9. The privies of the county are poor in construction and poorly maintained. The average for manure disposal for the county was 1. The average for water supply was 16.

Certain other rates for this county are as follows: Insanity rate per 10,000, 25.5; state, 22.2; penal rate per 10,000, 15.9; state, 15.1; dependent children per 10,000, 12.7; state, 11.1; feebleminded and epileptic rate per 10,000, 6.3; state, 8.9.

These rates are somewhat higher in Union than in the other three counties.

The consumption rates per 100,000 of the counties and state were: Blackford, 128.4; Ohio, 183.2; Scott, 206; Union, 176.3; state, 157.7. In spite of the fact that the homes in these counties are located in the country, where there is plenty of clean air and sunshine, away from tall buildings, crowds, and spit polluted sidewalks, the consumption rates are higher than for the state at large or for most large cities.

The typhoid rates of the four counties and of the state were: Blackford, 15; Ohio, 28.2; Scott, 27.9; Union, 13.9; state, 27.9. In spite of the small number of people on each square mile of ground, the typhoid rates of these counties are higher than they are in the big cities. Chicago, with its typhoid rates of 5; Cincinnati, with a rate steadily under 10; Cleveland and Louisville, also with lower rates than these farming communities, are drawing the young folks away from the farms.

In summarizing this report, Dr. Hurty says that the conditions in these four counties are not worse than those in other counties in the state. He might have added than those in counties in other states. The people of these counties are just average folks and their homes are just average homes. We quote from the summary:

"If every farmer in Indiana would commence the new year with a pure water supply, with sanitary sewage disposal, with a clean barn and barnyard, and would, several times daily, flood his home with the pure air that surrounds him, then it is safe to say that disease would be enormously lessened, efficiency would be raised, the duration of life would be increased, and happiness would be promoted on the farm. It is believed further that improvement in farm sanitation would aid very materially in keeping your people on the farm."

MOISTURE FOR HOUSE.

J. C. P. writes: "What you said this morning about the man who found that they had only flowers in his kitchen because there was not enough water in the air in the other rooms is the same trouble I have. But unfortunately you stated that there were manufacturers making what the man wanted, but you did not say where these manufacturers are or where you can buy the things to get water into the air in your house. For years I had a hot water heater in house. All the glued furniture fell apart because there is not enough water in the air in the house. I know this is very unhealthy, but I could never find out where I can buy what I want, though I heard several times that there is something manufactured for the purpose. Will you please let me know where I can get what I want to get water into the air in the house?"

REPLY.

There seems to be nothing for you to do but to suffer. If there is a manufacturer making any apparatus for humidifying a house heated by hot water I have never heard of him. That it can be done Dr. Bryce and others have demonstrated. That the people want it done has been repeatedly demonstrated in this column and elsewhere. The only remedy which the people have is to avoid hot water heat and to install heating apparatus of other types.

FIRE STATION FOR NORTH EDGEWATER.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Can you inform me when a fire engine station will be established in the district known as North Edgewater. At the present time there is no protection for this large territory between Balmoral avenue on the south and Greenleaf avenue on the north but a small hook and ladder truck on Rosemont avenue, which is inadequate for this district. J. R. DENNIS.

For the last five years we have asked in our estimates for the appropriation bill that a sum of money be appropriated for a new engine company, site and building in the vicinity of Bryn Mawr and Southport avenues, which is just about the center of North Edgewater, but as yet the finance committee has done nothing with the matter. The same recommendation has been submitted in our estimates for the year 1917.

THOMAS O'CONNOR,
Fire Marshal.

SCHEDULE WILL BE INCREASED.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—How often are ash collections made? It is necessary for me to take the ashes from my furnace twice a week, and as they are now collected but once a week, I find it impossible to place all the ashes in the receptacle I am using. R. J. M.

Our ash collection schedule has been once a week during the summer months. We will make an effort to increase it to twice a week during the winter season. Complainant is using a wash tub for ashes. He should comply with the ward superintendent's notice to provide regulation ash can.

W. J. GALLIGAN,
Asst. Superintendent of Streets.

SAND WILL BE REMOVED.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—When will the White Paving company remove the sand from the corner of Howard and Rogers avenues? J. M. K.

The White Paving company has been notified to remove sand deposited at the corner of Howard and Rogers avenues.

M. J. FAHERTY,

NEW LEASE NOT NECESSARY.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—We are tenants in an apartment building, the ownership of which has changed hands since signing our lease. Is the lease given to first owner binding on us in favor of the new owner? Is it necessary for us to have a new lease in order to keep title or possession until the end of the lease? F. G. H.

1. Yes.
2. No.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SPACE BETWEEN BUILDINGS.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—When putting up a new building, does the city ordinance require the owner to allow a space of three feet six inches for a passageway? If our building is at least six inches inside of the property line, could the owner of the new building use our six inches to make up the space the ordinance calls for? W. J. B.

1. The building ordinance requires the owner of a flat building with windows on the side to allow a space of three feet.
2. No.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SUE FOR DAMAGES.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—When my goods were returned from storage several articles were missing and some badly in need of repair. I paid the movers, who assured me the goods would be delivered the next day and the broken articles mended. I have written the owner twice but he ignores me. Have I any redress? C. G. R.

You should sue for damages.

TAX ON INHERITANCE IN IOWA.

Holland, Mich., Nov. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A man dies in Iowa and in his will leaves a part of his estate to his wife. Is she required to pay an inheritance tax? If so, what is the rate? C. H. M.

No tax is required.

LET THE CLERKS KEEP OUT.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I was much interested in the statement appearing in today's issue of THE TRIBUNE, wherein it is shown to be the desire and plan of the four brotherhood leaders to endeavor to obtain the influence of the clerical and present unorganized branches of railroad labor.

It is my earnest desire to ask that each man so approached consider this matter with the most careful attention. The fact is the leaders of the four organizations have gotten themselves into a trap and are now squirming to find a way out. At the present time the clerks are not mixed up in the mess and should consider themselves well off to remain out of the whole affair. Never before have the four train operation organizations even cared to notice the clerical forces, and now that they are seeking their aid indicates there is something behind the movement that has put them in an exceedingly embarrassing position.

Under the conditions as they will probably exist, the train and engine employés will find themselves under government regulation with their pay at least on the present basis. If they succeed in fooling the clerical forces into supporting them the latter will probably find themselves under the same government control, with their wages restricted to their present basis, which is far below that of the train and engine men. The four brotherhoods have much to gain from the support of the clerical forces, but nothing to offer in return. Let the clerks and others keep out of this affair. A READER.

BIPARTISAN ELECTION BOARD.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—An act should be passed at the opening session of our state legislature creating a genuinely bipartisan board of election commissioners for Chicago and Cook county.

This board, following the New York plan, which works successfully, should consist of four members, two of whom should be selected from a list of names furnished by the central committee of the county, of the one of two major parties opposed in politics to the appointing power.

Only in this way can a real bipartisan board be selected. It is a well known fact that our present board is made up of mere figureheads, Scully and Chief Clerk Egan, both of the same party and rank partisans, being in reality the board (although not members of it). The law should be so framed as to confer real power on the election commissioners, making it impossible for the appointing power or any one else to usurp their duties and functions, as is now the case. FAIR ELECTIONS.

USELESS ELECTORAL COLLEGE.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—This is an opportune time to agitate the question of doing away by constitutional amendments with the clumsy device known as the electoral college. Surely it is a useless piece of machinery and in these days when efficiency has been exalted so highly it would seem as if useless machinery even in governmental matters might be eliminated.

While it may be right to give to the several states equal representation in the senate regardless of the population, it is manifestly unfair to give to a small state a much larger power relative to the population in the choosing of the president than the larger states have. Take the extreme illustration, that of Nevada and New York, for instance. New York has one member of the electoral college for every 225,000 of her population; Nevada has one for every 27,000. Why is a voter of so much more importance if he chance to live in Nevada than he would be if he lived in New York?

THE TRIBUNE has taken up many reforms and brought them to a successful issue. I respectfully submit that here is a reform worthy of THE TRIBUNE'S earnest advocacy. E. D. SMITH.

WORK OF YOUNG WOMEN'S HOME.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—There having been a misunderstanding in the minds of some friends because of a statement we made in a circular letter as to the amount of charity work conducted through our Young Women's Home for Respectable Working Girls, at 501 South Ashland avenue, I wish publicly to correct this statement by explaining that the majority of the girls pay their room and board regularly and that this home is for respectable girls only, who are required to give us some evidence of their respectable character before they are admitted to the home.

The statement of the charity done for the past years refers to cases who have been helped privately. For the sake of the usefulness and helpfulness of this home we would like to further emphasize that fact that this is not a home for fallen girls, but for the past twenty years, during its establishment, we have only sought to help the respectable working girls by protection and kindness, such as their circumstances require.

This home is in every respect a home for the respectable working girl; if they need a friend we befriend them; if they are sick we put them in touch with a physician, where they receive free treatment or operation, as their condition requires, and any girl needing a respectable boarding home with these influences of helpfulness will be welcome at the McKinley Girls' club, 501 South Ashland avenue.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I must compliment you upon the cartoon on the main sheet of this morning's issue. It certainly is a true expression of present labor and capital conditions and the cartoonist did justice to his idea. This letter is prompted by several complimentary remarks that came to my attention in regard to this cartoon. JOHN T. HARDING.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I wonder how many thousands of people your cartoon in today's paper hit. It fitted my case exactly. For every article the firm I work for manufactures, they get just twice as much for as they did two years ago, yet I have not had an increase in salary in four years.

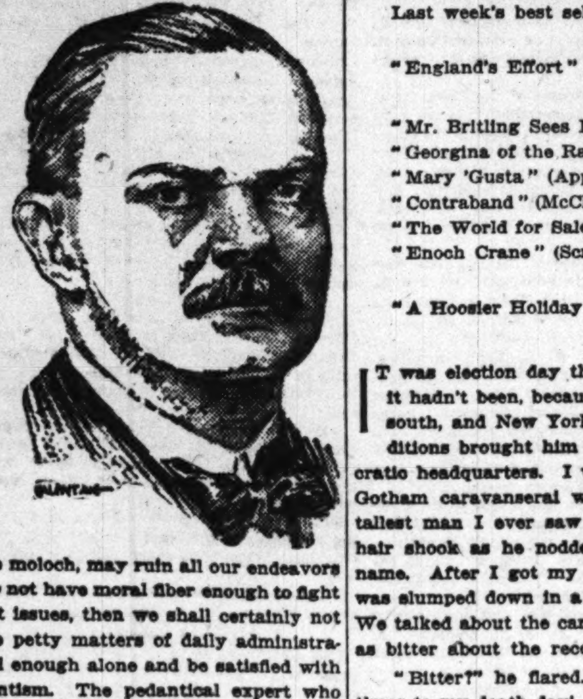
THE SINKING NATION

by Edward Goldbeck



IF a friend of yours should again and again complain that "things are not coming his way" it is probable that at last you would lose patience and thrust back, "Well, make them come your way!" And if he should go on wailing that he is "up against it" you would sooner or later begin to despise him. Although sorry for him, you would size him up as a sinking man whose will power is rapidly being undermined by a self-indulging fatalism. Is there any difference between an individual and a nation in such a case? Can one predict a great future, a continuous "excelsior," to a nation which bows to the imaginary decrees of a fictitious Fate without trying to fight them?

We are becoming fatalists in this country and our fatalism is not invigorating but weakening. There are individuals (Napoleon I.) and nations (the Turks) who were strengthened by fatalism. After having first said, "Nothing can happen to us but by the will of fate," they dropped the second part of the sentence and simply said, "Nothing can happen to us!" They felt that they had enlisted Fate on their side. The American fatalism is of a different, of a flabby sort. We say, "I am impotent against fate, so what's the use of struggling?" This new fangled theory is a desecration of the true American spirit as it was incarnated in the pioneers who conquered this country. The truculent virtus—in this word the Romans condensed their notion of all virile qualities—has gone and we seem to be out now for a period of resignation and surrender. This discouragement is most widespread and outspoken in those classes of the nation which, having larger means and greater opportunities, ought to educate, enlighten, and lead their less fortunate countrymen.

* *

LET me try to make my meaning clearer by a few examples. You may discuss the "eight hour day" with your friends. They will give you a series of arguments against it, for instance, that the economical life of the nation is much too complicated to be imprisoned in such a formula, that there are numerous industries and trades in which the eight hour day would be an impossibility or at least a terrible disadvantage, that international competition will be immense after this war and that no European nation will think of limiting and fettering itself in such a way, and so on for a considerable time. Then when you ask these substantial and influential men what they are going to do about it they will shrug their shoulders and say: "What can we do? Public opinion has already decided." Of course public opinion has done nothing of the kind, but it is convenient to imagine it has. It dispenses you from further efforts and you can pity yourself as a martyr of unsound but overpowering tendencies.

Bring up the topic of direct government by the people. Show your interlocutors that not only direct government is impossible but that even its partial realization leads to the most obnoxious dilettantism, that it is a danger for our democracy, because sooner or later a violent reaction against so nonsensical a conception is bound to set in. Prove to the men who are listening to you that it is absolutely necessary to resist the masses when they demand foolish things, that the "fathers" foresaw such psychological emergencies and built up their elaborate systems of "checks and balances" to give us stability, regularity, and a certain amount of conservatism without which the course of our ship can never be safe. They will reward you by gravely nodding assent and an occasional "By Jove, the fellow is right!" only to state at the end and as the result of the conversation that they feel unable to do anything, as it would be foolish to swim against the tide.

VERY many men object to the enfranchisement of women. Their reasons may not always be reasonable, but their feeling is against it. Instead of studying the pros and cons and deciding then what stand to take or instead of saying simply, "I do not care for logic, but I care for power, and I shall do whatever I can to keep this country a man's country as far as politics go," the men say: "Why, of course, it's a disgusting idea, but we cannot help it. If the women want the vote they will get it."

This is the attitude of the invertebrate fatalist. It would be dangerous in any country, but it is particularly so in a democracy. The democratic régime calls for the constant, passionate, and active interest of every citizen in the great issues of the time. If the average citizen despairs of improving conditions, if he believes in laissez-aller, in drift instead of mastery, then greedy, unscrupulous, violent minorities will grasp the reins and we shall go through the classical stages of terror, anarchy, and Cæsarism and which we thought we might be wise enough to avoid.

The laissez-aller (let things go!) is the inevitable consequende of this morbid fatalism, this kow-towing before the idol of public opinion. If fighting is of no use, then the best is to adapt ourselves to things instead of adapting things to ourselves. Is it worth while to be particular about "duty" and to strive after certain ends if we know that Fate, the moloch, may ruin all our endeavors in one minute? If we do not have moral fiber enough to fight for the most important issues, then we shall certainly not make a fuss about the petty matters of daily administration. We shall let well enough alone and be satisfied with an easy going dilettantism. The pedantical expert who always is an idealist in his little domain gets on our nerves with his ruthless demands for perfection.

But this amiable easiness not only prevents our administration from being as efficient as it could and should be, it demoralizes the nation, which gets accustomed never to do its best but to be satisfied with a minimum. In a period when the European nations are performing a maximum which seems incredible even while we are perceiving it, such a doctrine and such a habit may prepare a catastrophe. As we started from the individual, let us return to it and ask: "What future would you predict to a man who would never do more than the strictly necessary? Will he be a leader in his community? Will he make good as a business man? Or will he sink deeper and deeper and end as an object of charity and a burden to his neighbors?"

* *

CONSIDERATIONS like these spoil the joy of living. Cassandra was a highly unpopular old spinster. Weak fatalists who have lost the power or molding life after their ideas have only one refuge and that is optimism. Optimism, like fatalism, influences people differently according to their character. The man of iron will is an optimist because he feels so strong that he thinks nothing can resist him. The weakling is an optimist because he realizes that only a benevolent fate can save his weakness from being crushed. The early American was an optimistic conqueror, the modern American is an optimistic shirker. The national gospel is, "Everything will come out all right." If you read in a book that conditions probably will adjust themselves, it is safe to suppose that the author is an American.

Yes, everything will come out all right if we do what is in our power to make it all right. "Glück hat auf die Dauer nur der Tüchtige," Field Marshal von Moltke used to say. Good luck is only with the man who does things. Frederick the Great might have been overwhelmed by his enemies had not the empress of Russia died at the right moment. What a wonderful stroke of luck! Yes, but he kept up the fight for seven years! Every successful business man will be able to confirm this theory by his personal experience.

The optimist who tries to cover his ineptitude and inactivity with the veil of a threadbare theory will sooner or later become a victim of quietism, too. He will want quiet at any price, he will refuse to listen to unwelcome truths, he will refuse to look into the future, provided the present is just bearable. Living after this method, he will believe in unpreparedness, while the stronger man knows that "Readiness is all!" Every new situation will find him with the old spirit. He will develop the quality of being satisfied with things as they are, which is a doubtful virtue in an individual and undoubtedly a vice in a nation. He will be eager to discover "successes" and prone to imagine them if necessary. He will live the life of the animal which has not the gift of prying into the future. His civilization, his purposes, his enjoyments will bear the stamp of materialism, I might say animalism, for the reason that he has shut himself up in the present. The past is a reproach, the future a threat. Thinking involves dangerous possibilities, opens unpleasant vistas. Nothing is left but copious satisfaction of the senses.

Imagine how welcome a theory like that of pacifism must be to this type of man or nation. No more effort, no more danger! Pacifism is fosilization. It proclaims that all the injustices of past ages are sacred and that they must not be readjusted by fighting. It is the theory of the beatus possidens, the lucky owner. It is the apotheosis of immutability and it says to all those who have not been able to come into what they consider their rightful patrimony: "Too late! The judge has gone home and he will not return! No justice to be had any more. All sold out!" So this allegedly humane and thoroughly immoral doctrine tells those who have been slighted in the past that they must abandon all hope. If pacifism had become the governing world power in 1772 the United States would still be a colony of England.

* *

AND here the vicious circle closes. If we are sure that never again will our national qualities be tested by war, we may continue undisturbedly in our slipshod customs, our reckless drifting, our happy go lucky administration. It may go a little better, it may go a little worse, but nothing really serious can happen. Why should not we be naughty, as we are sure that we shall never be punished?

Dies irae . . . the punishment will come and it will be terrible if we cannot make up our minds to see Reality as it is. We are becoming weaker every day and in our insane adoration of the weak we are thinking that we approach the ideal. Is weakness virtue, is weakness right? Shall we stand up for a weak nation only because it is weak? Do we want to become weak because we hold that to be weak is to be righteous? That seems the essence of Wilsonianism.

But I hear the voice of my friend the fatalist: "Why, are you going to keep up the fight against Wilson? How foolish! Public opinion has decided for him!" It has. But from the public opinion of 1916 we may appeal to the public opinion of 1920. Let us be optimistic . . . and get busy!

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

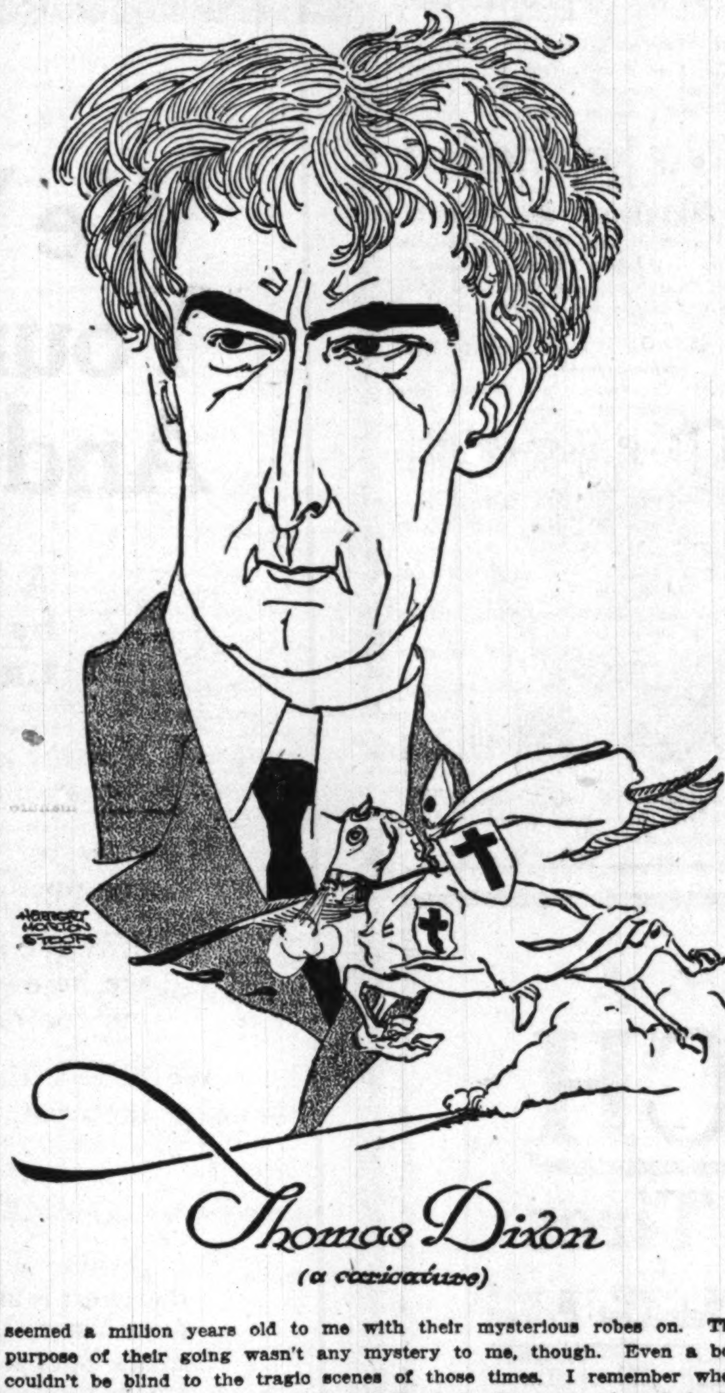
NONFICTION.

"A Hoosier Holiday" (John Lane), by Theodore Dreiser.

IT was election day that I saw Thomas Dixon. I'd not have seen him if it hadn't been, because he's living a life of ease and duck shooting in the south, and New York has no allurements for him. But his patriotic traditions brought him to town to vote and to spend election day at Democratic headquarters. I was standing around looking at the gilded halls of a Gotham caravanserai waiting for him to come down to see me when the tallest man I ever saw smiled down at me, a great shock of almost white hair shook as he nodded to me, and a kind and fatherly voice called my name. After I got my mind focused to his unexpected height and after he was slumped down in a chair I saw that he looked exactly like his pictures. We talked about the campaign for a while, then I asked him if he really was as bitter about the reconstruction days as he sounded in "The Clansman."

"Bitter?" he flared. "I should say I was! Why, I'll remember those times to my death day! I was only a kid then, but I'll never forget watching my brother and my father get into their Ku Klux Klan outfits and ride away into the night. My father was a young man then and my brother was only a youngster himself, just ten years older than I was, but they seemed a million years old to me with their mysterious robes on. The purpose of their going wasn't any mystery to me, though. Even a boy couldn't be blind to the tragic scenes of those times. I remember when Gov. Holden—William Woods Holden of North Carolina—was impeached. He was one of the reconstruction governors and a bitter enemy of the south. The clan did its work with him, though. Through their efforts a judiciary committee was formed which impeached Holden, and my own uncle was a member of that committee—Lee McAffee his name was, my mother's brother. Holden was the only governor in the United States that has ever been impeached. He was deprived of his citizenship, too. Until the day of his death, and he lived to be an old, old man, he never was allowed to vote. I can remember seeing him, a white haired man without a country. I used to think of him."



Thomas Dixon
(a caricature)

The brother who rode out with the clan is Amzi Clarence Dixon, pastor of the Metropolitan tabernaclé in London. Thomas Dixon's father, who died only a few years ago in the south, was a much beloved pastor. Lee McAffee's name stands high on the roll of fame in North Carolina. "The Clansman" was a chronicle unconsciously inspired by them.

When I read of the death of Jack London for just a moment my eyes misted with sadness at the meager number of his years on this earth. But only for a moment, for I realized that, though they numbered but forty-one, they were in actual living countless "cycles of Cathay," that every hour of his life had been crowded to overflowing with human experiences.

One of those experiences I happily shared. In the midst of his throobing life he took time to write to thank me, merely as F. B., for a review, and on the frail thread of that kindness we got to be real friends, though we never met. I had always felt that Martin Eden was one of the real books of life, and when I was given a volume of the Alaskan stories to review I rhapsodized about Martin Eden, mourned its death, and youthfully declared that a man who could do that and "The Call of the Wild" ought never to do anything else. Authors don't write notes of gratitude to kind reviewers; most of them are too busy for that thoughtfulness. Jack London wasn't. He sent me a word that was characteristic of him. "The book, as you say, certainly died. A book usually must be like hell these days if it would live three months."

Later I found that Martin Eden was the sorrow of his literary life, that its failure turned him into the ways of best seller unrighteousness, and that a kind word about it had sincerely gone to his heart.

Thus the real tale of his busy life will be told by those of his acquaintances and friends who shared his busyness. The wonderful Glen Ellyn ranch, near San Francisco, was always filled with guests, who did their work there and were happy. And this is the sort of invitation that he extended:

"If you knew how I hate letter writing—I only write several thousands of letters each year—you would appreciate how heroic this present letter is to you. Say, I can talk like the very devil. If you are ever in California try to arrange so that you can stop off and visit Mrs. London and me on the ranch. This invitation does not mean a day's call between trains. We do not tolerate these callers. Those who will not share our blankets and our board and our horses and our latch string are not exactly beneath contempt—but they are, to us, intolerable."

Can any one say of a man whose forty-one years have been so full of zest, of accomplishment, of friends as Jack London's that he did not get from life his full three score years and ten of value?

LETTERS from FRANCE

by Mary Borden-Turner

These letters, written by Mrs. Mary Borden-Turner to her mother, Mrs. William Borden, and to a friend from within seven miles of the battle line in France, give a vivid picture of the work of a former Chicago girl—a work which is one of most remarkable by-products of the great war. Alone, and with her own money, Mrs. Borden-Turner established a small flying field hospital nearly two years ago as close to the fighting lines as the French army officials would let her go. At first regarded with some distrust and doubt of her usefulness or the practicability of her undertaking, she and her hospital are now a regularly recognized part of the French army. She was commissioned by the military powers that be to construct a movable field hospital to accommodate 4,000 beds, with forty surgeons entirely under her direction. She is known as "Madame la directrice" and has complete charge of the whole enterprise, being responsible for it to the French government. The wounded come in sometimes after a big action at the rate of a thousand a day. There is no other woman on any battle line who occupies so important and commanding a position. She is a granddaughter of John Borden, a daughter of the late William Borden, a well known Chicago citizen, and a sister of John Borden, famous for his arctic fur trapping expedition and its terminating shipwreck. She is carrying out the family traditions for efficient enterprise and high souled adventure.

DEAR ——: Yesterday was a warm, sunny day, so we carried the wounded out on the grass, some on stretchers, some on long chairs, and some beds and all. It was quite charming to see them in their gay dressing gowns, straw hats, Japanese umbrellas over their heads, and all enjoying themselves in spite of their sufferings, as though they were children on a picnic. We had the gramophone going, and passed round lemonade and oranges by way of refreshments. One of our surgeons believes very much in the sun cure and has the wounds of his patients uncovered in the sun every fine day. It is really marvelous the way the men improve here. The fresh air and good food, the spirit of peace and happiness do a great deal to help toward their recovery, I am sure. And even the bedspreads with their pink roses and the pink nightshirts have something to do with it.

This week we have received a number of patients from a military hospital near by who were supposed to be dying. I'm glad to say that they are not going to die, in spite of the terrible state of their wounds. As a rule we never receive patients from other hospitals; all our men come straight from the dressing stations at the trenches; but in this case we were especially asked to take these men and see what we could do for them. They arrived in the most pitiful state, a look of fixed horror stamped on their faces, but even three days with us have brought an extraordinary change. They can smile now. Their faces look almost rosy. One man said to me when he came that his general had made him a visit and had said, "You shall go to the hospital at Rousbrugge. There you will be cared for; there you will get well." We are getting quite a reputation in the trenches. Officers ask to be sent here when they are wounded, as well as the men. This all makes us feel very happy.

We have just opened a dentistry which will serve not only the patients but all the officers and soldiers in the region. The inspecteur general asked me to equip this. It is something of an expense, but a useful addition to our organization.

In spite of my wish not to enlarge the hospital we seem continually to be growing. We have sixteen of the regulation huts instead of the original twelve, and now a new mortuary and a dentistry and more tents for orderlies and chauffeurs have been added until we are quite a village. We have planted nasturtiums in borders in front of each hut and a hedge of sunflowers round the entire compound and flower beds of pansies and forget-me-nots between the huts, so that it will all be charming a little later in the summer. It seems extraordinary that we are only seven miles from the trenches. It is so utterly peaceful. There is nothing to impress one with the horror of war except the pounding of the guns and the ambulances rolling into the yard with their terrible loads.

I do wish some of the friends who have helped us could come and see what we are doing. If they could only see the men as they come in, covered with mud and blood, writhing with pain, scarcely recognizable as human beings, and then if they could see these same men going away, not with their wounds healed, because we cannot keep them here long enough for complete recovery, but happy, courageous, with bright faces and grateful hearts—if they could only see I am sure they would realize what their help means.

Over and over again patients have said to me, "Madame, we will never forget—never—what has been done for us here."

Two boys left us yesterday for the south of France. They came in two months ago, battered to pieces, in an apparently dying condition. Both were wounded in the head, arms, and legs. Both had to have their legs amputated on arrival. One talked to me while lying on the stretcher in the operating room waiting for the things to be got ready. He was covered with bandages from head to foot. We did not dare move him off the stretcher until the last moment when he was to go on the table. While I cut away his clothes he talked to me as though we were in my drawing room. Was I married, was my husband in the trenches? And as I hacked away at his coat with my scissors I wept. "O, yes," he said, "I know the first thing they'll do will be to cut off my leg—I saw the pieces of it lying on the ground. There can't be much of it left." Poor child, he is only 20. He has lost his leg and his left hand, but he and his comrade went away yesterday laughing and happy.

The war is so terrible and our men so patient; never a cross word or the sound of grumbling or of complaint. I feel that it is wonderful to have an opportunity of relieving even a little, for a few men, the horror of it all.

Believe me, sincerely and gratefully yours,

MARY BORDEN-TURNER.

Hospital Mobile No. 1,
36 Armee Corps, S. P. 21.
July 26, 1916.

DEAREST M——: I was so glad to get your letters this morning, one from you and one from Joyce.

Last week we celebrated the anniversary of the opening of the hospital. We had a wonderful party. I sent out invitations which I wrote, just simply asking people for 4 o'clock, and the whole army accepted—I mean officers, of course. All the military world was here, with Prince Alexander of Teck to represent the English and our own French general, Gen. Hdy'Ds, and two Belgian generals, and about a hundred officers, French, Belgian, English. We moved the bed, et cetera, out of my room and served tea, coffee, sandwiches, and cakes. I received there. The medicine chief met the guests at the gate and conducted them to my hut. It was a beautiful day. The patients were all dressed in clean blue pajamas with pink or blue calico caps with tassels and buttonhole bouquets. Some had their beds out on the grass, and with their Chinese parasols it made a delightful picture.

Then at 5 o'clock we had a concert in one of the huts. A tenor of the Paris opera is in the army and he sang; also a Mme. Croize of the opera, who is staying at the Belgian hospital at La P——. We had worked like slaves to decorate the hall and it looked charming. The orderlies went out and brought in quantities of great branches which arched the roof. All the way round the hall on a shelf I had green grass sod in which I planted a frieze of bachelor buttons and daisies, and in front of the platform, as though growing out of the floor, was the same fringe or hedge of bachelor buttons, and at one corner of the platform a lovely little tree. It was really charming. The wounded were on stretchers and in arm chairs on one side, the guests on the other. Teck was delighted with the hospital. I'd met him several times, but he had not been to see me before. Every one was so happy. I can't tell you how wonderful it was to look round me and think of the past year and of all that had been done here.

It has been delightful this last month. I have very nice nurses and all about us are friends, batteries, regiments, divisional staffs, et cetera. I love it here in spite of all the horrors and all the guns which are going madly at this moment.

Lots of love to Joyce and to you, dear mother. MARY.

Ambulance Chirurgical Mobile No. 1,

DEAREST Mother: We have had an exciting twenty-four hours, beginning with the visit of the king of the Belgians, who decorated eight of our patients, and ending in the small hours of the morning with a gas attack on our front. I have just come from the deathbed of a man who died fighting for breath like a demon, of all the deaths I have seen here the most horrible, except that in this case death itself appeared suddenly as an utter stillness, an ineffable relief. It descended on him all in an instant, palpable, terrible, in the midst of his convulsions, his tossings, his shoutings. It was as though a magic hand had been laid on his terrible head, on his face that was green with starting eyes. Instantly all suffering ceased. He was gone. Sixteen men came in at 1 o'clock this morning. One died in the motor on the way, two immediately after arrival, the last one just now. They vomit yellow foam that spurts from them in explosions. The others are fairly comfortable now.

The king of the Belgians was very charming. He went all round the hospital and I presented to him all my nurses. I was very proud of them, they looked so trim and efficient and sweet as they made their curtsies. His majesty talked to each one, and seemed particularly impressed with the cleanliness of everything and the gayety. The whole compound is now ablaze with nasturtiums and sweet peas and sunflowers.

My poor Marchat, a soldier who has had both his hands blown off and a bullet in his chest and tetanus into the bargain, was decorated, too. I was so glad for him.

The sound of the guns last night was so curious that we knew something queer was happening—an incessant, rapid throbbing of cannon, as rapid as the ticking of the telegraph and as loud as thunder. I was therefore not surprised when at 12 o'clock they telephoned me from the trenches to send extra ambulances. And yet there was only a small number of men affected, those who had their gas masks badly adjusted or who had delayed putting them on. After the excitement was over and I was breakfasting with the nurses a sergeant appeared with masks for us. I hope we shall never need them, but gas has been known to poison people and kill cattle as far back as this.

And today is a beautiful day. Aeroplanes are overhead. All is peaceful again. A number of patients are lunching out of doors under their Japanese umbrellas, and the gramophone is going, as usual. Death in one hut and music in another and the guns thundering in the distance, and here we are after two years of war.

Your very loving daughter. MARY BORDEN-TURNER.

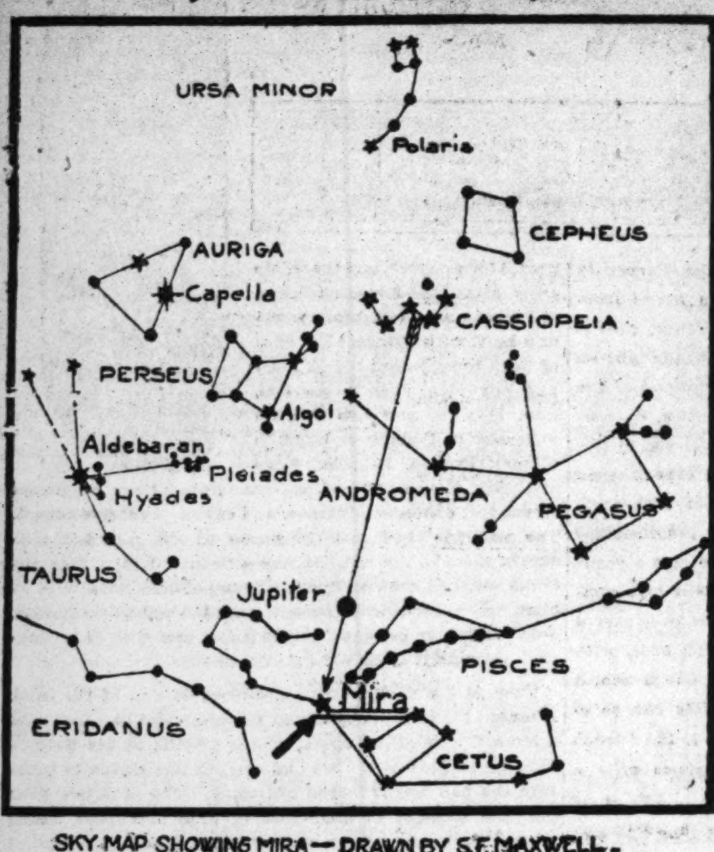
ASTRONOMY

by CLIFFORD RAYMOND



SKY MAP SHOWING MIRA—DRAWN BY S.F. MAXWELL.

MIRA THE WONDERFUL.

THE star Mira is an unusual variable. Variability in a star is indicated to the vision by the waxing and waning of its light. This may be caused by eclipse. A star may have a dark companion, the two joined together in a system and revolving about each other. The diminution of light in the bright star is caused by the intervention of the dark star.

The variability of Mira is unusual in that it is caused by a conflict of heavenly bodies, in which the lesser are gradually destroyed. Mira encounters a body of planetoids at intervals, and the encounters cause the changes in the star's appearance.

To find the star Mira, begin with the "W" of Cassiopeia in the north and Jupiter in midsky. Draw a line between the two, continuing it southward one-third its length. The line will terminate in a peculiarly starless area about as large as the bowl of the Great Dipper. In the middle and toward the north of this region is a star which shines sullenly red, occasionally changing to a gleaming white. Sometimes it is as bright as the stars of the Dipper; at other times it fades from sight completely. This is Mira.

Our sun never varies its radiance appreciably, and we know nothing of a sun which habitually lets its planets freeze solid and occasionally scorches them until the rocks melt. Mira is the ruler of a great satellite system, and to this it owes its variability. Picture two great balls of dull red fire suspended in the black expanse of the sky. Closely encircling the larger lies a broad, flat ring of meteorites.

Every year planetoids in vast clouds appear out of space, traveling about the star in a long, narrow orbit. So closely do they graze the star in passing that they pass directly through the ring. The great bursts of activity are caused by two systems crashing together.

A catastrophe is being enacted in the November skies. Already the first members of the invading swarm are going whirling by, while out in space the white procession is on its way. The meteors, as they near the star, rush and race. The forerunners hit the ring and send up sprays of fire. The incoming legions strike first by twos and threes, then by dozens, by hundreds, by thousands. A group of irage moons come hurtling on, pited and red from repeated impacts. They knock the moonlets helterskelter in sheets of flames and trails of sparks as they shoulder out paths for themselves.

The myriads pour irresistibly on; fires rise and toss; moons surge and push. While all the time a stream of the vanquished fall into the surface of the star, or else fly off in erratic orbits.

Every eleven months this battle occurs, and at each revolution the contestants grow weaker. The friction is carrying both systems to destruction. Deprived of their sustaining motion and reeling from the fierceness of the combat, the little worlds fall by the millions into the star and are lost.

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

NOVEMBER - DECEMBER

Thanksgiving

SERENITY is the note. The brown earth is at rest and roothouse and granary bulge with potatoes and cabbages and yellow grain. Chickadees pick at the suet holders. Comfortable life is sufficient and content, appetent and restful. Illusion is strong and earthly good is a vibrant and unquestioned thing. Wolfish doubt cannot pass the threshold and the fox, suspicion, is lean and skulking on the faraway hills.

Life must build its fortress, at times, of pleasant sensations. It must find in the normal of slightly decorated existence, of slightly heightened emotion, the excuse for its being. It must find in the ways of the flesh plausibility for the endurance of the flesh.

As November in brown beauty reaches its close, the festival of serene thanks comes. The flesh pots have the hour and anticipation sniffs at the oven. Productivity has ceased. Inclemency has not asserted its rule. One is in retrospect; the other in prospect. Comfortable folk sit at the west window, indifferent to excitement, content in the moment. It is a pause, a period which does not need a prospect, which is complete in itself, a whole sensation, independent of what is to follow.

Thanksgiving is the comfortable essence of a year.

CLIFFORD RAYMOND.

Tentative Program Announced for Third Annual Road Congress

FOR the third annual northwestern road congress, which will be held at the Hotel Sherman on Dec. 7 and 8, the following tentative program has been announced by Joe L. Long, editor of the Road Maker and secretary of the congress:

Thursday, Dec. 7.

MORNING SESSION.

8:30—Registration of delegates in the west room.

10—Session opened by Secretary Joe L. Long. Annual address by President John A. Hazelwood, chairman state highway commission of Wisconsin.

10:20—"Present Status of the Road Movement and Needed Legislation." A ten minute discussion by representatives of the states named below, giving a brief history of the road movement in the state, present conditions, and hope for future development. Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, Wisconsin, South Dakota.

11:30—"Coördinatein of the Highway Programs of the Various States," by Joe L. Long, editor of the Road Maker and secretary of the congress. General discussion.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

2—Vice President A. D. Gash presiding. "Earth Road Construction and Maintenance," by T. R. Agg of Iowa. Discussion led by John H. Mullen of Minnesota. Paper twenty minutes; discussion by leader, ten minutes; open discussion, fifteen minutes. This schedule will prevail on all subjects, and speakers will be governed accordingly.

2:45—"Oiled Earth Roads," by B. H. Piepmeier of Illinois. Discussion led by H. Frank Holman of Missouri. Ten minute recess.

3:40—"Culverts and Bridges," by C. E. Nagel of Minnesota. Discussion led by M. W. Torkelson of Wisconsin.

4:25—"The Construction and Maintenance of Gravel Roads," by J. T. Donaghey of Wisconsin. Discussion led by speaker to be selected by Mr. Rogers of Michigan.

5:10—Appointment of committees.

EVENING SESSION.

7:30—C. C. Jacobus, president Wisconsin Good Roads association, presiding. "What Constitutes a Comprehensive Road Program for a State," by F. A. Cannon, executive secretary Good Roads association of Wisconsin. Program will be made up of brief illustrated lectures showing state road and bridge construction in the several states at the congress. Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, and Wisconsin will participate.

Friday, Dec. 8.

MORNING SESSION.

9—Thomas H. MacDonald, presiding. "Construction and Maintenance of Macadam Roads," by H. G. Shirley, state engineer of Maryland. Discussion led by H. E. Bilger of Illinois.

9:45—"Construction and Maintenance of Concrete Roads," by A. N. Johnson, consulting highway engineer, Portland Cement association, Chicago. Discussion led by H. J. Kuelling of Milwaukee. Ten minute recess.

10:40—"Construction and Maintenance of Brick Roads," by E. B. Schmidt of Laporte Ind. Discussion led by P. C. McArdle of Illinois.

11:25—"The Handling of a State Maintenance Problem," by W. D. Uhler, chief engineer, Pennsylvania highway commission. General discussion.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

2—President John A. Hazelwood presiding. "Federal Participation in Road Work," by Logan Waller Page, director United States office of public roads. Discussion led by A. R. Hirst, state highway engineer of Wisconsin.

5—Reports of officers and committees. Election of officers. Unfinished business.

EVENING SESSION.

7:30—Commissioner S. E. Bradt of Illinois presiding. "The Great Highways of America," illustrated lecture by P. St. John Wilson, United States office of public roads. Moving pictures showing the construction of various types of roads by the various manufacturers. Final adjournment.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

There was no question about motor cars in the mind of Capt. Harry Martin, Second regiment, Massachusetts national guard, when he got ready to return from several months' service on the border. It was all settled. He had seen several hundred Dodge Brothers cars on government duty in regions where it seemed an automobile could scarcely last a week. The Dodge Brothers cars, however, had been in service since the beginning of the border campaign and were still giving remarkable satisfaction when he returned. Capt. Martin was so impressed that he determined long ago to have one, so he wired the Dodge Brothers dealer in Springfield, Mass., to have a new roadster waiting for him when the troop train arrived from the border.

President Nelson of the P. B. Nelson Motor company, distributor of Regal cars, says the selling of automobiles on credit is becoming gradually understood by the public. The percentage of cars being bought today on the credit plan is double that of even a year ago. Buying an automobile on credit does not work the hardship on the buyer that the skeptical one imagines. An automobile has ceased to be a luxury for the rich only to enjoy. It has become a necessity in every day life. The skeptical person of a year ago is becoming educated to the credit plan; therefore the increase in production of automobiles this year as compared to last is readily explained in that more and more cars are being purchased in this way.

An obvious feature of automobile development during the last year is the fact that the closed car is no longer confined to that class of vehicles especially constructed for the ultra select. Instead it has become the popular type of car for sensible persons of moderate means, who choose to be comfortable as well as fashionable. Incidentally, a new type of salesmanship has become necessary in selling this style of car, which is based no actual, practical reasons for closed car comfort and satisfaction, and not on the appeal to the social sense. One of the most distinctive notes in this new field of automobile endeavor has been sounded by Edward S. Jordan, head of the Jordan Motor Car company of Cleveland. "It has remained," he says, "for those individuals who have learned through experience the peculiar advantages of the closed car for touring and town use to impress upon the manufacturer, the dealer, and his salesmen the proper way in which the closed car should be presented to the prospective purchaser. Satisfied users have made it clear to us that the old custom in closed car advertising and salesmanship of appealing particularly to the customer's desire for certain social prestige has lost its significance from a selling standpoint."

Defeating nine other cars, including several high powered racers, a Studebaker six was a winner in a 300 kilometer free for all road race recently held at Buenos Aires. The race furnished a real test to the Studebaker, for the course was across country and over many rough roads, and not around a speedway oval. One of the important factors in the Studebaker victory, aside from the car's power and reliability, was the ability, because of perfect balance, to hold the road at high speed. This ability received a supreme trial over the rough stretches.

Another striking proof of the dominating influence of modern electrics in the closed car field was evidenced by one of the foremost specialists on motor car sales joining Whipple's Detroit electric selling organization last week. Penrose Reed is one of the best known, best liked of Chicago's successful sales specialists. His experience dates from the early days of the industry and has covered every phase of the business.

We Will Protect Your Rights And Ours

A Declaration of Intent and Determination by the Fisher Body Corporation, the World's Largest Builder of Automobile Bodies

AN effort is being made to establish design patent rights to the commonly accepted type of Convertible "All Season" automobile body.

If successful this effort would impose on the buyer of every motor car equipped with such a body, an arbitrary and, we believe, an unjust tax.

We deny the right of any organization or individual to levy such a tax, and we herewith announce our determination to resist with every means at our command any action which may be brought against us to this end.

We believe that, in this stand, we also represent the just rights of every motorist, every motor car dealer and every motor car manufacturer.

Here Are the Facts

Our position is based on our belief that this effort is unwarranted in view of the prior history of the art.

Coaches equipped with removable or collapsible side window structures were in common use long before motor cars became general.

Bodies of this type were mounted on European motor car chassis more than ten years ago.

We ourselves have for some time built bodies of this type, following in our general designs the well-known and long-established ideas of English and French body builders, as described and illustrated in technical journals and confirmed by our own engineer's personal observations abroad.

An Ideal Refined

We believe that these Fisher-built bodies, with which we supply the great motor car manufacturers of America, exemplify the highest degree of refinement yet given this well-known type.

Even the hardware is Fisher-built.

Sashes throughout are of steel.

An ingenious detail permits partial opening of the glass sashes to any degree—a highly desirable advantage as compared with bodies whose sashes must stand either tight shut or wide open.

Each pillar is equipped with a lock and swivel hinge permitting its complete removal and storage in a compartment under the seat, thus making every part of the body self-contained.

We have spared no effort to make these Fisher-built Convertible bodies absolutely noiseless. Padded compartments for panels and pillars combine with accurately fitted workmanship of the world's most experienced body builders to attain this end.

Our Future Course

We believe our pride in these bodies is justified.
We will continue to build them.
We will promptly defend ourselves against any effort to hamper us in their production or to compel us to sell them at an inflated price.

ART by Louise James Bargelt

Portrait Exhibits of Rare Quality at Art Institute.

PERHAPS it is because the human side of art always makes the strongest appeal to me that I have been the most impressed with the portraits in the present exhibit of arts and sculptural work at the institute. In vain am I told that the general consensus of opinion critictorial has passed judgment and that the finest and best of the work there is landscapic. Doubtless from a strictly art standpoint they are superior to the faces. Portraiture demands the highest grade of talent. A sea or a forest yields itself up for portrayal on canvas much more readily than the soul of a man or a woman. Therefore in an exhibition of mingled portraits and landscapes the average results shown reveal a preponderance of excellence among the landscape paintings.

Which does not exclude, however, the fact that there are some excellent studies in the human face to be seen, wedged in between a stretch of green field on the one side and a rolling hill or wave on the other. And in the sculptural exhibit these faces human peer out at one from all sorts of odd nooks and corners. One sees "inspiration," or "despair," or "illusion," or some other equally distraught creature stretching its arms upward, and then just beyond one comes abruptly on a face in which there is suggested some real feeling and some real experience.

◆

In Edmund Quinn's sculptured face of Edwin Markham there is a delicious shrewd kindliness in the eyes and humor about the nostrils and mouth, and his portrait of Allan Pollock is the face of a fascinating man.

Into her portrait of her mother Bela Lyon Pratt has put infinite sweetness and something of the pathos of a lifetime of unselfish patience.

Edith Barretto Parsons has a real and an adorable child in the laughing face of her "Duck Baby," and across the face of Dean McNulty Willard D. Paddock has written the disciplined experience of a lifetime of effort.

In all of the faces of Charles H. Niehaus there is much humanness of expression, whether or not the subject displayed is real or symbolical. His "Scraper" is a man of flesh and blood and his "Christ" is one of the finest pieces of work in the entire exhibit.

Other examples of strong portraiture in the sculptural section of the exhibit are Jeno Justko's "Mr. K.," a brooding, sinister, fighting creature; Albert Jaeger's "Lincoln" and "Uncle Joe Cannon," both of them characteristic likenesses of the men; Kathleen Beverly [illegible]' portrait of Frank Ingels, which reproduces the irresistible smile of the man; Malvina Hoffman's Bonarious Grimson; Clara Hill's remarkable likeness of S. S. McClure; John Gregory's "Workman," whose face you like immediately for its delightful frankness and its virile strength; Donato's John H. Converse; Edith Woodman Burroughs' "Portrait Bust of A. B.," a dreamy, sullen intense youth, whose eyes are filled with all sorts of possibilities for good and for evil; Boyle's "Franklin," which is an excellent historical modeling; Clyde C. Bathurst's James Grafly, and an interesting relief of the actor Mansfield.

Nor in this mention of these faces human can one forget the faces canine that stand at the entrance of the long gallery. They are wonderful, these dogs, and in their faces is expression and feeling and a tremendous capacity for devotion. They are Anna V. Hyatt's "Great Danes." And they are glorious. Hardly any other word seems really adequate.

To me the expression of these pale, sculptural faces lingers longer in the mind than the canvas faces, painted in oil, on the floor above. But too, there are people one does not forget and that one goes back to, again and still again, as one goes back to people in real life who fascinate and allure.

Julius T. Bloch has a picture of a boy with a strong, moody, tempestuous face. He calls it "J. A. B." and he has dealt with it fondly, as if the subject were some one of whom he was fond. Leroy Barnett's "Study of an Old Woman" shows a creature whose life is all behind her and yet who still looks out clearly, well poised, through blue, unfilmed eyes, on a world she is even yet unwilling to leave.

◆

PHOTOGRAPHED BY FREDERICK O. BEMM.

One of the most expressive portrait pictures in the whole exhibit is one of Louis Kronberg's which he calls a "Ballet Girl in Yellow." It is the back of the woman and yet in the back he has put a tremendous amount of character. Besides these there are some fine faces of men, strong men of action. Cecil Clark Davis' "George F. Porter" is excellent; so is Beneker's "Noon Hour" and Charles Lesaar's "Portrait."

And of course there are some lovely women. The faces of beautiful women sometimes incline more to attraction through their decorative value than through their merits as portraits. But they are lovely nevertheless. Adelaide Cole Chase's "Mrs. Swan," Gari Melchers' "Nelly Kabel," Eda Sterchi's "Mrs. Nicholson" and Irving Wiles' "Miss Gladys Wiles" are all exquisite portrayals of lovely femininity.

The Chicago Society of Etchers had an interesting exhibit of its work in the clubroom of the Art institute last Friday evening. A copy of the etching by Ernest Roth was shown. It is a scene in New York, and is considered one of the best examples of real etching in the country.

Some interesting exhibits are promised at the institute for the month of December. There will be an exhibition of thirty pictures by Redfield. Wilson Irvine will show a collection of Connecticut paintings which he has done in the tiny town of Hamburg, Conn., where he has a studio. There will also be a memorial exhibition of John W. Alexander which was started in Detroit and which is going to travel about the country. California will have her share of honor in the exhibition of California artists which has been collected by J. Nelson Larvik, director of the California Art association. There will be, besides drawings and paintings by Maurice Sterne, an exhibition of French cartoons by Abram Poole.

◆

Sundays grow increasingly popular at the Art institute these days. Last Sunday there were some 18,000 men, women, and children who came to see its various exhibitions and to attend the various concerts in Fullerton hall. There was hardly a gallery, in the permanent and in the temporary exhibits, which was not crowded during the greater part of the day. Large numbers of people at times stood on the steps outside of the institute waiting their turn to come in. Today's program will not differ from last Sunday, except in the musical numbers given in Fullerton hall. The exhibits remain the same.

◆

The generous numbers of visitors these days to the Arts club of Chicago, whose galleries are in the Thurber building, shows that the fee of 25 cents which is charged for admittance is no deterrent to public appreciation. I have spoken before of the two excellent exhibits there, one of them the paintings of John Singer Sargent and the other of Henry Golden Dearth. Sargent has eleven works; among them being his "Joseph Jefferson" and the portrait of Mrs. C. B. Alexander. Mr. Dearth's fifteen pictures include some of his most bizarre and interesting modern paintings and also a marine.

News and Gossip of the Auto Trade

A new tributary to the Lincoln highway has been opened in the Arrowhead trail in Utah, which has now been completely reclaimed. The first tour along the new route was made a few days ago from San Bernardino, Cal., to Salt Lake City by the engineer in charge of construction, Charles A. Bigelow, in a Chevrolet touring car. The route was declared perfect for pleasure car travel at all points.

The Winton 33 at $2,485 and the 48 at $3,500 will be continued in 1917 without change. "We reserve the right," says General Manager Churchill, "to increase the price of either or both models without notice, and we may be forced to announce an increase at any hour. But that is the only change we contemplate."

◆

The rapidly increasing number of automobile thefts is creating a big market for dependable locks which may be built into the cars at the factory or readily installed on those already in use. Among the most recent inventions along this line is one which is built into the gear shifting lever in such a way that by removing the Yale key a plug is subjected into the gears contained within the transmission case, making it impossible to propel the car under its own power even with the engine left running.

It is called the Johnson automobile lock. Offices of the company are at 2101 South Michigan avenue. Installation can be made in a few minutes by removing the old shift lever and substituting in its place the new lever containing the locking device. Models for one or two cars have already been placed on the market, and the manufacturers claim that additional types for other cars will be brought out by the first of the year.

◆

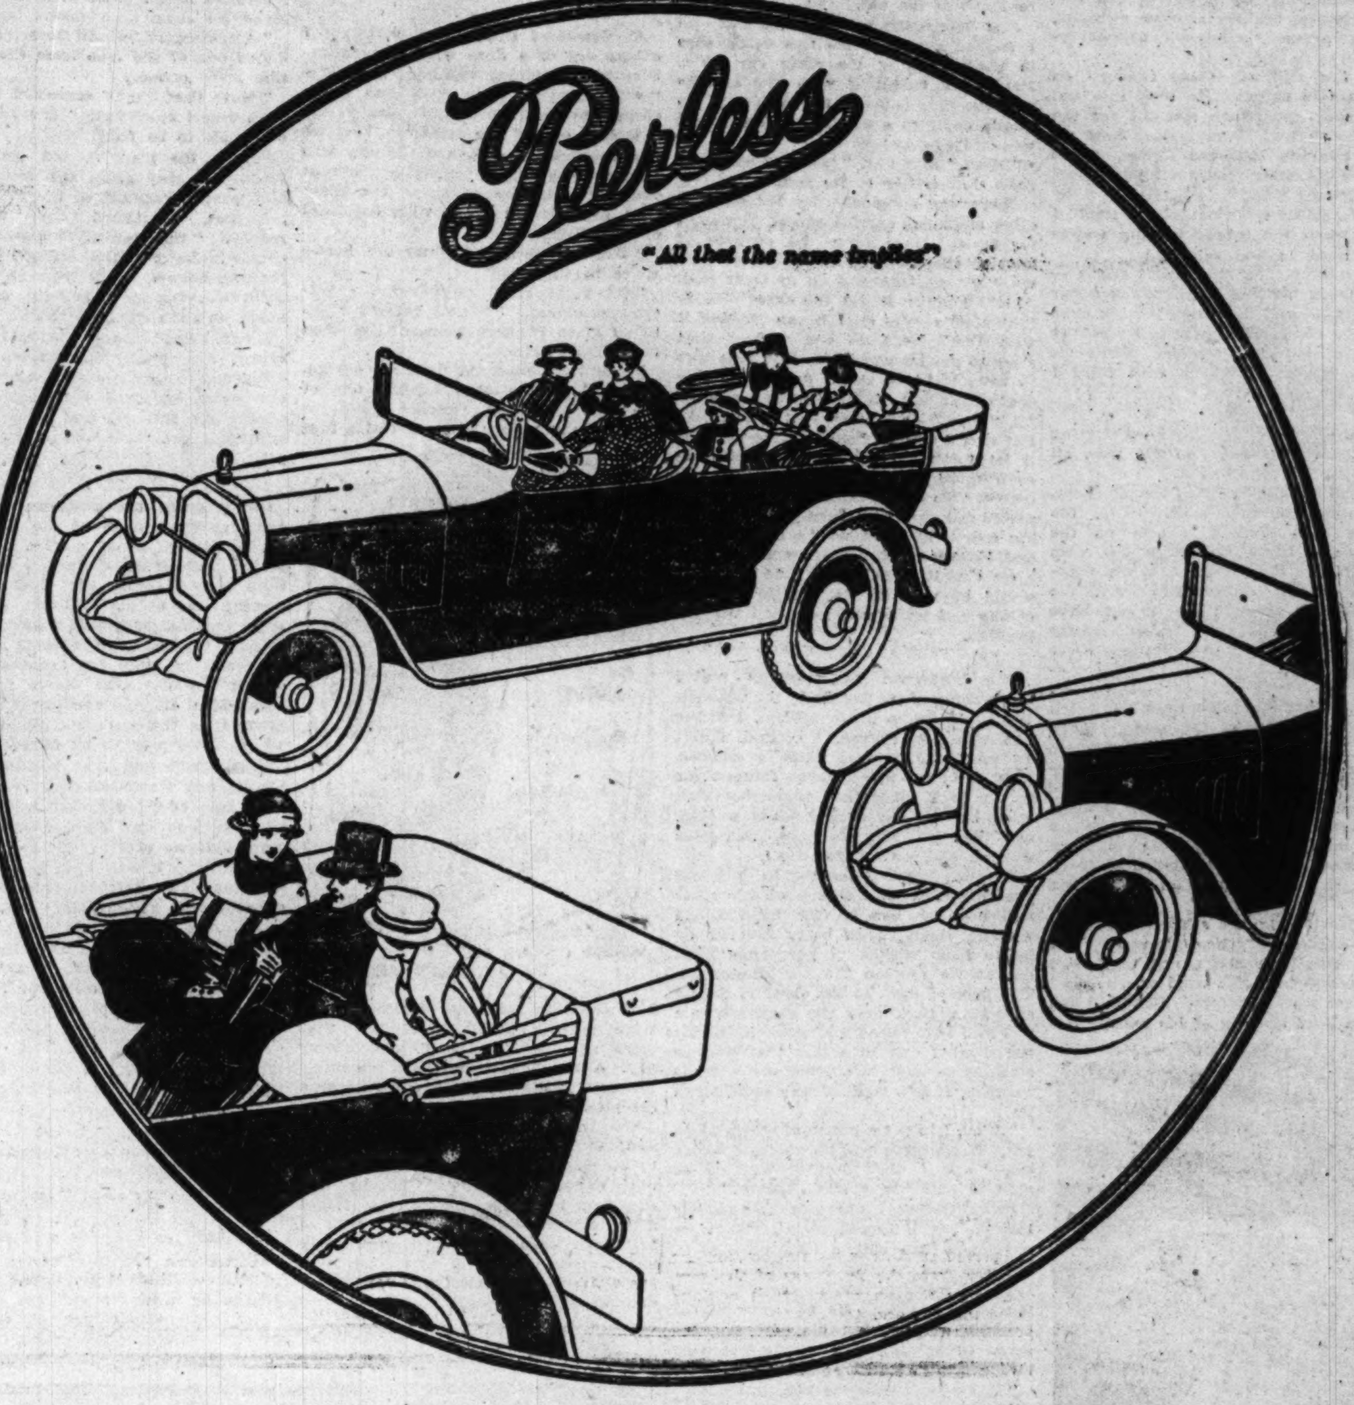
According to a bulletin on automobile trade conditions issued by the Haynes Automobile company, American built pleasure cars are finding owners daily in practically every foreign country except the ones in which the governments are commandeering vehicles of all sorts and refusing to allow pleasure car purchases on account of fuel shortage as long as war conditions continue. The export market is widely scattered and offers its best opportunities in countries where highways are of long standing. The small northern European nations and the Latin-American republics have been consistent buyers of both open and closed cars. Russia, in the face of its participation in the war, offers a market for American built pleasure cars that is no less promising than the opportunity for commercial vehicles.

◆

The Chevrolet triumphed in Yucatan this month when it won first prize in the time contests held at Merida, thirty-one models of various American and European makes participating. The distance covered in the "Liga de Chauffeurs" races is not specified in the Latin-American newspaper clipping received by W. C. Sills, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company. The fact is mentioned that the average time for the other cars was 2:30. The Chevrolet negotiated the distance in 2:20. The Chevrolet car was entered in the meet by Gonzalo Zavala, a local dealer, and driven by Isidro Vasquez.

◆

American cars are fast securing a foothold in Australia since the Australians have found that they are good and dependable and not like some of the early cars that we foisted on that market. And this hold will never be broken, according to advices received by W. G. Tennant, president of the Tennant-Oakland company, 2447 Michigan avenue. The Oakland is one of the cars that has taken exceptionally well in Australia, and Roy W. Saunders of Sydney has had a most satisfactory trade, and the Oakland owners have been pleased beyond their expectations.



Peerless
"All that the name implies"

A "Sporting" Range of Power Without Extravagance

A few cars of the utmost class and distinction—like the Peerless—have a great range of power.

These are the cars that are capable of great speed and rough work.

But the Peerless Eighty Horsepower Eight alone, among the cars of real class, has two separate and distinct power ranges—

A "loafing" range for all ordinary driving and—

In its "loafing" range it uses about half the fuel that you would naturally expect a car of its size and power to consume.

But you have only to open the throttle wider to call upon its "sporting" range and utterly change the whole character of the car.

Now you have at your command speed, endurance, "class," which only the very exceptional car can show.

But the Peerless eight uses fuel on a par with cars of this class only in its "sporting" range of power.

It gives you absolutely everything in motor car performance—but without the extravagance which you must tolerate in such other cars as are capable of giving as much.

Exceedingly few cars can give you as much—none more.

In every sense of the word it is a gentleman's car ready to answer his social requirements with grace and distinction but equally ready to respond fully to his sporting requirements and without the extravagance which such a range of performance otherwise involves.

Let us show you this remarkable car.

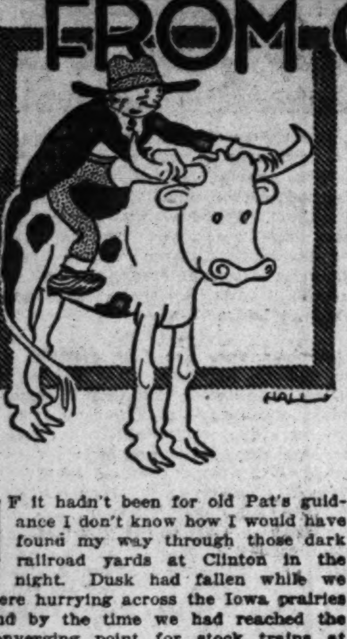
FROM OUT OF THE WEST

by Oney Fred Sweet



If it hadn't been for old Pat's guidance I don't know how I would have found my way through those dark railroad yards at Clinton in the night. Dusk had fallen while we were hurrying across the Iowa prairies and by the time we had reached the converging point for stock trains at the Mississippi the switching engines were crunching about among red and green lights, brakemen were swinging lanterns around their heads, and everything was bewildering.

But Pat had gone into Chicago on stock trains before. He took the lead in heading our bunch straight for the Cattlemen's inn. I remember how we came blinking into the lights of the place, deliberately unbuttoning our coats and glancing about.

"Chicago ain't far now, is it, Pat?" I asked when the indoor looking waiter had passed beyond earshot.

The veteran stockman didn't answer—just rubbed his chapped hands together a few times and then took the big cane from the crook of his arm and rested it up against the lunch counter. The place was beginning to fill up with folks I had never seen before.

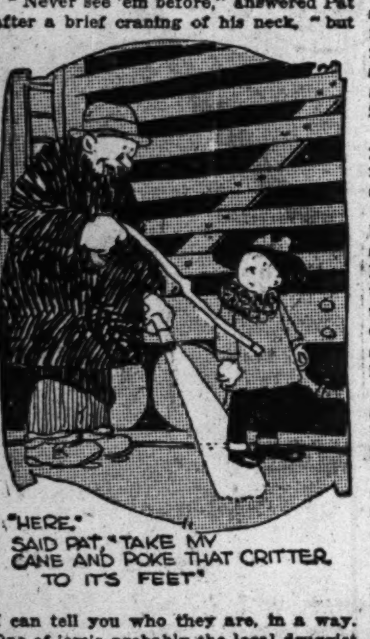
◆

"And these stock trains keep pouring into Chicago from out of the west all night long?" I says to Pat.

"All night long," echoed the old timer, answering me this time. "See, the Northwestern's schedule over on the blackboard there estimates 500 cars through here tonight alone, to say nothing of all the other roads. And the stockmen all come in here to eat—have for years. Stopping the trains here for inspection gives us the chance. After we leave here, it's direct to the stockyards. I've seen some of these fellows before. They ain't all Iowa fat stock men. Some of 'em are taking range cattle through. There's the Stinson brothers, from the Yumatilla river country up in Oregon; the fellow with the black hat and the gray hair is from the desert country of Arizona, the fat faced man with the red face is from the Nebraska alkali country, and those two dark looking boys are sheepmen from around Winnipeg."

"But these two the other side of me," I whispered. "They haven't any wrinkles in their necks, and they ain't bleary eyed from the wind or nothing."

"Never see 'em before," answered Pat after a brief craning of his neck, "but



"HERE," SAID PAT, "TAKE MY CANE AND POKE THAT CRITTER TO ITS FEET"

I can tell you who they are, in a way. One of 'em's probably the local druggist from some small town in northern Iowa and the other maybe a barber. Every stock train that goes into Chicago carries some like that. You see each carload of stock is entitled to a caretaker."

"I see," I says; "they help tend to the stock."

"They do not," says Pat. "That's merely the way they make trips to Chicago. There's many a man broke into the Chicago business world from out of the middle west who would never have got there if he hadn't come in at the end of a stock train on one of these here caretaker's contracts."

◆

There was something about Pat that distinguished him wholly from the barber and druggist and the railroad men who swung in and out of the door at intervals. Regardless of his true ancestry, forty years out in the sweeps of Iowa had put something of the Indian's moodiness into him. He was synonymous to great stretches of fodder in the shock, big red barns, and tall wind mills, and willow wind breaks, and mail order house catalogues.

Back across the darkened yards Pat piloted us again, and we followed along, the twenty of us, not unlike an immigrant bunch in a strange land, carrying canes and grips and lunches packed in shoe boxes. We found it pitch dark in our caboose, except for a red lantern that sat by the round hot stove at the rear end of the car.

Just before the train started Pat and I walked ahead to the two cattle cars in the middle of the sixty car train. Pat had a flashlight with him and he shot the rays between the slats until we finally came to a white faced steer that was on its haunches.

"Here," said Pat, "take my cane and poke that critter to its feet."

There was a reason why Pat and the other stockmen carried canes. It wasn't for style. It was for the purpose of keeping the cattle on their feet, so they wouldn't get trampled on by their pals.

I shall never forget the expression in that steer's eyes as I began jabbing it with the cane. No one wanted that steer to get trampled on. The idea was to save it for a much more profitable death next day. It gave forth a mournful "moo" as it rose to its feet. As Pat and I started back for the caboose it let forth another "m'oo" that was even more melancholy than the one before. No doubt that steer had had a pretty fair time of it during the summer, but now it had become "a fatted calf" and before another shivery nightfall I knew that it would "moo" no more. It would be well on its way into round steaks and shoes and glue and varnish brushes.

The brakeman had already pulled down some of the berths in the caboose. We could retire if we wished, but the few who had retired, I noticed, didn't so much as remove their overshoes. Most of us sat up—shadowy forms there in the dark place that made me think must be like the dark hold of a ship, and then suddenly the long train gave a lurch and started to move.

By thus keeping the car in darkness the brakeman could slide a window aside and keep an eye on the train ahead without their vision being blurred by lights from within. I poked my head out as we crossed the old Mississippi. The flare of light in the cloud of smoke streaming back over the engine was a full half mile ahead and we were hitting for the big city in a line that was as straight as modern engineering and the securing of new right of way could make it.

"Well, I've got a bunch of steers home yet," commented a shadowy form beside me, "and I ain't decided whether to ship or feed 'em a while longer."

From the seat ahead a college boy looking youth turned about. He wore a checked cap with a long peak to it. He was the modern Iowa farmer boy type. I recalled having seen him at the lunch counter. He was certainly of German descent, but his old man, instead of fighting in the trenches, was lord over a $250 an acre 300 acre farm.

"It wouldn't take me long to decide," said the youth. "I'd ship now. What kind of a corn crop did you have down your way?"

"Pretty rainy," answered the shadowy form beside me, in a high voice, acquired from making itself carry long distances and against high winds. "Hello! What we stoppin' up for?"

The sudden readjusting of the sixty cars gave our caboose such a lurch that I found myself almost pitched onto the floor. It was the conductor coming down the aisle who gave us the explanation. Twenty-six of the cars of sheep were to be "set out" at La Fox to be fed and watered, in order to comply with the law providing against the confinement of live stock to exceed a certain number of consecutive hours. The rest of the stock had until 5:40 in the morning to reach its destination and still be within the law; some of it had until 10 o'clock. There was a reason why we were hitting it across the Illinois prairies at swift speed.

◆

In the double seat back of us a conversation was going on that had nothing whatever to do with markets or "rough feed" or the big live stock show that was soon to be held, and for which many of the occupants of the caboose were going to "stay over."

"I wonder if those lady barbers have still got that shop there in the basement on Halsted street," one of the stockmen was saying.

"I guess so," answered another. "Leastways they were there when I was in two years ago."

"Well, if they're there we'll have to go down and get shaved in the morning. Ed, over here, thinks there ain't no such thing as lady barbers. You come along with us, Ed; we'll show you. Course there hain't much to it. It's more the idea and novelty than anything else. We'll have to take you down there, Ed."

◆

At Crawford avenue and midnight I awoke out of a doze with the realization that something was happening. The "wide awake" train crew had taken charge to pilot us on into the yards. I looked out of the window. Yes, we had reached the city, and the city was asleep. One could imagine almost everything in the darkness out there that was pierced about with occasional electric lights.

"Pat," I whispered, "we are here—we're in Chicago!"

"Sit right still," answered the veteran stockman. "We've got six miles to go after Western avenue. I've been to Chicago before."

From then on I did no more dozing. My face was pressed against one of the car windows. Outside could be heard the noise of the stock trains that had come in on other railroads. We were passing great warehouses that were silhouetted against the starry sky. A street car, the light gleaming from its windowed sides, could be seen creeping across a bridge.

The train came to a complete stop and those of us who were awake went to the back end of the car and looked out. Vague, shadowy Chicago lay stretched beyond and about us. Night after night it was like this—hundreds of just such train loads of western stock sliding into the world's greatest market while the city itself was resting for another strenuous day.

◆

"Think of what a lot of people there are here," commented the man from the Nebraska alkali country, after we had stood for some time gazing in silence.

"THE FELLOW WITH THE BLACK HAT AND GREY HAIR IS FROM THE DESERT COUNTRY OF ARIZONA"

"A million of 'em all here together," added one of the men from the Yumatilla river country.

"More than that," corrected the Arizona desert stockman. "It's sure a lot of people to be fed."

Finally the train started on again, feeling its way along the tracks. By half past 2 Pat, out of his former experiences, exclaimed that we had reached "the yards." Eventually we could make out the different great packing houses, lights from portions of them showing how activity was still going on through the night.

Slower and slower the train crept along, and finally its wheels ceased crunching altogether. We arose from our seats, buttoned our coats tightly about our throats, and stepped out among a great sea of platforms and pens.

Going down the platform until we came to the middle of the train, Pat busied himself about until a sort of a bridge with fence along the sides had been placed across the platform connecting one of his carloads of steers with the sea of pens. Reluctantly, it seemed to me, as if sensing the fate that was in store for them sometime during the day, the steers felt their way out of the car and down the platform into the darkened spaces from which there was to be no returning.

When Pat's last steer had gone feeling its way down the platform and the outer gate of the pens had been clicked against them Pat grasped me by the arm, and we started out toward Halsted street. It was half past 3 in the morning now. Our companions of the caboose had gone their ways. By 8 o'clock the stock of the country would mostly have arrived, and the yards woud be an active place. But they were dark and still now save for the noise of the trains. Just before reaching Halsted street we passed under a viaduct, along which could be heard the swift trample of hoofs, and out of the swift trample there came one long melancholy "moo."

"Pat," I says, "I bet that's the white faced steer that I poked to its feet with your cane."

"Mebbe," says Pat. "He was worth $90."

We had reached the stockyards entrance arch.

"I think I'll leave you here," I says.

"Not by a long shot," Pat declared. "Not until I put you on the right street car and tell the conductor about giving you a transfer. You don't seem to realize what it means for a young fellow who's never been here before to go galavanting around alone."

So old Pat helped me on the car, while he gave instructions to the conductor. The conductor was pale faced, sleepy, and tired, as were the other occupants of the car, who had been out all night, too.

"Be careful," says Pat, the last minute, and it was the final glimpse I had of him and his heavy coat that had caught and kept the breath of the prairies within its fur. "You're in Chicago now, and Chicago—well, be careful now, won't ya?"

Westcott SIX

Open Bodies $1590 and $1690
Cabriolet $1890
Tour Sedans $2090 and $2190

The only Car in its Class

MOST AUTOMOBILES classify themselves according to price and weight. The very heavy cars are frequently the most expensive, both to buy and to own.

The Westcott Six embodies all the essentials of the heavy, high-priced cars, yet it possesses every advantage of light-weight construction. No car is more durable, none is safer. Few equal it in economy of operation.

With a quality ideal constantly before them, the builders of the Westcott Six have not sacrificed one detail or lowered one standard to keep pace with the frenzied speed of colossal production. This is why three-fourths of all Westcotts are bought by experienced car owners.

HUGHES

Engine and Carburetor Heater

Attach it to your garage electric light socket and place it under the hood of your car—on the engine. Keeps the engine, carburetor and radiator warm all night—at a cost of less than one cent an hour.

Saves the delay and trouble caused by a cold carburetor—saves the strain on the starting batteries—saves the wear on the bearings caused by the irregular flow of cold oil—saves the bothersome application of hot cloths to the carburetor and the manifold—and saves the expense of heating the garage. Absolutely safe—tested and approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

For sale by your auto accessory, electrical or hardware dealer, or send $4.00 check or money order to the

THANKSGIVING DINNER SONG WITH AN EYE FOR THE SOARING PRICES OF FOOD.

I'll have microscopic turkey,
  And a Lilliputian pie,
Served with evanescent taters
  That will flee the naked eye;
Imperceptible my olives,
  Inappreciable my ices,
And they'll carve my pigmy pudding
  In emaciated slices.

I'll have legendary dressings
  On imaginary dishes;
Chimerical my oranges,
  Intangible my fishes,
The cakes all purely abstract
  And nebulous the nuts
With kernels of "howevers"
  And "perhapses," "ifs," and "buts."

Amorphous ducks and pickles
  And phantastic sweet potatoes,
Hyphothetical confections,
  Suppositional tomatoes;
But I'll enjoy my dinner,
  Though it's largely postulation,
For, Lord be praised! he's given me
  A good imagination.

Worms Are Foes Your Dog Can't Fight Off

Use Vermilax Worm Remedy to aid your dog in his fight for health.

Worms daily sap hundreds of dogs' systems of that vitality which makes them beautiful, companionable and active. Attacked by worms, the animal is peevish, the coat is dulled and becomes "harsh" to the hand. The prevalence of worms is the real cause of much fatal sickness in dogs.

Experienced kennel men administer Vermilax Worm Remedy to their charges at regular short intervals because, as many of them frankly admit, they could not otherwise be sure of ending an attack of worms in time. Believing in "safety first," these veterans regularly administer the "ounce of prevention."

This and other Vermilax Supreme Dog Remedies are sold by Buck & Rayner's six stores; Public Drug Co., and other druggists. Also for sale at Von Lengerke & Antoine's, Kaempfer's Bird Store and Atlantic & Pacific Bird Store. Wholesale Distributors, Fuller-Morrisson Company.

Vaudeville Wit

McVICKER'S.

Forrester and Lloyd:

"Well we're back home again."

"Yes; and we saw some fine sights."

"You said it. Wasn't the Delaware river beautiful?"

"It sure was."

"Right where we were standing George Washington crossed it in a rowboat."

"Yes, I know he did; but I don't see why he went to all that trouble of rowing across the river when he could have saved himself a lot of work."

"I don't understand. What do you mean?"

"Well, why didn't George wait until the river froze and then skate across?"

"By the way you talk it is easily seen that you don't come from the social set."

"Don't say that. My relatives have been wonders."

"You don't say?"

"Yes; and my grandfather figured in one of Thackeray's novels."

"How is that?"

"Do you remember that passage where it says, "Walter, rack punch?"

"I believe I do remember that passage."

"Well, my grandfather was that waiter."

PALACE.

The Hennings:

"See that wagon over there?"

"Certainly. Why doesn't it move?"

"The wheels are tired."

McVICKER'S.

Anthony and Mack:

"I'm going to help a rich bricklayer get up into society. He just got a few hundred thousand left to him. I've been waiting half an hour for him and he hasn't showed up yet. Probably he got acquainted with a real estate lawyer and invested his money in bum property.

(Mack enters.) (Anthony continues):

"Where have you been so long?"

"Sure, Oi met an old friend."

"Yes, and I suppose you have been patronizing every saloon on the avenue?"

"No, not every; only the ones me old man used to own."

"So your father used to own saloons?"

"Sure."

"And tell me, how many did he own on the avenue?"

"Well, Oi'll tell yer, I always thought he owned five until Oi just met me friend. Now Oi know he owned seventy-five."

"By the way, I haven't learned your name yet."

"Me name?"

"Yes, and soon as we get acquainted I'll teach you how to get up in society."

"Foist teach me how ter get up in the mornin'."

"Well, are you going to tell me your name?"

"Sure, it's Irving Mack."

"Irving Mack? Well, then, Irving Mack, what was your father's name?"

"Irving."

"His last name."

"Sure, its the same as mine."

The Foreman & Clark Business is Built on a Solid Foundation

Truth and Honesty are at the bottom of it. Square dealing holds it together. Absolute Reliability is clearly visible at every point. We've got a great, big, powerful, magnificent business, because it's built on public confidence we've earned, by proving ourselves worthy of it.

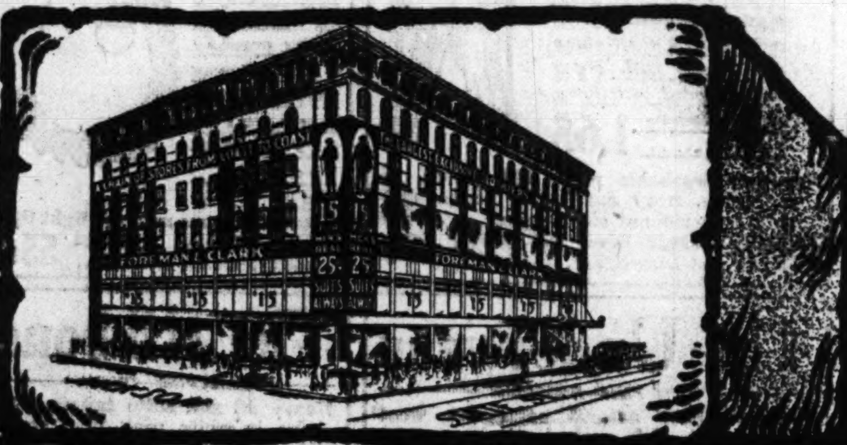
Success Is Ours Because We've Never Broken Faith with the Public

We're just plain people, and don't know how to do business in any other than a plain, outspoken way. Our way of doing things shows that. We have no fancy fixtures or elaborate displays, no costly show, no waste of money anywhere. We have no high street level rents to pay. We don't waste money. We believe in saving it, and saving it for you.

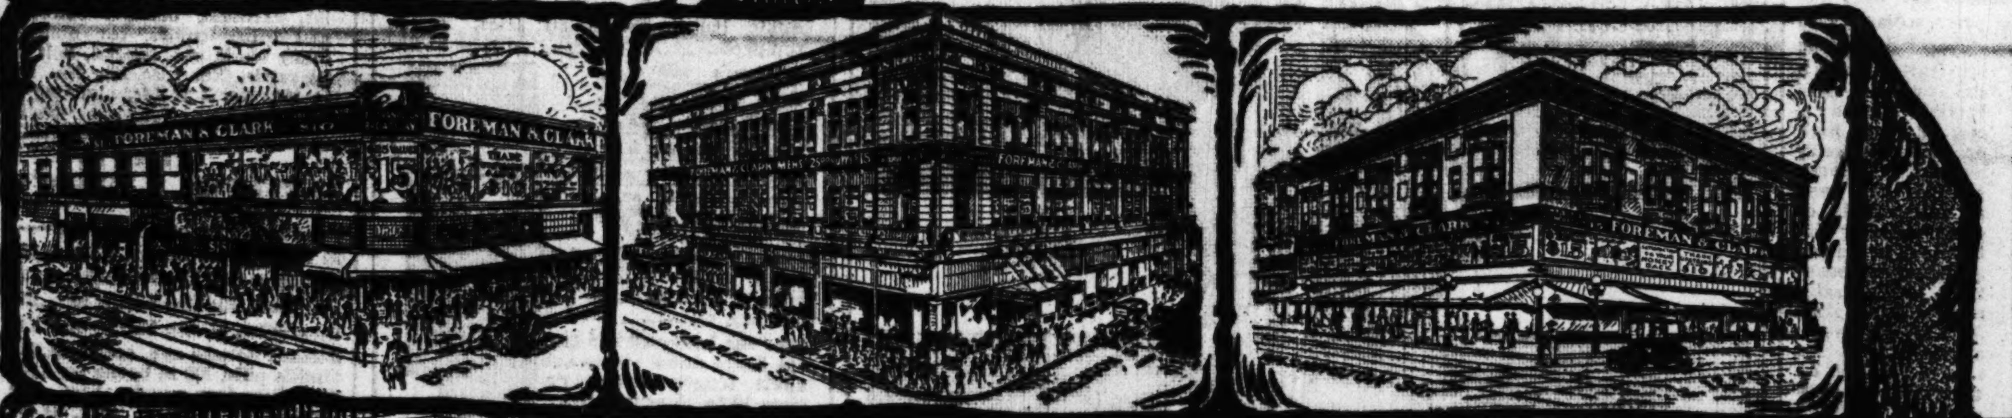
Our advertising is plain, honest, truthful, outspoken. It has always told, in no uncertain words, just why and how we save you money—just why and how it is possible for us to say to you truthfully, "Trade Upstairs and Save $10.00"—just how and why it is not only possible, but easily practical, for us to sell you

Men's Real $25.00 Suits and Overcoats Upstairs Always at $15

On these principles we have built up a business as solid as a mass of rocks. Each giving additional power to its neighbor, each building up and enlarging the distributing and selling power of our business, and all having as a foundation our own Eastern manufacturing plant, rightfully proud of its unequaled facilities, its careful management, its money-saving system, its entire efforts devoted to the interests of our customers, and its determination to turn out absolutely competition-proof clothing for men and young men, such as can and does easily guarantee a reliable saving to our customers.



$15



We are never satisfied until you are thoroughly pleased. A member of our firm is continually present in the store to see that your every wish and want is carefully looked after. We have expert tailors in charge of our alteration department, and so can and do guarantee perfect fitting. Remember, we guarantee all wool and fast dye. We guarantee long wearing character and lasting, shape retaining quality.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

BAUER PIANO, $125.

A very fine instrument of good tone. Solid engraved panels of attractive design, with round fluted trusses. A splendid opportunity to secure a good piano at a low price.

CHASE PIANO, $150.

Dark mahogany case, modern design, with regulation full length swinging frame and solid panel; two piece fallboard; full rich tone. A very good investment.

SOHMER PIANO, $175.

DECKER BROS. PIANO, $175.

Rosewood case of modern design, with full length solid panel top frame, plain round pillar trusses. Very good condition; an exceptionally good instrument of this old reliable make.

HAZLETON BROS.' PIANO, $200.

In a beautifully figured American Burl walnut case, with solid panels; in fine condition. Unusual opportunity to secure a piano of recognized standing at a low price.

WASHBURN PIANO, $215.

Dark mahogany case of a design appearing in one of the latest catalogs; Colonial style; possesses unusually good tone quality; a most valuable instrument; our own make. Only slightly used and in appearance practically like new.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANO, $245.

Beautifully figured dark American burl walnut case; perfect finish; solid panels, with plain round Colonial pillar trusses; two piece fallboard; in very good condition and a fine example of this well known make.

KNABE PIANO, $295.

In an artistic design walnut case; in fine playing order; of good tone quality. A splendid opportunity to secure one of these widely known pianos at a moderate price.

LYON & HEALY PIANO, $300.

Style "K," dark mahogany, in the present issue of our catalog; has had only very slight use; is in the best of condition and can hardly be distinguished from new. Its tone purity is of a character that has made pianos of our make popular. No better investment can possibly be made.

WEBER PIANO, $350.

In a full size mahogany case of late design; practically like new; in tone quality, etc., it is a typical instrument of this high class make.

STEINWAY PIANO, $375.

Ebonized case. This instrument is in very good condition throughout. Here we present an exceptional value and offer the opportunity to secure one of these world standard pianos at moderate cost. Was $675 when new.

Also many other equally fine values. These are only a few examples of our large stock. MONTHLY PAYMENTS OF $5 AND UPWARDS.

SALESMEN.

A Million Dollars Spent for You.

The next six months belong to Florida. We have spent a million dollars getting ready for you and are ready now for the biggest advertising campaign ever opened on Florida. We will pay liberal commissions, advertise heavily for you locally, and pay expenses for agents and purchasers to Florida.

We have an entirely new plan of sale which is proving a big winner for the agent. Previous experience is not necessary. We can train you quickly. On our last proposition several salesmen made as high as $16,000 in one season. We protect our agents and give real co-operation. We want live wires only. Men who are not afraid to work on a straight commission basis.

We sell only our own properties. We are the strongest organization in the South, with seven years' experience in Florida. We have learned that we must make money for our agents before we can make money for ourselves.

Write for details today. E. T. ANDERSON, 108 S. Dearborn-st., Chicago.

SALESMEN—OPPORTUNITY FOR GOOD MEN!

FOR SALE— FOR SALE—
INDIVIDUAL HOMES
AND BUNGALOWS.
See the newest and up to date features and the most complete and well built houses.
AT MODERATE PRICES.
On Laramie and Latrobe-avs., north of Augusta-st.,
AUSTIN.
They are built in 5 to 8 rooms on large lots on wide exclusive paved residence streets with hedges, shrubs, and trees planted and no vacant lots left to mar the beauty of the street.
Some of the features in these bungalows are the large porches, sleeping porches, and sun parlors. The interior finish, lighting fixtures, plumbing, art glass, and decorations are such as are seen only in much higher priced houses.
In inspecting these homes you will also notice the large heating plants, brick fireplaces, built-in sideboards and bookcases, shower bath, 7 ft. plastered basement, 3 part laundry trays, lot fenced, cement walk to alley and yard graded with clear black soil.
Prices are $4,000 to $6,500, on terms to suit or cash.

Treat Yourself TO A TRIP TO FLORIDA. JOIN OUR SUNNY SOUTH SPECIAL —TO— VERO, FLORIDA DECEMBER 5

YOU DON'T HAVE to freeze or shovel coal and snow this winter; there's a pleasanter place to live and make money and that's Vero, Florida. Live in the Land of Always Spring, the country of Greatest Opportunity for all engaged in or wanting to engage in agricultural pursuits.

"FLORIDA CAN GROW more crops than any state in the Union, and in Indian River Farms can be grown everything that can be produced in Florida, and many crops not possible to produce in other sections," says W. A. McRae, Commissioner of Agriculture for the State of Florida, who predicts 10,000 people will be living in Indian River Farms within five years and says 500 chickens will put a dollar apiece each year into the bank at Vero besides supporting themselves and their owner.

CROPS ARE GROWN in Indian River Farms in the dead of Northern Winter when the supply is lowest and prices highest.

Come down and pick out a tract to raise potatoes on this winter. Potatoes are high now and they will be higher in the spring; this is only one of the money making opportunities offered in Indian River Farms at Vero, Florida. Cattle, hog and poultry raising offer untold opportunities. Investigate now, Florida's greatest Development project. Call or write for our booklets, "The Winter Garden of America," or "The Potato, Mankind's Greatest Blessing," and all the facts about this opportunity laden section, which is growing wonderfully fast.

Remember the date and prepare to be with us December 5th: this low rate excursion is free to purchasers. Reservations now being made.

A Live Wire

IF YOU WATCH the household bill from day to day you will not be surprised by Bradstreet's statistics which show the prices of 107 staples were 6.2% higher on Nov. 1 than on Oct. 1 this year and 28% above the level of Oct. 1, 1915, and 40% above that of Oct. 1, 1913. There is little reason to expect any reduction in prices, but much reason to fear a further rise. One who owns land from which to produce food is surely the most independent of mankind.

THE INVESTMENT for men who are earning wages nowadays is real estate and lands. After the war is over Americans will have to go to the land for their living by the hundreds of thousands. Men who buy land now are only safeguarding their own future and their families.

INVESTIGATE THE SWIGART WAY. You won't be urged to buy against your own judgment. But you will like it—it's a genuine opportunity. It's safe. It's sound.

YOU BUY straight from the owner, on terms so low [$25 to $50 down and $7.50 to $10 per month on 40 acres] that they are no hardship for any wage earner. Ask any of my hundreds of satisfied customers. Ask residents in the Swigart Tract.

A REAL LIVE WIRE is quick to take advantage of a way to get what he wants. Our low payment plan provides a way for you to start today to fulfill one of life's best ambitions. You start small but you start. If you wait for that indefinite time when you can save the cash you "lose out," because of values rising beyond your reach and, besides, you never get the cash. Therefore, to delay costs you money as well as time. Prices in the Swigart Tract will again advance early in 1917.

CALL AND SEE an exhibit of this year's products. Visitors welcome. Write for booklet describing and illustrating the best lands in Michigan's Fruit Belt. Settlement and development is going on in all parts of the Tract.

OURS IS a coming country for furnishing live stock, poultry, and dairy products for the Chicago, Milwaukee, Grand Rapids, and Detroit markets. Ours is a natural grass country, and with its pure water is ideal for live stock. Michigan is the second state in the Union in potatoes, and is generally the first in beans. Our lands produce profitable crops of wheat, oats, corn, rye, vetch, millet, and all vegetables. We are in the center of Michigan's Famous Fruit Belt, and no district in the United States offers better opportunities for growing apples, cherries, plums, peaches, pears, and berries. Our lands grow clover in abundance.

WE ARE LEADERS in the land business with a large, hustling organization, probably the largest of its kind in this country, noted for its fair and honorable methods, its enterprise and push. When you deal with us you not only get the land you want but you get the benefit of all the up to date features that a purchaser is entitled to, including cooperation and assistance in many ways which can be given only by such an organization as ours. Every little advantage counts in these strenuous times.

LEARN ABOUT our privilege of exchange, our Insurance feature, our expert farm advisers who regularly visit the settlers, our experimental farms, immense orchard, etc.

WHY NOT ACT this eleventh month—right now—toward getting a farm home in the best part of Michigan's Fruit Belt? Make it your best act of the year 1916.

YOU ARE NOT GOING to pass another Christmas without doing something, are you? Why delay everlastingly a matter that concerns so vitally your future and that of your family? Investigate now, so that by New Year's day you will have turned over the new leaf and started on the right day.

COME ON OUR NEXT SPECIAL EXCURSION, leaving our Chicago Offices at 11:20 a. m. Tuesday, Nov. 28. Round trip rate, $12.50, including railroad fare, meals, and lodging. We return to Chicago at 7:20 a. m. the following Friday. Automobiles and guides free. Offices remain open Monday evening and Saturday afternoon.

STILL MISSING

Advertising Man Attempted to Kill Himself Fifteen Months Before He Disappeared.

J. C. Burnell

Search is still being made for John Calvin Burnell, the Chicago advertising man who disappeared on Oct. 1, fifteen months after he had attempted to commit suicide by firing three bullets into his head. It is feared he may have attempted a second time to kill himself. He is 68 years old, five feet five inches in height, weighs 160 pounds, and has a white mustache, white hair and brown eyes.

OLD TIMERS GO BACK 50 YEARS

Two Pioneer Lake Foresters Recall Younger Days Along North Shore.

Martin Mellody, 80 years old, presented James Anderson, Lake Forest's octogenarian storekeeper, with an old fashioned horn handled pocket knife which he had purchased from him fifty years ago yesterday.

Mr. Anderson, who is in his eighty-sixth year, did remember. He had charged Mellody 80 cents, which was a high price then.

Old Memories Recalled.

The old knife brought back a flood of memories to each of the aged Lake Foresters. They recalled how "Uncle Jimmie's" sweetheart "staked" him to a boiled shirt and a marriage license. She was Miss Mary Davis of Waukegan, then called Little Fort.

Anderson, who was 29 years old at the time of his marriage, had lost his first thousand dollars through the burning of a shingle mill in Wisconsin. After returning by boat to Chicago he walked to Waukegan to inform Miss Davis that he could not marry her because of his loss. But she was "game," even though her fiancé had been reduced in wardrobe to a flannel shirt and a pair of overalls.

She Buys the License.

"I have saved some money, James," she said, "and you are welcome to it."

She purchased a new outfit of clothing and the license and they walked fourteen miles on their honeymoon tour.

Today James Anderson is worth a snug fortune. Although in his eighty-sixth year, he walks daily to his store. He arises at 5:15 and never fails to appear at his place of business at 7:15.

Martin Mellody was the first of the Lake county farmers to sell out to the millionaire colony. J. Ogden Armour's country home now stands in the center of Mellody's farm, and in honor of the former owner of the estate was christened "Mellody farm."

SAYS SAVING OF BIRDS IS DUE TO THE CHILDREN

Secretary of Audubon Societies Reports 9,901 Junior Clubs with 205,196 Members in Last Year.

New York, Nov. 25.—Things are going well with the birds, is the message that comes from T. Gilbert Pearson in his annual report as secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, given out today

The main reason Mr. Pearson ascribes for this happy condition is that a working combination has at last been formed between the birds and the children.

"If this association had never engaged in any line of conservation effort other than its work with children," Mr. Pearson says, "its influence for good would still have been monumental. Beginning with the school year of 1910-'11, this organized effort has spread with astonishing rapidity to every state in the union.

"In the last year 9,901 junior clubs were formed with a total paid membership of 205,196. This is an increase of more than 53,000 over the number enrolled the year before. Since the inception of this phase of our work six years ago a total of 28,522 junior audubon bird clubs have been formed and 572,081 children are junior members."

CITY CAN'T RULE CHARITIES.

Mrs. Rowe Gets Adverse Opinion from City Law Department.

Desire on the part of Louise Osborne Rowe, commissioner of public welfare, to supervise unchartered philanthropic organizations was given a serious setback yesterday by an opinion rendered by the city law department.

The opinion holds that Mrs. Rowe has not the power to supervise such organizations and that the city council has not the power to pass legislation which would compel all such organizations to get a permit before holding a public function in the interests of philanthropy.

The opinion suggests that the city council might authorize Mrs. Rowe to investigate such organizations and issue certificates of good standing to such as would voluntarily apply for them.

'WAIF OF FLOOD' SPINS WEIRD AND THRILLING YARNS

'Richard Harding Davis' (Novelist's Protege, He Says) Makes Sinbad a Piker.

"I would like a city permit to put some beds in rooms above the Pacific Garden mission in Van Buren street."

Fremont Olson of the building inspector's office in the city hall looked through the wicket at a roughly dressed man. The request did not excite Mr. Olson. It seemed devoid of romantic possibilities.

"Your name?" asked Mr. Olson.

"Richard Harding Davis."

Mr. Olson looked at the man in dubious surprise. The distinguished writer of that name died a few weeks ago.

"No, I'm not crazy," said the man. "I have adopted that name. You see, Richard Harding Davis almost adopted me."

Mr. Olson shifted his cigar.

Waif of Johnstown Flood.

"I am a waif saved from the Johnstown flood in 1889," the man went on. "I was found on the roof of a floating house. In the first eighteen years of my life I had eighteen different mothers and fathers. They were foster parents, you understand.

"Once I stowed away on a tramp steamer bound up the west coast of the Americas. When the skipper discovered me he put me ashore on an island off Lower California.

"I discovered a secret Japanese military station on the island. Also the Japanese discovered me. I was afraid they would kill me and kept away from them. I lived on berries, grasses and clams that I dug out of the beaches with my fingers. I was marooned on the island eleven days. I escaped aboard a sailing vessel that put in there for water. When I got to San Francisco I told about the Japanese occupation of the island. The story was published and made a national sensation."

Stood Up to Be Shot.

"Where did you meet Richard Harding Davis?"

"In Mexico. I was working west of Chihuahua City, when Villistas captured me. I was sentenced to death. I was led out at sunrise and stood between a line of Mauser rifles and an adobe wall. Just before the captain of the firing squad gave the command that would have sent six bullet through my heart the American consul rushed up waving an American flag. My life was saved.

"I made my way to Parral. I always had been a street preacher. My life had been one miracle after another, and I saw the hand of God in it all. I never was ordained, but I have preached the gospel in my own way all over the world—on decks of ships cruising among South sea islands, in the trenches by the Dardanelles, and on the battle fronts in France.

"I was preaching on the street in Parral when Mr. Davis chanced to hear me. After the services were over he came and shook my hand and told me I had brought home to him a clearer realization of the intimate relation between God and man than he ever had had before.

"I came out of Mexico with Mr. Davis. I entered his service. I went to Europe with him. I was what you might call his aide-de-camp. Always he called me 'son.' I called him 'daddy.' It was at his suggestion that I adopted his name.

Grave Digger with French.

"I became a grave digger with the French army. I met the 'nerve man.' The world never hears of the 'nerve man.' He goes over the battlefield after the fighting is done. When he finds a soldier hopelessly wounded and praying for death he kills him with a hammer.

"Once when the plans of some fortifications had been stolen I was placed in charge of a detail of men by Mr. Davis' influence, hunted down the thieves and recovered the plans.

"I was present at the battle of the Marne, the first great victory won by the allies. I went to Gallipoli and was on the peninsula throughout the terrific fighting. The French and British had the Turks beaten, but the general staff ordered them away just when victory was within their grasp.

Inspector of Munitions.

"I came back to the United States last January. I was an inspector of munitions for the British government until August. Mr. Davis left me a valuable piece of property when he died. I went to Philadelphia to see about it, but when I learned that his relatives would fight the bequest I relinquished my claim. Now I am helping Mel Trotter, the evangelist, at the Pacific Garden mission. I preach there from time to time."

JIM AND JANE FOR APPLES WENT DOWN BY BROOK—

E. J. Miller, a poet, came into THE TRIBUNE office last night. Said he:

"I have noticed with concern that newspapers do not print poetry any more."

"Newspapers," rejoined the reporter, "like all other industries, have shown a marked improvement in recent years."

"Therefore," continued Mr. Miller, ignoring the odious reporter, "I have a poem which you may publish on your front page."

"Thank you," said the reporter. And here it is:

Jim and Jane for apples went Down in the orchard by the brook.
That's what they said was their intent;
Jane took crocheting, Jim a book.

They sat them down beneath a tree,
For apples ripe do often fall.
Jane worked, Jim read, 'twas plain to see
Not for the fruit they cared at all.

Now they are one, which once were twain;
Jane has her Jim, Jim has his Jane.
The evidence looks good to me,
Cupid was in that apple tree.

Inasmuch as a nonpareil line always should follow agate composition—here it is.

"Do ye remember selling me this knife?"

WILLIAM HARRIS IS DEAD

New York, Nov. 25.—William Harris, aged 71, father of the late Henry B. Harris, noted theatrical producer, who perished on the Titanic, and himself one of the best known theatrical men in the country, dropped dead at his home in Bayside, L. I., today.

REALTY FIELD MAKES POOR SHOWING COMPARED TO BANNER WEEK

MARKET TAKES DECIDED SLUMP AFTER BIG SPURT

Recorder's Figures Reveal a Large Number of Deals, but Few of Importance.

Totals	130	$1,610,300
Same wk. last yr.	143	1,507,400

Last week's real estate market made a poor showing as compared with that of the previous week. There was in the aggregate a large movement of property, as evidenced by figures of the recorder's office, but an absence of the many important transactions which made the market of the previous week one of the most notable of the year.

Nothing in the entire week's business was of sufficient importance to make it stand out as the feature of the market, such as the proposed Montgomery Ward & Co. warehouse in the central manufacturing district, the Marshall Field estate purchase and subsequent long term lease to A. H. Woods, or the announcement of the plans for the proposed $5,000,000 hotel and apartment building on the Lake Shore drive, all of which were included in the business of the previous week.

Downtown Deals on Tapis.

So far as the downtown district is concerned, it seems likely that the coming week will compensate for the poor showing of last week, as indications are that two highly important transactions will be closed. Several building projects announced late in the week were the most conspicuous feature of the week.

There were a few interesting acre transactions last week, and outside of the developments in a building way they constituted the most important feature of the market. The central manufacturing district turned up another important transaction, which was the most important single transaction of the week.

Congressman Mann Sells Sites.

Congressman James R. Mann figured as the seller in two of the most important acre deals of the week at Stony Island avenue and Seventy-third street, the total consideration for the ten acres sold by him being $97,000, a tidy return for the original investment. One, comprising the three acres at the northeast corner of the streets named, and for which the city of Chicago paid $37,500, is of special interest for the reason it is to become the site of the proposed $1,500,000 pumping station to be erected by the city and which will take the place of the present Sixty-eighth street station. It is on the north side of the Baltimore and Ohio, right of way and just north of the present old Jackson avenue station on the south side of the right of way. It probably will be two years, however, before the new station is built. George C. Bour & Co. were the brokers.

Wanderer's Club Finds Home.

A special interest attached to the other transaction, the purchase of seven acres on Seventy-third street, adjoining on the east, for the reason it is to furnish a new home for the Wanderers club, reorganized as the South Side Tennis club, whose former grounds on Seventy-first street recently were acquired by Murray Wolbach for subdivision purposes. It is the purpose of the club, to which has been added the tennis club at Fifty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, to make its new home one of the most attractive about Chicago.

It is proposed to erect a clubhouse at a cost of about $15,000, the plans for which are now being prepared. The larger part of the grounds will, of course, be devoted to tennis courts. The price paid for the land is stated to have been $60,000, which is at the rate of a little over $8,500 an acre. George C. Bour & Co. also negotiated this deal.

St. Louis Woman Buys Vacant.

One of the most important acre deals of the week were the purchases by Mrs. Lilly Busch of St. Louis in the northwest part of the city. She acquired through J. J. Harrington & Co. a total of about 270,000 square feet at North and Forty-seventh and Grand and Kilpatrick avenues for a reported total consideration of about $125,000.

The most important of her purchases was the acquirement from Otto C. Butz, trustee for eight owners, of a tract of 155,708 square feet for a stated consideration of $62,307. The property is located at the northeast corner of North and Forty-seventh avenues. It is said the purchaser has no present plans in the way of improvement. She also acquired through Mr. Harrington a tract at the southeast corner of Grand and Kilpatrick avenues for $29,400. It has a north front of 188 feet by 494 feet on the west by 163 feet on the south and 403¾ feet on the east.

Pittsburgh Man Sells.

In another acre transaction made a matter of record John Walker of Pittsburgh has conveyed to John S. and Henry C. and Howard Phipps of Nassau, N. Y., the property at the southwest corner of West Forty-seventh street and California avenue, 664x2,640, except railway right of way, comprising in all about forty and one-fourth acres, for an expressed consideration of $120,000. The grantor and grantees are brothers-in-law, and in part exchange the purchasers conveyed a number of lots between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-ninth streets, Halsted and Peoria streets, at a stated consideration of $54,700.

COSTLY NORTH SIDE FLATS GOING UP

Seven Story Apartment Building Under Construction in "Streeterville" District.

The new apartment building now under construction at 222 East Delaware place, which adjoins the recently completed 230 Delaware place, known as the Shoreview apartments, is the latest and in some respects one of the most notable additions to the rapidly growing group of costly apartment buildings which is making the "Streeterville" district of the north side one of the most unique developments of its kind in the country. The building, which was designed by Eckland, Fugard & Knapp, is seven stories high, of steel and concrete construction, and will contain six apartments of nine rooms and three baths and six of twelve rooms and four baths. The building, which is being constructed for O. A. McLennan of the McLennan Construction company, is expected to cost $260,000. The American Bond and Mortgage company has underwritten a bond issue loan of $180,000 at 6 per cent.

REALTY BOARD NOMINATES ITS TICKET FOR NEXT YEAR

The joint nominating committee of the Cook county real estate board named the following ticket for the year 1917: Paul Kraemer, president; Mark Levy, vice president; John P. Carney, secretary; Emil J. Dirke, treasurer; Directors for three years, Robert E. L. Brooks, J. Madison Pace, and A. S. Rund. The retiring officers are: President, Robert E. L. Brooks; vice president, Frank E. Lackowski; secretary, Walter E. Becker; treasurer, E. B. Kendall.

Richard I. Gavin, a member of the Chicago bar, will talk on the "Guarantee Deposit Law" at the Tuesday weekly luncheon.

Mark Levy is chairman of the committee which has the ninth annual banquet of the board in charge. It will be held in the gold room of the Congress hotel Dec. 12 next.

The other members of the committee are Richard W. Wolfe, Henry T. Davis, Albert Wahl, W. H. Loehde, C. D. Goodman, Peter Foote, Charles S. Adelman, Paul C. Loeber, Robert E. L. Brooks, J. W. Hedenberg, C. F. Durland, A. G. Rathje, A. S. Ruud, Frank L. Dean, Charles Ringer, Arthur C. Lueder, and J. Madison Pace. Seat reservations will be made at the board rooms on Tuesday, Nov 28, at 2 o'clock.

BUYS EIGHT FLAT BUILDING.

Margaret E., James B., and E. J. Burke have purchased the eight apartment building at the northwest corner of Seventy-sixth and Sangamon streets from Fredericka and S. O. Hawkinson for a reported price of $29,000, subject to $16,500. The purchasers gave in part payment the apartment and residence property at 520 to 524 North Paulina street, valued at $13,500, subject to $1,000. W. A. Murphy & Co. represented both parties.

The high grade six apartment building in Kimbark avenue, 100 feet south of Hyde Park boulevard, lot 50x178 feet, west front, has been conveyed by J. Willard Newman to James W. Henderson, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $22,000.

H. A. Hoban has conveyed to Theresa C. Alcock the apartment house property, northeast corner of Adams street and St. Louis avenue, 125x180 feet, price withheld, subject to an incumbrance of $21,500.

FLAT TRADING SHOWS ACTIVITY

Apartments Only Class to Make Better Showing than Previous Week.

The market for apartment house property made a better showing than during the previous week, the only class of property, with the possible exception of outside business property, that did. The only transaction in which the consideration exceeded $100,000 was the sale by Fabian Peterson to Matthew D. Hartigan of the property at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Garfield boulevard.

The lot is 100 feet on Michigan and 161 feet on Garfield and is improved with an eighteen apartment building of six, seven, and eight rooms. A nominal consideration is given, the transfer being subject to an incumbrance of $78,250, but the actual price is said to have been about $125,000.

The building is said to have a gross annual rent of about $13,000. In part payment the purchaser conveyed the vacant property on Seventy-ninth street between Dorchester and Kimbark avenues, which Mr. Peterson may improve in the spring with dwellings and two flats.

Wolbach in Several Deals.

Murray Wolbach appeared as the seller in several interesting transactions, in one of which he sold to Morton Clausen the high grade fifteen apartment building at the northeast corner of Leland and Drake avenues, lot 58x125 feet, for a reported consideration of $52,500, subject to an incumbrance of $27,500.

The purchaser conveyed in part payment the three flat building at 1454 East Seventieth street, the three flat at 2661 Rhine street, and the residence property at the corner of Elm street and White avenue, Lyons, at a reported consideration of $11,000, the remainder in cash. John F. Diffenderfer represented both the parties to the transaction.

He also sold to Joseph J. and Martha A. Keefer the six flat building at 5642-44 Calumet avenue for a reported consideration of $27,250, the seller taking in part payment the property at the southeast corner of Elston and Kimball avenues. Glatt & Price were the brokers.

Sells Interest in Flats.

John A. W. Miller of Ford, Pa., has purchased from O. E. Hotle of Oakland, Cal., an undivided half interest in Chicago and Evanston flat properties amounting in the aggregate to $300,000.

They include the northeast corner of Madison and Sherman streets in Evanston, 100x130 feet, a twenty-one apartment building of three, four, and five rooms each, taken subject to an incumbrance of $55,000; also the southwest corner of Sherman and Seward avenues in Evanston, improved with a twenty-four apartment building of four and five rooms each, on a lot 100x130 feet, subject to an incumbrance of $57,500; also the northwest corner of Seventieth street and Calumet avenue, improved with a building containing twelve apartments, subject to an incumbrance of $29,500; the three six flat buildings on 150x125 feet at 6625 to 6635 Ellis avenue, taken subject to $42,500. Krause, Beak & Co. represented all parties to the transaction.

SHERIDAN ROAD FRONTAGE LEADS TRADING IN VACANT

There were several interesting minor transactions in vacant during the week, one being in Sheridan road frontage. It was the sale by Le Roy F. Harris to Frank B. Klock of the vacant 100x260 feet, 160 feet south of Waveland avenue, the consideration being withheld. Mr. Harris purchased the property some time ago from Helen Scott and is said to have made a handsome profit in the transaction. The purchase, which is said to have been made for investment, was negotiated by Baird & Warner.

Record was made of the purchase by the Union Stock Yards and Transit company from Albert E. Lake of the property at the northeast corner of Wallace street and Fortieth place, 150x124 feet, and the property in Fortieth place, 139½ feet east of Wallace street, 275x124 feet, a nominal consideration being given.

John W. Page, president of the Page Engineering company, who recently purchased the property at the northeast corner of East Huron and St. Clair streets, has added to his holdings by the purchase of 40x111 feet of vacant at 210-14 East Huron street from the Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings bank, trustee, represented by White & Tabor, Mr. Page being represented by Harry F. Prussing of Ernest H. Lyons' office. This corner, 160x111 feet, probably will be improved with an office type of building.

John A. Chapman has conveyed to Hugo C. Anderson and Anders C. Nelson the vacant 120x125 feet at the northwest corner of Paxton avenue and Sixty-eighth street, a consideration of $10 being given in the deed.

The Union Trust company has conveyed to Seymour Stedman the property at the southwest corner of Seventy-fifth street and Vincennes avenue, 110x200 feet, for an expressed consideration of $24,000.

NORTH SIDE RESIDENCE SOLD

The residence property at 1538 Dearborn parkway, 175 feet south of Lincoln park, lot 25x149 feet, east front, improved with a fourteen room stone front dwelling, has been sold by Mary K. Barnes to Sven J. Turngren. The consideration is withheld, but it is understood the property has been held at $22,500. William A. Bond & Co. represented both parties.

NEW AGENTS FOR BUILDING.

In connection with the recent acquirement by Albert W. Bragg of Tuscola, Ill., and J. G. Alexander of Chicago from Harriet C. Wolters of the Iroquois building and leasehold at 21 North La Salle street, it is announced that G. V. and J. M. Cleary have been appointed agents of the property.

BUILDING PLANS CHIEF FEATURE OF LARGE DEALS

Factory District Structure and North Side Projects the Week's Leaders.

As indicated elsewhere, the various building projects announced, especially those in the latter part of the week, constituted the most important feature of the week's market.

The most important of these was the announcement that John A. Spoor and Arthur G. Leonard and Eugene N. B. Thayer, trustees of the central manufacturing district, have begun the erection of a large loft building for the Chicago Junction Terminal Building company on the basis of a twenty-five years' term rent, which is said to approximate $1,000,000.

An interesting feature of the transaction is the announcement that a large part of the building has been leased to the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, which means the selection of Chicago as the national distributing center for another large industry.

Building to Cost $500,000.

The proposed building, which will be located on Thirty-ninth street, between Canal street and Normal avenue, work on which has begun, has a frontage of 287 feet on Thirty-ninth street and a depth of 200 feet, will be five stories and basement high, and is expected to cost in excess of $500,000.

It will contain approximately 350,000 square feet of floor space and will be constructed in two sections, will be of reinforced concrete, sprinkled, and heated throughout, and will have an exterior finish of pressed brick with terra cotta trim. It will have a floor loading capacity of 250 to 500 pounds to the square foot, and each section will contain about 30,000 feet of space to the floor.

The Chicago Junction railway will serve the building, the tracks entering on the first floor having a capacity of eighteen cars. In the rear of the building the Chicago Junction railway will establish its union freight station No. 3 with a capacity of thirty cars.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company has leased about 180,000 square feet of space in the building. The company is opening a large number of retail stores in Chicago and nearby points, and expects to make this point its distributing center.

North Side Building Projects.

Two important north side building projects were also important developments of the week.

In the more important of the north side building projects G. H. Gottschalk & Co. have closed contracts with Charles W. Ferguson for the erection of a $300,000 building at the Howard street express station of the Northwestern elevated road. The building, which will occupy a lot 251 feet front on Howard street and 292 feet at its deepest point, will be three stories and will contain a theater with seating capacity of about 2,000, all on one floor; lodge and assembly hall with seating capacity of 450, thirteen stores, ten offices, and thirty two room apartments.

There will be towers sixty-five feet high on either side of the theater entrance. Over 2,500 lights will be on the front of the building. Work will begin in about two weeks, and the building will be completed about June 1.

E. A. Roser and H. I. Graves have closed a contract with Bulske, Huseby & Co., general contractors, for the erection of a three story and English basement building at the southwest corner of Wilson avenue and Dover street, to cost about $82,000. It will contain four stores, twenty-five apartments, and two suites of offices. It is to be of the sanitary type, introducing a new idea in room arrangement.

Mrs. J. B. Murphy to Build.

Mrs. John B. Murphy will erect a high grade apartment building on 110 feet frontage on Lincoln Park West between Fullerton parkway and Belden avenue, facing Lincoln park, which she purchased from William C., Clarence T., and Edwin A. Seipp, through W. T. Oliver of the north side office of Chandler, Hildreth & Co. Plans are being prepared by Alfred D. Plamandon, it being Mrs. Murphy's purpose to occupy one of the apartments.

Another proposed big apartment building will be located at 2130 Lincoln Park West, between Garfield and Webster avenues, and will occupy a lot with an east frontage of 114 feet, with an irregular depth, it being 175 feet on the north and 136½ feet on the south.

The ground was purchased by Richard J. Collins from the Carter estate for a reported consideration of $32,000, Mitchell Bros. being the brokers. Mr. Collins stated that while his plans had not been worked out completely, the building probably will be a high grade, ten story, fireproof structure with a probable cost of between $300,000 and $400,000.

Two Garages for North Side.

Two interesting transactions involving the erection and lease of garages on the north side were reported. In one of these Adolph Kuecker has leased to Roy France, the architect, a garage to occupy the 85x179 feet of ground at 1122-28 Balmoral avenue. Mr. France has made plans for the garage, which will have a capacity of 120 cars. In addition there will be offices, chauffeurs' quarters, and supply and storage rooms.

Foreman Bros. Banking company have made a loan of $18,000 in connection with the construction of the building. The lease is for ten years at a reported term rent of $48,000. C. W. Schreiber of E. B. Kendall & Co. negotiated the deal.

Thomas E. Telfer is to erect a two story garage on 72x125 feet of ground at 6610-16 North Clark street, to cost about $25,000, which he has leased to J. C. Lucas for ten years at a reported term rent of about $30,000. The property was purchased by Mr. Telfer from F. Becker et al.

Leases and Loans.

There was little doing of an important character in leases or loans during the week, the showing in both respects being poor. Conditions in the loan market remain unchanged, the inquiry on the part of borrowers being of a limited character, in no way commensurate with the demand for mortgage loans on the part of investors. Rates remain practically unchanged, 4½ continuing to be the minimum for the best class of downtown loans, while 5½ per cent measures the prevailing rate for the better class of outside loans. The best class of outside loans can in most cases be placed for 5 per cent, while 6 per cent continues to be the rule in most building bond issue loans.

Nihran B. Donchian has leased from John Griffiths the store and basement at 29 South Wabash avenue for a term of years from Dec. 1, at a term rental of $40,000, through White & Tabor. The same brokers have leased for Stern, Mayer & Co. to Alfred, Decker & Cohn the seventh floor, 307 West Van Buren street, for a term from Jan. 1, at a rental of $18,000; for Ullman & Co. to Stern, Mayer & Co., the fifth floor of the building at 301 to 311 West Van Buren street, for a term from Jan. 1 at a rental of $10,000.

Ban K. Babbitt of the office of John R. Magill & Co. has leased the entire seventh floor of the recently constructed Converse building at 618-26 West Jackson boulevard to the Printing Machinery company of Cincinnati for a term rent of $30,000. They will occupy the space, 11,000 square feet, for demonstrating rooms for a new type of multi-color press.

The same broker also has leased the entire second floor of the same building to the W. R. Garton company and William J. Doherty, dealers in electrical apparatus, for a term rent of $18,000.

Robert M. Fair has leased to the Fisk Rubber company of New York a two story steel construction building which he is to erect in South Michigan avenue, fifty-nine feet south of Twenty-fifth street, on 40x170 feet of ground, east front. The lease runs for a term of fifteen years from the time of the completion of the building, and the lease provides for a net term rent of $101,021, payable at the rate of $580 a month.

The Calumet hotel at 6325-35 Kenwood avenue has been leased by Mrs. Louise B. Dodge and Mrs. Edith Lee Charpiot to Napoleon Barsaloux, former manager from 1894 to 1912. The hotel contains fifty-one rooms and the lease is for fifteen years at a reported term rent of $110,000. James G. Barsaloux negotiated the lease.

The First Trust and Savings bank is trustee in a loan of $50,000, six years, at 5 per cent to Simon Fish on the property in Loncoln avenue, 350 feet north of Wellington street, 50x125 feet.

Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company has made a loan of $85,000 to David Angus, eight years, at 6 per cent on the Greenview apartments at the northeast corner Pratt boulevard and Greenview avenue, lot 100x174 feet.

BIG DEAL IN KENILWORTH.

A noteworthy north shore deal closed late in the week was the sale by the estate of Joseph Sears, through the trustees, to the Chicago Real Estate Investment association, a syndicate operated by McGuire & Orr, of the bulk of the estate's holdings in Kenilworth, comprising 4,300 feet of frontage on Kenilworth avenue, Leicester road, Raleigh road, Woodstock avenue, and Oxford road. The property is in the southeastern part of the village and is surrounded by handsome homes. The consideration is withheld, but it is stated that vacant opposite this tract has sold during the year at $45 to $65 a foot. The rest of the street improvements will be put in preparatory to placing the property on the market in the spring.

MEDIUM PRICED STORE PROPERTY IN GOOD DEMAND

Business Sites Outside of the Loop Most Active Class in the Realty Field.

Business property outside of the downtown district made a somewhat better showing than during the previous week. There was nothing of any particular magnitude, but the number of medium priced transactions was considerably in excess of those of the previous week.

There also was one deal reported in the downtown district in the sale by David Mayer of the leasehold interest in the property at 31 South State street, on the east side of the street, between Madison and Monroe streets, the Northern Trust company taking title for a purchaser whose name is withheld for the present, it is said.

The consideration also is withheld, the sale being subject to a bond issue loan of $90,000 held by the Central Trust company, paid down from an original $100,000. The property is improved with a five story building and was leased by Adolph Kraus to Mr. Mayer and Henry Siegal in August, 1902, for a term of 101 years and eleven months, the present annual rent being $16,000. The property is just south of the Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. store.

Bank Buys Corner.

Anton Brozis and others conveyed to the Metropolitan State bank the property at the southwest corner of Halsted and Thirty-fifth streets, 52x150 feet, with three story business building, for an expressed consideration of $77,000, subject to an incumbrance of $45,000. It adjoins the property occupied by the bank.

The property at the southwest corner of Western avenue and Powell park, lot 75x125 feet, with store and flat improvements, has been conveyed by H. S. Hancock to William Matthew, the consideration being of a nominal character, subject to an incumbrance of $39,000.

Record was made of the transfer by C. A. Cook et al. to the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, of the property at the southeast corner of Sixty-third street and Kimbark avenue, lot 100x117 feet, with old frame improvements, for an expressed consideration of $20,000.

West Twelfth Street Deal.

A noteworthy transaction in West Twelfth street business property is the sale by A. and S. Eisenstein to H. S. Caplan of the property at 3348-52, between Turner and Homan avenues, for a reported consideration of $42,500, subject to an incumbrance of $26,000.

The lot fronts 56 feet, with a depth of 125 feet, and is improved with a two story brick mercantile building containing two stores and two flats. In part payment the purchaser conveyed the property at 1707 West Chicago avenue, lot 25x125 feet, improved with a three story building containing one store and two flats, at a valuation of $12,000. Gordon, Lapin & Co. were the brokers.

Cottage Grove Avenue Deal.

Record was made of the sale by Alzina L. Johnson to Elizabeth Moss of the property in Cottage Grove avenue, 180 feet south of East Fortieth street, lot 90x167 feet, east front, with business improvements, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000.
